Snow shovels were sharpened up and extra supplies laid in by the fearsome expecting the "worst blizzard in fifty years," prophesied for Saturday—not by the Hermit of Catnip Valley, however. But nothing doing until Sunday, when the wettest kind of a southeast rain storm made things interesting for church goers and furnished an excuse for others not to imperil their constitutions. Early in the morning, the rain froze as it fell, making navigation very precarious for a time.

Plans tonight, another of our big specials, Lon Chaney in "The Unholy Three." Added attraction—Morey's orchestra.—Adv.

DISCORD THREATENS LEAGUE OF NATIONS

of ambassadors and other diplomats, was today practically concentrated in Geneva, momentarily the world's capital.

They were told by the Spanish leader that Spain was certain to obtain a permanent seat immediately; they saw M. Briand, smiling and indefatigable, calling on Dr. Eduard Benes, of Czechoslovakia, to get the views of the little entente on the thorny problem of the council reorganization. They observed M. Briand also hurriedly returning to his hotel and according a precious half hour to Count Zkrzynski relative to the policy and candidacy for a permanent chair.

They found Signor Scialo A, of Italy, hastily conferring with both Sir Austen Chamberlain and Dr. Benes, driving home Premier Mussolini's desires. They learned on good authority that Chancellor Luther and Dr. Stresemann had talked with Viscount Ishii, and deduced from this that Japan, shut out from Locarno by force of circumstances, was deftly playing no unimportant hand at Geneva.

The German chancellor, Dr. Luther and foreign circles that Nippon heartily favors the Chinese petition, at least to the extent of giving China a non-permanent place, believing that the Asiatic continent is justly entitled to be included in the league's administrative organ, and secretly fearing that any failure to recognize Asia might throw China into the arms of soviet Russia.

An interesting sidelight on this aspect of the crisis was furnished by the Germans, who declared they were opposed to any "star chamber decision on the reconstruction of the council by any big power group, because all candidacies should be given a fair chance and the desires of every member of the league consulted.

The French delegation issued the following official communique: "The representatives of the countries which met at Locarno for the negotiation of the Rhineland pact arranged to meet at Geneva for an exchange of views on the questions of the Agenda. They hold a meeting in the course of which no difficulty was experienced in making clear their reciprocal positions. This first exchange will be followed by fresh conversations."

Despite the critical situation the opinion is unanimous in Geneve that sane statesmanship based on mutual concessions will eventually save the situation, because nobody can imagine Chamberlain, Briand, Luther and Stresemann taking the responsibility before public opinion of Europe and the world for wrecking either Locarno or the league.

Minister Stresemann, who arrived here last evening confronted the gloomy morning almost gaily. It was soon evident from the declarations of the German spokesmen that the developments in the situation, notably the French political crisis, had induced a stiffening of the German attitude and insistence by Germany that she alone should enter the council by virtue of the laws of Locarno.

In the meantime the Chamberlain headquarters on the opposite shore of Lake Leman developed something concrete. The British spokesman said: "All this misunderstanding about the council has arisen from Locarno; hence it is necessary that the Locarno statesmen smooth out the difficulties. We have therefore decided to convoke a new Locarnist meeting."

The spokesman took occasion to add: "Yes, all Locarnists, even Poland and Czechoslovakia."

When this announcement reached the German camp it caused consternation, one of the Germans saying: "We have not been convoked for an all-Locarno meeting, but merely to consult with the British, French, Italian and Belgian ministers. This must be a mistake."

This sketch of the activities preceding the opening of the attaesmen's conference at 3 o'clock tomorrow afternoon, would be incomplete without giving due importance to the problem created by China's demand for a permanent seat. The Associated Press correspondent has learned in Japanese.

DODGE BROTHERS, INC.

Only STEEL could meet a test like this!

A Dodge Brothers Motor Car . . . A speeding truck racing down hill and out of control . . . A collision . . . .

Take one look at this photograph. It is not pretty, to be sure, but it will convince any sensible man that all steel construction is the only safe construction for a motor car body.

That is why Dodge Brothers introduced the all steel body more than eleven years ago, and this year greatly improved and perfected it.

In fact, Dodge Brothers are convinced that the day is not far off when wooden motor car bodies will be a curiosity. People will shudder at the thought of having ridden in them and will thank Dodge Brothers for the greater safety, durability—and beauty, too—of all steel construction.

A steel body will stand up under impacts that would crush the average body to bits.

Steel cannot splinter. Steel cannot burn. Steel is an armor of protection on the crowded, hurrying highway.

Outwardly, nearly all types of bodies appear to be all steel. In reality, however, most of them are simply frames of wood covered by a metal shell.

Dodge Brothers Motor Car bodies are steel through and through—steel reinforced by steel—buttressed and braced by steel—even the frames and running boards are steel.

And slender, stronger steel corner posts replace the customary bulky posts of wood, affording full, unhampered driving vision on all sides—a safety feature of the first importance!

Travel in safety! Powerful, quick-action brakes, a chassis world-famous for its sturdiness, and a body of steel—these explain the enviable reputation for safety enjoyed by Dodge Brothers Motor Car—and the enviable feeling of safety enjoyed by those who drive it.

The car will continue to be a "four." No reasoning buyer will be distracted from the issue of QUALITY by mere CYLINDER propaganda.

DANIELSON

MRS. ANNIE QUINN KNOWLTON DIES WHEN STRUCK BY AUTO

(Special to The Bulletin.)

DANIELSON, March 7—Mrs. Annie Quinn Knowlton, many years prior to her marriage a resident here, was killed at New Haven Saturday night, when struck by an automobile. Residing at 107 Kimberley avenue, Mrs. Knowlton was crossing the street when a machine came along, struck her and knocked her down. She lived only a few minutes. Associated Press despatches Sunday said that the driver of the machine that struck her did not stop and was pursued unsuccessfully toward West Haven, the avenue on which Mrs. Knowlton resided being one of the main thoroughfares between New Haven and that town. A traffic officer, who was nearby, said that the driver did not heed his whistle, which fact seems to fix responsibility on that particular machine.

Mrs. Knowlton told those who went to her assistance immediately after she was struck that she was not hurt, but she collapsed as soon as she reached the hospital and died within a few minutes thereafter. An examination showed that death was due to a fracture of the skull. Mrs. Knowlton was married, her husband a railroad man, who has numbers of friends here, and they have a daughter.

Friends of Mrs. Knowlton in Danielson were shocked when they learned of the accident Sunday morning. George A. Quinn, of School street, a coach operator for the Connecticut company and brother of Mrs. Knowlton, and Mrs. Quinn left here for New Haven Sunday morning.

MARCH WEATHER VAGARIES KEEP FOLKS WONDERING

(Special to the Bulletin)

DANIELSON, March 7—Introducing itself last Monday in as benevolent a manner as a summer boarder, March started a weather rough house the next day. It has since been acting as though there were 35 to 40 days in February, which it has matched in obstreperousness, during the past week. It opened as will a southeast gale and rainstorm for Sunday as a year ago, and kept humanity housed from many ventures out of doors other than these involved in going to church and getting home again. An exception Sunday was, if spring is on its way, it is traveling on the fourth section of the last train. Late Sunday afternoon, as water was pouring into the Quinebaug and Assawaga rivers, which follow courses through Danielson, it was the belief of many that the downpour and gale would break up the ice that has locked the streams for months and send it bunting over dams on its way to the sea.

The Connecticut Aggies' basketball team had a considerable audience in Danielson Sunday evening as they outplayed Rhode Island State, their traditional rivals, in one of the most important games on the Aggies' current schedule. The Danielson audience heard the game by radio. This was not nearly as good as being in Hawley armory, where some people from Danielson have been so fortunate as to be, but it was not so bad. Danielson's interest was particularly keyed up because Secretary and Efficient, of Danielson and a graduate of Killingly high school, was playing his last game for his Alma Mater. He is to be graduated in June. Then, too, "Pop" Gates, another K. H. S. graduate, was at center for Connecticut. The efforts of Efficient, who went to the Rhode Island game from the Brooklyn Dodgers training camp, and Williams of the Cincinnati Reds, in turning back the leaders from Little Rhody, were strongly appreciated in Danielson before radio sets here at the home of people followed every move of the game, hearing the yelling crowds, the recording points and the whistle of the referee and the other noise that goes to make a game aside from being an account. With Connecticut repeatedly scoring, there was something of a thrill in turning the dials up and looking from the wealth of entertainment that was Uncle Sam's best to please one. By the way, the score was 43 to 29 in favor of Connecticut. Told in more detail on the radio this morning.

What will amount to something approaching a clinic will be held at Putnam, next Friday, March 12th, when poultrymen of Windham county, engaged in developing a mighty important industry to the area in which they live, will hold a quarterly meeting. Conceived of the scientific manner in which these men are going after facts, a program has been arranged for the occasion. They are to begin at the morning session, opening at 10:15, a lecture by E. Jones, poultry specialist from Storrs, on Management and Sanitation in Growing Clean Chicks, another lecture by John . LaBelle of Ballouville on the Benefits Derived from Growing Chicks on Clean Ground, and still another address by County Agent F. L. Wells of Putnam on The Prompt Adoption of the Grow Healthy Chicks Plan Pays.

These three talks will take all of the time at the morning session. There will be a lunch hour, to be followed by an afternoon session. In the afternoon at one o'clock Dr. G. E. Corwin, deputy commissioner of domestic animals, Hartford, will talk on the subject The Bacillary White Diarrhoea Testing Work, he to be followed by Dr. C. Dune, geneticist at the Connecticut Agricultural college, discussing New Results of Experiments in Hatching and Raising Chicks. The closing feature of the meeting will be an address by Mr. Jones on the subject Economical Building and Development for a Growing Poultry Farm. This will be one of the most important meetings of the year.

Burial was in the Hopkins Mills cemetery. A. F. Wood was the funeral director.

In another fortnight, release of trout —large trout—by the state will begin in Snake Meadow brook, which has been leased and selected for intensive stocking. This brook will get about 3,500 trout from 8 to 9 inches in length. It will not be opened to fishing this year until April 15, two weeks after the opening of the regular trout season on other brooks in this area. The state of Connecticut has undertaken a more comprehensive stocking plan than has heretofore been attempted in the east, and fishermen in this part of the state seem to be in for a great season.

Frost began to move out of the ground under the downpour and high temperature of Sunday. There was at one time about 30 inches of frost hereabouts, and the bulk of it remained until Sunday's storm.

PUTNAM

GILPATRIC STARTS TODAY ON RETURN TO ATLANTA

(Special to the Bulletin)

PUTNAM, March 7—G. Harold Gilpatric in charge of his guard, George E. Hughes, will leave Putnam at 10:30 tomorrow morning and will arrive in Hartford about noon. During the afternoon he will be taken to a specialist for consultation about the care of eyes. He has been advised that it will be necessary to have one eyeball removed before a great while. Mr. Hughes has been given authority to take the former state treasurer to the office of the specialist. They will leave Hartford at ten o'clock Monday night for Atlanta.

It has been three weeks since they arrived in Connecticut. Three days were spent in Hartford, where Gilpatric was interrogated by lawyers in the federal bankruptcy court, and one day in the supreme court here, where he was the principal witness in the suit of the trustee of his bankrupt estate against Rosa Lavine, to recover $2,500.

The remainder of the time he has been engaged in helping George M. Coffin, receiver of the First National bank to trace the transactions in that institution for a period of years prior to its closing, August 11, 1924, three days after his attempt at self-destruction. He was at the bank until 5 o'clock Saturday afternoon.

He said today that it would, of course, to be a matter for others to determine of what value his services had been, but he believed he had been of very substantial help. In this estimate, Mr. Coffin fully agrees. The latter says that as far as he can judge Mr. Gilpatric has answered every question to him as fully and frankly as he could, handicapped as he is by blindness and the physical and mental strain under which he has been while here.

He has stayed at his father's home while in Putnam and he has been under the constant surveillance of Mr. Hughes, while at the house, as well as the bank.

MORSE'S WOMAN PAL IS ARRESTED AT WEBSTER

(Special to The Bulletin.)

PUTNAM, March 7—Mrs. Eileen Anderson, the woman with whom Darwin Morse, arrested in Putnam a week ago for stealing an automobile, lived while at Webster, Mass., was located by the police at Medway, Mass., and is now under arrest awaiting trial. The charge against her is a general one of misconduct but police authorities here do not think that she was very culpable in any way, or was a party to Morse's crimes.

The latter formerly lived at Saybrook, Conn., and the theft of three automobiles is charged against him, to which charge, it is said, he has pleaded guilty. He is also charged with breaking into stores and homes at Saybrook, but the values of the goods taken do not aggregate a large amount.

A part of the stolen goods were found at the house which he and Mrs. Anderson had occupied at Webster.

Mrs. Anderson disappeared when she heard of the arrest of Morse, went to Medway and found employment as a housekeeper. She is thirty years old and has an eight year old daughter. She told the police that she had met Morse in Lyme, Conn., that they had lived in Hartford and other places, that they had made their home in Webster since last March. She was born in France and came from there to Lyme a few years ago.

When Morse was arrested in Putnam by Captain of Police Jarvis, having arrived here in one of the stolen cars, he told the captain that his wife had been from people who could afford the loss, and that they had remitted him but a meagre return when converted into cash.

Mrs. Anderson will be questioned by Saybrook police regarding those thefts She is apparently without means and the police think that she answered fully all questions put to her. She will be released next Friday in Southbridge before Judge Rienford.

WESTERLY

FIREMEN SLIP FROM ROOF DURING BLAZE ON OAK ST.

(Special to The Bulletin.)

WESTERLY, R. I., March 7—There were two fires in Westerly Saturday, but the usual Sunday call came for a slight blaze, about Sunday noon. The most damage was that caused by the fire at 10 o'clock Saturday morning at the residence of Francis G. Haswell, 36 Oak street. The roof was burned through in several places and the water damage will amount to several hundred dollars. Mr. Haswell was at work in the back yard, near his garage, when looking up he saw the east slope of the single roof blazing up. He turned in an alarm from Box No. 66, Oak and Haswell streets and three pieces of fire apparatus responded. Hose lines were attached to a near-by hydrant and a stream of water directed upon the burning roof. Other firemen carried hand extinguishers into the house and going up into the attic were enabled to direct the chemicals upon the blaze beneath the roof and around the chimney. It appeared as if the fire caught from the chimney, soft coal having been used in the heater and the draft left on for a short time. A second line of hose was taken into the house and up to the attic and this stream made short work of any blaze remaining. Clouds of smoke from the roof gave the impression that a big fire was in progress. Several firemen had close calls from hot falls when they lost their footing on a wet tin roof and slid to the ground.

In the evening the firemen were summoned by a still alarm to the house of Edgar R. Sweet, 18 Summer street for another supposed chimney fire. The called came by telephone and when the truck arrived the services of the firemen were not required.

James E. Kennedy, janitor of the Westerly Memorial and Public library discovered a fire in the covering of a steam pipe near the furnace on the post office side of the library building, shortly after noon Sunday. He directed the contents of two fire extinguishers on the covering. Going to the fire station on Union street he returned with assistant Fire Engineer Columbus Passetti, who assisted him in getting at the fire and putting out the blaze.

Tire Easily?

That dragged-out feeling is frequently due to poisons absorbed by the blood from constipated bowels. Headaches, sleeplessness and skin trouble can all be traced to the same source.

Constipation is dangerous for anybody. Nujol is safe for everybody. It does not affect the stomach, and is not absorbed by the body. Medical authorities approve Nujol because it is so safe, so gentle and so natural in its action.

Nujol makes up for a deficiency of natural lubricant in the intestines. It softens the waste matter and thus permits thorough and regular bowel movements without griping.

Nujol can be taken for any length of time without ill effects. Unlike laxatives, it does not form a habit, and can be discontinued at any time.

ECONOMY TO PREVENT DEFICIT

It is a well known fact that one cannot have his cake and eat it too. Neither is it possible to relieve the people of the country from federal taxation and yet leave congress with all the money it might desire to spend.

For this reason there has been a plea made by President Coolidge for the keeping down of expenditures in order to avoid a deficit. When the suggestion was offered by the administration for a reduction in taxes a proposal was made which would have made a substantial cut but would have kept clear of any possible deficit. Consideration, in other words, was given both to the needs of tax reduction and the requirement of funds in connection with new legislation.

When the time came for congress to act upon the tax reduction bill the senate added materially to the cutting down by the house with the result that the compromise effected in the conference committee left the decrease in federal revenue well in excess of what the administration had urged. This means that money which would otherwise have been available for use in making appropriations will not be available. The tax reduction will take it away, and it would be folly to ignore this fact and appropriate funds which will not be available and pile up a bothersome deficit.

Getting a deficit may be easier than getting revenue, but it is poor business to disregard such an evident condition and head the federal treasury straight for a hole.

It is this which the president is endeavoring to avoid by conferences with administration and congressional leaders. It was this very thing that he directed attention to right after the tax bill was passed, and it is most certainly to be expected that congress will give the necessary heed to facts which stand out clearly. The economy which has been practiced in the past must be exercised for some time to come, or until there is some evidence that the revenue bill is going to provide sufficient revenue to meet extra legislative requirements.

ADVISING COAL CONSUMERS

When conditions get back to normal in regard to fuel there will be an opportunity for the consumer to obtain the kind he desires. If he wants anthracite, bituminous, coke or a combination of them he will be able to get them without having any effect upon the price. Just at the present time the fuel market is hardly at normal.

Much bituminous coal has been brought north from Virginia for the purpose of meeting the requirements of the coal consumers and to keep them warm. It was an emergency move and a considerable stock was on hand or on the way when the coal strike was adjusted. In view of this situation the coal commission of New York state has urged the people of that state to use bituminous until there is sufficient anthracite. In other words, instead of make a rush for anthracite that will simply bid up the price the interests of the consumer will be best served by getting along with the substitutes for a short while longer until hard coal production is brought to the point where all demands can be met at regular prices

It is to be expected that any abnormal prices charged for the low volatile semi bituminous coal will disappear. Those who have been favorably impressed by its use will continue to use it, while those who favor anthracite will go back to it. But as the New York commission undertakes to point out it isn't going to be possible to serve all at the same time and in view of that fact the warning to the consumers to meet the situation in the manenr that will react to their best interest seem to be well directed.

The eagerness of all to be served first can be appreciated. And yet it is the condition created by just such a jam that not only makes service impossible but places a premium upon the quantity available. The continued use of substitutes for a short time will insure freedom from hardships and exert an influence against increasing the price of anthracite. The coal commission of New York state does well in advising the coal users of that state as it has.

BRIAND'S CABINET GOES

There cannot fail to be widespread disappointment over the vote in the French chamber which showed a lack of confidence in the Briand ministry and which caused its fall. Premier Briand has been recognized as the strongest man in France. He has been trying to meet the financial problems of France and balance the nation's budget. Repeatedly the plans for accomplishing this have been defeated, and it was upon a sales tax of 1 1-2 per cent. that those who have been obstructing progress won.

The French parliament has been playing politics instead of facing the situation that exists and trying to apply the needed remedy. Going from premier to premier and refusing to accept any financial program leaves France in a position which cannot be regarded as favorable, either by the people of France or other countries.

It is a most unfortunate fact that the parliament is so made up that it can prevent any constructive action. Yet that is the situation. The situation is such that even a coalition ministry cannot make headway. Premier Briand had wearied of the situation and the inability to get ahead. He knew by what a narrow margin he remained in office as long as he did and he can fully appreciate the situation that will be faced by his successor.

While France has some big problems awaiting solution, the biggest seems to be to find out a way in which necessary action can be obtained from the French parliament. With the two sides fighting each other greater consideration seems to be given to that squabble than to the affairs of the nations. While they stand unyielding and unwilling to compromise the affairs of France hang in the balance. And France is in no condition to struggle along under such a handicap. It needs the strengthening influence of legislation that will deal with and terminate the existing situation. The franc would not be where it is today but for the attitude that has too long been displayed in the French parliament.

Briand may be happy to be out of the thankless job, but he knows full well what the continuation of the situation means for France.

APPEALING CATHCART CASE

The decision of the department of labor to appeal the decision of the federal court of New York in the case of Countess Vera of Cathcart to the United States supreme court is only what seems to be needed.

The department of labor excluded the countess on the ground of moral turpitude. She was dealt with in the same manner that many others have been and kept out of the country for the same reasons. When the case was appealed to the court the amazing claim is set up that the adultery charged was committed in South Africa and is not a crime in that country. Because of this it should not be regarded as a reason for her exclusion here. In other words just because it isn't a crime in South Africa those committing adultery in that country can come into the United States without question, but those committing it in a country where it is a crime must stay out. In this situation no consideration is given to the standard that prevails in this country and that it seems is just what should govern. Other countries may have their own standard but when it comes to entering the United States they should be judged in accord to the standards of this country.

It is pointed out that soviet Russia doesn't consider it a crime for a person to urge the overthrow of this government and yet we should not knowingly admit a Russian with such views, although that might be expected under the ruling of the federal court in New York.

By all means let the Cathcart case go to the highest court of the land and let it be determined whether those who enter this country are going to be admitted according to our laws and standards or according to those of other countries. If we must be governed by the laws of other countries it is time to know it.

CANDY CONSUMPTION

It seems like a tremendous consumption when it is told that the people of this country ate $25,000 tons of candy last year, but when you come to think of it that means only about a pound and a quarter a month for each individual, and many there are who easily dispose of a pound or two a week, and some will exceed that figure. There are those of course, who eat much candy and there are those who eat none. It is the big candy eater who has to make up for the one who prefers something else in order to dispose of the hundreds of thousands of tons.

But large as the 1925 consumption might seem it is expected that the present year will show an increased business for the candy makers. Whether this is figured on increased population, lower prices, increased candy-taste or the drop in the price of sugar is not disclosed.

A certain amount of candy is considered good for the health but those who have been checking up the amount of candy sold haven't apparently gone into the question of the effect upon health of the $25,000 tons of sweets. That there are some who have overindulged goes without saying and there are those whose bad teeth may be pointed to as the result of their desire for candy. But it is probably in other ways than the effect upon the teeth that the most serious effects have been felt.

Where the consumption of candy might have been pushed to but for the fact that so many are abstaining therefrom to escape its fattening effects no one would hazard a guess.

WOMAN IN LIFE AND IN THE KITCHEN

SUGGESTIONS FOR THE HOUSEWIFE

Keep the cover on the phonograph when not in use.

Beds should be aired at least half an hour daily with all windows open.

Grease spots may sometimes be removed from wallpaper with a blotter and a warm iron.

Sink scrapers of rubber, with wooden handles, eliminate much unpleasant work in cleaning the sink.

Ice that is wrapped in newspaper will not keep the refrigerator cold. It has to melt in order to cool the box.

Fat should be hot enough to brown a piece of bread in 20 seconds, before potatoes should be put in for French frying.

If you have no maraschino cherries and wish to add color to a desert or a salad use a strawberry from a can of preserves.

For escalloped dishes, cook the onions and green peppers in butter first, so that the dish need not be backed so long.

Keep cheesecloth bags containing lettuce and celery wet with cold water in the ice box, and the contents will stay fresh.

If a chicken is well rubbed inside and out with a cut lemon before being cooked it will make the meat white, juicy and tender.

When you wish a cup of strong tea, instead of putting an extra teaspoon of tea in the pot add one lump of sugar. It opens the leaves and will make the tea much stronger.

Never use soda for washing enamel pans. A little salt or fine ash applied with a soft cloth will remove all stains. The pan should be thoroughly rinsed afterward with warm water.

To keep the coffee pot sweet and clean, put a tablespoon of bicarbonate of soda into it, fill it nearly full of water and let it boil for a little while. Then rinse very thoroughly with several pots of warm water. This should be done once a week.

PLASTER THE CRACKS

Before giving the kitchen walls their spring coat of paint, be sure that every crack and crevice is filled with plaster. There is a plaster on the market now for these small jobs similar to plaster of Paris, but it takes much longer to harden and, therefore, is more easily applied by the amateur.

PLASTER WALLS

Don't try to drive nails into plaster walls and expect a neat job. Use screws, instead, and you will have good results. A picture will hang just as well on a screw as on a nail.

A SHOCK ABSORBER

A small rag rug, such as can be purchased for about 50 to 75 cents, is splendid to have in the kitchen for the housewife to stand on while ironing. She will be delighted to find how much less tired she will be than if standing on linoleum or bare floors.

MIGHTY GOOD

When the loaf of raisin bread becomes stale, toast it. It will prove delicious with preserves or jam.

HEALTH AND BEAUTY

It is possible to clear the complexion temporarily of such annoyances as pimples and blackheads by using external medicines. Such means are always temporary. If there are impurities in the system, they will break out again in new eruptions.

Very often sufferers from asthma are very hearty eaters and are a trifle indiscreet in their consumption of fried potatoes, pastries, fats and sweets. These foods in the stomach in large quantities cause quantities of gas to accumulate and the free movement of the diaphragm and abdominal muscles is interfered with by the presence of this gas in the stomach and intestines.

If you have dandruff, the falling kind, your hair seems dry, you haven't real dandruff at all, and it can be absolutely and easily cured by a good pomade. Your "dandruff" is simply dead scales from an undernourished scalp. If your hair is oily, your dandruff is a sort of superficial crust formed by dust and scales and excess oil. This same pomade will cure that, in doing it every day, because it nourishes the scalp and then the scalp feeds the hair, and then the glands which have been leaking oil take on a new lease on life and, used in connection with a cleansing, astringent tonic, get back their verve.

In sickness the circulation of blood in the skin is sluggish. The action of the skin glands in throwing off impurities in the form of perspiration is also apt to be sluggish.

Especially the bony parts of the body, such as lower part of the spine, the elbows and the heels—all points where pressure is made when the body is in a reclining position—one must watch for and try to prevent pressure sores by keeping the skin smooth and clean, massaged and stimulated by frequent rubbing and the application of some preparation which will harden the skin. There are preparations containing alcohol specially for this purpose.

WOODEN SKEWERS

Keep the wooden skewers that come in the roast from the butcher. They are almost certain to come in handy, if not in actual cooking, they are useful to get into niches and corners when cleaning paint.

TURNS THEM AROUND

Don't forget to turn the rugs around in housecleaning times. Constant turning makes them wear evenly and they should be turned at least every six months to insure good wear.

SMART COLLARS OF FEATHERS

Feathers form the collars of many smart velvet or chiffon evening wraps. For instance, a fuchsia colored chiffon wrap has an enormous collar of fuchsia-toned ostrich feathers. A flame colored velvet wrap has a fluffy collar of coq feathers. Many pastel rose or pink chiffon wraps are matched with willowed ostrich collars and hem flouncings.

TASKS FOR THE KIDDIES

Just because it is easier and quicker for mother and daddy to do sonny's job for him is not sufficient excuse to take away these duties from him. After all, that is the only way a child learns to do for himself and it makes him dull and lazy not to have small responsibilities that can only be done by him. Let him alone and see how he makes out.

DICTATES OF FASHION

Sports hats of peanut straw in pastel shades have the new soft pliable crowns that are so flattering.

The new silks for spring have designs which are considered representative of the spirit of American life.

A new type of chints has much rayon through its surface, and gives the effect of flowered taffeta. It is very decorative and not expensive.

The newest color for lingerie is tea rose, an exquisite tone between pink and yellow. It is particularly lovely when combined with cream laces.

Silks of the wide 54-inch type have striped borders in contrasting colors at each edge. This permits any number of different and smart ways of using the material.

The simple slip-on glove is still the choice of the really smart woman.

The bouffant frock that is so a part of the mode is sometimes made of satin taffeta combined with tulle or exquisite lace.

A recent development of the quilted vogue in coats is the quilted bag and draped toque.

Rose, silver and black striped taffeta makes very lovely robes de style. In this design the very current vogue for stripes is manifest.

Wide belting ribbon in the new clear colors of spring is used for smart little hats designed to accompany the simple tailored suit or ensemble.

To wear with the new tailored suits are squares of taffeta with plaided borders in pastel or more brilliant colors. As a rule the hat matches the dominating tone in the scarf.

Very new and smart are coat sweaters with 12 buttons to give them a new note and to distinguish them from the sweaters of yesterday. These come in all the pastel shades and are exceptionally good value.

LINGERIE IS CLINGING

The new-style lingerie is sheer and soft, and is made so simply as to cling figure. As few garments as possible are worn. These features are illustrated in the colorful display in all of the shops. Women are timid, however, about accepting the novelties that appear.

PRINTED SILKS

Flowerlike colorings and small conservative patterns distinguish the new crepes and chiffons introduced for spring and summer. The effect is almost that of a kaleidoscope of pastel colorings so subtly are the different shades blended in the patterns.

BRIDGE SETS

Bridge sets that made most acceptable gifts consist of a teapot, the cover of which is a combined sugar bowl and cream pitcher, and four plates cleverly shaped to hold a cup and saucer and yet allow room for sandwiches and cakes. These are of luster in vari-colored tones and are unusually pretty.

LAUNDRY HINTS

If soapy water is used in making starch, lines will be more glossy and the irons will not stick to it.

To stiffen silks and crepes, mix one teaspoonful of gum arabic to a quart of water and strain before using.

When ironing have some kitchen salt on a board close at hand; it is most useful for smoothing the irons.

To give to woolen materials the tailored appearance which we all like but seldom see in home pressed garments, press them on a board with no covering.

Remember, there is no bleach like sunshine. If you want to whiten clothes spread them out on the grass without wringing them. A few soakings and dryings will make the most obstinate article beautifully white.

RESTFUL WALL FINISH

If painted walls are to be restful their surface must have a flat finish. This is done by reducing the amount of linseed oil used in each succeeding application of paint. The first coat can have as much as 75 per cent linseed oil and the three following coats containing less until the final coat has scarcely any.

DYED FILLET LACE FOR LAMPSHADES

Fillet lace dyed and mounted on parchment will make an exquisite lampshade for a daintily furnished room. The fillet can be dyed in some pastel shade and should be thoroughly dry before applying. It should be stretched securely over the parchment frame and attached with either glue or paste. For an added effect the under side of the parchment can be painted in some soft tone.

WROUGHT IRON NOW COLORED

Instead of showing a wrought iron stand or bench to remain in the natural finish, it is oftentimes better to give it a color. Finishing a wrought iron pedestal lamp stand with a garnet red enamel or lacquer makes an attractive color note in a room. The shade to go with it can be of mica—a mottled black on the inside and a reddish brown on the outside.

GREASE THEM FIRST

Always butter the inside of your baking dish before putting in the contents to be cooked. It will save you so much rubbing and energy when it is to be washed.

CONCERNING WOMEN

A daughter-in-law of the late Sultan Abdul Hamid has opened a manicure parlor in Budapest.

Virtually 50 per cent of the students of pharmacy in the leading colleges of Manila are women.

At present London has a number of woman police, but they have actually no power of arrest.

Mrs. J. H. Kemp of Hereford, Tex., is one of the most successful farmers in the Lone Star State.

Miss Minnie Evans has been holding down the job as policewoman in South Bend, Ont., for 14 years.

Miss Helen C. McCaboe is the active executive head of a successful hardwood exporting firm in Cincinnati.

About 25 per cent of the total membership of German trade unions are women, the largest number being affiliated with the textile union.

BUY QUALITY

In buying fruits or vegetables, do not be deceived into buying inferior quality because the price is low. In most cases the waste amounts to more than the saving in the first cost.

BAKED IN HALF TIME

You can bake potatoes in from one-half to three-quarters of an hour by boiling them until thoroughly heated through before putting them in the oven. The boiling takes about five minutes.

RECIPES

Orange Blanc-Manger: Mix four tablespoons of cornstarch with one-half cup of cold milk, add gradually to three and one-half cups of scalded milk and cook in the double boiler 15 minutes, stirring constantly until the mixture thickens and afterward occasionally. Beat the yolks of two eggs until thick, and two and one-half tablespoons of sugar, one-half teaspoon of orange extract, one-half teaspoon of salt. Add slowly to the first mixture, stirring constantly and let cook two minutes. Turn into a serving dish, sprinkle top with two tablespoons of granulated sugar and set aside in a cold place to chill. Cover with a meringue and sprinkle with finely cut crystallized orange peel. Serve with sweetened cream.

To make the meringue beat the whites of two eggs until stiff, add gradually two tablespoons of confectioner's sugar, one-half teaspoon of vanilla and a few grains of salt. Poach by heaping tablespoons in boiling water. Remove from water with a perforated skimmer and set above the blanc-mange. Let cool before serving.

Orange Jelly: Soak one-half package of granulated gelatin in one-half cup of cold water 20 minutes; add one cup boiling water and seven-eighths cup sugar. Stir until gelatin and sugar are dissolved, strain. Add the juice of one lemon and two cups of orange juice. Turn into small glasses, first wet with cold water. Chill. Unmold on small individual plates, dressed with a lace paper doily. Serve with sunshine cakes or lady fingers.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Kind Words

Mr. Editor: I saw your notice about Charles Ray and unite with you, only, I will add that when the 100 years are up I want to write him up for my New York paper.

Now then, let me tell you "somewhat" in 1868 my grandmother a democrat took the Norwich Aurora and Advertiser when it was printed. My grandfather, one of the first Irishmen that ever came to Windham county, wanted The Bulletin. It was a sort of a community paper. Kirk Leaven who died some years ago in Norwich paid for it. It was thrown off the train and I used to go up and bring it down to the store. From that date until now I have been a reader of The Bulletin. My mother mailed it to me in 31 different states and six different countries, and I would heartily rather miss a meal than The Bulletin, and believe me I am some lover of a good meal. The darned old politics of the paper always kinder made me a little bit ugly, but I guess that's why I like to read it. There is nothing on this earth that can take The Bulletin's place with us old has beens, and the funny thing is these bobbed hair chippies like it just as well as we old use-to-was believe do. Let's hear from a few more Bulletin readers of long ago and today.

Bootleg Aliens

Mr. Editor: We all can thank you for your editorial of today about Registering Aliens. The house Immigration committee learns from its competent investigator, Dr. Harry H. Laughlin, that thousands of bootleg aliens are reaching America, and, that but comparatively few bootleg aliens are deported. That means that these thousands of steelers-in are still spread out throughout our cities.

A commentator writes: "Dr. Laughlin found that in proportion to their numbers the aliens have about twice as much insanity as the Americans, and twice as much feeblemindedness. Taking in consideration all forms of unfitness, including crime, insanity, pauperism and all, he found that the alien is 73 per cent. worse than the American. Altogether, there are more than 60,000 aliens in our custodial institutions. How many more ought to be there—or rather ought to be on some outbound ship along with these 60,000—no one can do more than guess. For, shocking and alarming as these figures are, we all know they are only a small part of the truth. There are tens of thousands, if not hundreds of thousands, of unpunished criminals and undetected undesirables of every kind. The figures show only those who have been caught, and this is merely the surface of the evil of alien unfitness.

"The cash cost of caring for the aliens in institutions is a trifle under the $100,000,000 a year. The 'crime tax' on the nation has been estimated at two billion a year, and the alien is the cause of well-near half of that. Even that is a small matter; the real evil which these degraded aliens do is to American society and to the American race."

All over America a vast machine is working day and night to swamp this country with aliens. One of their pleas for the alien is that families may be reunited here in America, when one or more members of a family are already here—they want the rest of the family to enter our gates. Could not that reunion, Mr. Editor, take place as well in the country of the original family-break as here in America? Couldn't it?

The Americans who know how to sing "America" with the right to sing to it; who salute the flag and mean the flag of The United States of America, and not some other flag, are watching effective legislation on immigration and deportation with increasing interest. For our native-born and naturalized Americans well know that America's freedoms and opportunities belong first of all the world to them, and not at all to steelers-past our gates.

From Small Beginnings

Welsh Orator

A serious-faced Welsh boy sat working at a loom in Wales at about the time the United States first took a position among the nations. The boy, John Elias, was the son of poor and hardworking parents; every member of the family was obliged to work; there was no time for school nor for amusement. Very early in life John Elias had learned the work of a weaver, and he had settled down to it, apparently for life. How little does anyone know what fate or destiny or God has in store for him. That Welsh boy was not to spend his life as a weaver. He was not to remain, as everyone expected him to remain, unknown and unheard of. He was to live a life that should affect not only the people of Wales but also the people of the South Seas and of Asia, and he was to aid in organizing great movements for good.

One evening when he had finished his work for the day, he went with others to hear a revivalist preacher. How it would have astonished him, and how it would have astonished the revivalist, if they could have known what great results were to come from that chance attendance at a meeting. The boy was so impressed by what he heard that he resolved to change his entire way of living. He resolved to devote himself to religion and to work for the people among whom he lived. Although only a boy he began to speak in public and to preach. He had a good voice, a strong presence, and he was wholly in earnest. This gave him wholly magical effect over his hearers, so that he swayed them as he wished. When he found that his work as a weaver interfered with his work as a preacher he set up as a storekeeper, and thus gained more time in which he could be free from money-earning work. As time went on the fame of his speaking spread and crowds came to hear him. He gained great influence and then began to take part in great public movements. He was one of the most active in establishing the famous London Missionary society, the society that sent out missionaries into all the savage islands of the South Seas, and that did more than any other organization to bring the islanders into touch with civilization. In the same way John Elias was one of the leaders in creating the modern Sunday school movement. He traveled tirelessly from town to town preaching everywhere with a vigor that shook great bodies of hearers. In particular he taught everywhere that wrong doing is luckily followed by some form of punishment. To illustrate this he told stories that appealed intimately to those who heard him, and that carried conviction.

As he grew older he gained still more in oratorical power and was called the "Welsh Demosthenes." He carried on his work with utmost vigor until his death at the age of 67.

The defendant husband in a divorce case was charged with being an habitual drunkard. He indignantly denied ever having been fined for being drunk.

"Only driving an automobile while under the influence of intoxicants," was his solemn reply.

"In where?"

"In that magazine with all the machinery in it—all that stuff I like to read."

"Where did you see a magazine named Polar Mechanics?" his father insisted.

"Down at the news stand."

"Are you sure the magazine wasn't Popular Mechanics?" his dad asked.

"Well, maybe it was I was in a hurry. But, anyway, it had icesleds driven by motors in it," William got in the last word.

DIED SUDDENLY AT WORK ON LEDYARD FARM

Less than five hours after arriving at the home of William H. Crandall in Ledyard, where he had secured employment as a farm hand, Joseph Brooks, aged 60, a native of Canada, dropped dead.

Williams in Mystic, after obtaining permission from Coroner J. J. Desmond of Norwich, and relatives in Canada were notified. They are expected to arrive in Mystic.

WAYBURN SAYS CHORUS GIRLS OF MUCH HIGHER TYPE TODAY

NEW YORK, March 7.—(AP)—Chorus girls of today are of a much higher type and from better families than those of the old days, believes Ned Weyburn, who has directed the dancing in 500 Broadway shows.

This he attributes to the more rigid requirements of audiences and the resultant necessity of real talent and proper training on the part of the girls.

"Why, today more ability is required of a chorus girl than was demanded of a principal five years ago," he said. "The modern chorus is highly trained and in many musical comedies each member is really a solo dancer.

"With so many girls seeking places it is only natural that the best trained are selected. The training is more expensive than formerly, which may explain why many families well-fixed financially are represented in the chorus.

"The old stigma against the stage is missing, for the type of girl that gave it a bad name virtually has been eliminated through the strict requirements. Logically, this improvement in conditions has materially lessened the opposition of our better families to their daughters going on the stage."

The director who trained Marilyn Miller, Ruth Laird, Ann Pennington Gilda Gray, Claire Luce, Fred and Adele Astaire, Oscar Shaw and many other Broadway stars, predicts the chorus girls of the future will be faced with even greater requirements.

NEW YORK TO HAVE TWO TEAMS IN BASKETBALL LOOP

NEW YORK, March 7.—(AP)—New York city will be represented by two clubs next season in the American basketball league, a professional circuit representing cities of the east and middle west. Brooklyn already has a quintet in the league and Tim Mara, who launched the New York professional football eleven last fall, announced today he would sponsor a club to be known as the "New York Basketball Giants."

According to Joe Carr, of Columbus, president of the American Basketball League, who was here during the past week, ten clubs will compose the 1926-27 circuit. Philadelphia will be granted a new franchise to complete the league, other members of which are Boston, Detroit, Chicago, Cleveland, Fort Wayne, Ind., Rochester, N. Y., Buffalo and Washington.

The New York Basketball Giants according to Mr. Carr, will perform in an arena seating 10,000 spectators but as yet no site has been selected.

SAYS GOD-LIKE LOVE FOR FELLOWMAN WOULD CURE DANGER OF OUR TIME

Love for one another as God loves men is the balancing thing in life, said Rev. Charles O. Judkins of Glens Falls, N. Y., Sunday night at the United Congregational church in the concluding sermon of a series given at the church under the auspices of the Norwich Y. M. C. A. through the provisions of the Sturtevant fund. The service had the largest attendance of any in the series. The devotional period starting at 7.30 o'clock was led by Rev. A. H. Abbott, pastor of the United church. The scripture lesson, read by Rev. J. Harlow Graham, pastor of Trinity Methodist Episcopal church, was John 13, beginning with the 18th verse. Following an anthem by the choir, Dr. Judkins opened his sermon with prayer.

I came here to carry on a unit piece of work, said Dr. Judkins. I wish to conclude this work tonight. Then, for the benefit of those who were unable to be present at the other meetings, he gave a review of his previous sermons. We are in a tremendous materialistic craze, he said. We are in a swift, swift time. The great error of our time is a terrifically dangerous unbalance. I tried to show you how the unbalance lies with the individual.

If you can locate your enemy then half the battle is won. I tried to show you what a really balanced Christian would be. What wouldn't you parents give if all your children should come to you and say, I have discovered there is a great God in the world. I must be about my Father's business.

What is that thing we call the presence of the living God? What is the mode of finding it? We find the presence of the living God through prayer. What does prayer mean? What is the process of prayer? Prayer is made up of three parts. They are meditation, communion and affirmation. Meditation means continued, attentive thought to an object. Communion means consciously making common cause with God. Affirmation means a kind of glory of God in your soul.

Long continued meditation reveals God to us. God is waiting to be an infinite blessing to you as soon as you let God in your life. Make communion with God until you feel you are an ambassador of God to do God's work through your own work. Are we really Christians or are we not? Do you believe in the presence of the living God? Christian civilizations means the reproduction of Christ in every individual is Christian civilization.

Love one another as God loves men. When the individual becomes empowered with the mystic presence of God he experiences religion.

What is love? Love is not "liking," "sympathy," "pity," or "sex". Love is the universal urge to perfect. It may have sympathy; it may have pity or it may have sex. A real lover in God's sight, perfects himself. The urge to do the perfect thing and to perfect life through doing it is what love means. Love never stops, never tires. It is the universal urge to make actually perfect. Can't you see that is the balancing thing in life? Can't you see that if that law was observed that life would be balanced?

Dr. Judkins concluded his sermon with a fervent prayer and the service came to a close about 9 o'clock.

LAST REAL DAUGHTER DIES AT AGE OF 111

Her life having spanned 111 years, Mrs. Louisa K. Thiers, the last of the real daughters of the Revolutionary war and great aunt of Henry B. Plant on his mother's side, is dead at Milwaukee, Wis.

Mrs. Thiers was a sister of the father of Henry B. Plant's mother. Mr. Plant is the son of the late Morton F. Plant of Eastern Point and New York.

She was feeble, but in possession of nearly all her faculties and death snuffed out the wish of Wisconsin's oldest woman to live to see another Washington's birthday. A student of national affairs, she realized the dream of years in equal suffrage for women in 1920 and at the last presidential election she rode to the polls at the age of 110 to cast her vote for Coolidge.

Mrs. Thiers went to Wisconsin from New York in the days when wagon tracks were the only trails into the state. It was in the early 30's that her father, Seth Capron, took his family to Kenosha, Wis. The honor of being the only living real daughter of the American Revolution was Mrs. Thiers for many years.

Her father left his home at Attleboro, Mass., when a youngster, to fight in the American Revolution. He later became a corporal on Washington's staff. One of the stories that Mrs. Thiers used to tell with so much pleasure was of the time her father became acquainted with Gen. Lafayette at West Point.

The Milwaukee chapter, Daughters of the American Revolution, which held its first meeting of the season on her birthday, paid her a compliment by having telephone connections arranged near the banquet table and at the close of the luncheon the toastmistress telephoned a toast of birthday greetings to Mrs. Thiers, the original daughter of the society. She was the oldest subscriber to the Liberty Loan and during the World war knitted 200 pairs of socks, wristlets and tops for the Red Cross stockings.

At 110 Mrs. Thiers motored from Kenosha to Milwaukee with her son, L. M. Thiers, to celebrate her birthday with her daughter. Even at five score and ten years her vision had been but slightly dimmed and her hearing not seriously impaired. But at 111 the waning years began to enfeeble her faculties of speech, sight and hearing, but she was able to write her name. Books were closed to her and to converse with her it was necessary to bend to her ear and raise the voice slightly.

Added to her treasures of late years was a letter from President Coolidge congratulating her on her vote when she was 110.

DYING FROM INJURIES RECEIVED FROM TRAIN

WESTPORT, March 7.—(AP)—Miss Rose Podwol, 19, of Brooklyn, N. Y., a patient since Thursday in the Westport sanitarium, is in a dying condition in the Norwalk hospital from injuries believed to have been received when struck tonight by a west-bound train in a lonely cut near the Miramar inn, Green's Farms, about six hours after she had wandered away unobserved from the sanitarium.

Both legs were crushed, the right one being nearly severed from the body and a lacerated scalp. She was discovered lying on the tracks by John Hall, a Westport mail carrier, who lives near the railroad pass, who heard her screams, and called the Westport ambulance, which took her to the Norwalk hospital. At a late hour tonight it was said at the hospital that her condition was serious. She was in a semi-conscious condition, it was said, and was too weak to be questioned.

GROWTH OF THE YOUTH MOVEMENT IN CHURCHES

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., March 7.—(AP)—The "youth movement" in the churches has had a steady growth for years, according to Dr. Blaine E. Kirkpatrick, superintendent of the department of Epworth league of the Methodist board of education, speaking at the New Jersey Methodist conference today.

"If there was a spirit abroad among young people 37 years ago demanding a measure of independence and self-determination that was largely responsible for the founding of the Epworth league, that spirit is greatly intensified now," he said.

He said that there were 19,260 chapters of the league and a membership of 700,000. Two thousand chapters with 98,000 members are in foreign lands.

One hundred and thirty-nine institutes for the training of youths in the world's service program was held last year and 38,000 young people attended them.

ATTEMPTING TO RESCUE PASSENGERS FROM SKIFF

SAYS MEN OF TODAY ARE NOT UP TO PHYSICAL STANDARD

BERKELEY, Cal., March 8.—(AP)—Although college students have a fairly high degree of physical fitness, as a whole "American men are unprepared to meet the common physical emergencies and demands of life."

This is the conclusion of F. L. Kleeberger, chairman of the department of physical education of the University of California.

"The inability of most of our young men of today to use the power of their arms, shoulders and middle body is surprising," he states, and the "danger from this is greater to the race than the loss in the power of navigation creditable to the automobile."

Brain matter cannot be built by physical exercise, Kleeberger believes, but he thinks the present generation should be developed sufficiently to enable a man to act quickly and accurately in case of an emergency.

Refusing to heed a request for 25 cents, Stephen Jelich, 33, of Duquesne, yesterday was shot and killed by a stranger as he was waiting for a street car at McKeesport, a suburb of Pittsburg. The slayer made his escape.

YU ROUNG-LING IS BEST KNOWN CHINESE WOMAN

PEKING, March 7.—(AP)—Yu Roungling, lady in waiting to the empress dowager while still too young to wear the elaborate Manchu court costume and therefore obliged to dress as a boy, has served every presidential household under the republic as mistress of ceremonies and is today the most widely known Chinese woman.

Stepping from a French convent into the imperial court she became at once the favorite of the old empress. Her grace, beauty and intelligence have since won for her the highest honors attainable under China's new regime. Her greatest ambition now is to become a "movie" actress.

Madame Dan Pao-tchao, as the little convent girl of Manchu days is known today, is frankly stage-struck. She longs for the day when she can escape the turmoil of Chinese politics and carve for herself a screen career. Her yearning for histrionic expression has found vent in amateur acting and Chinese interpretive dancing in which she excels.

Son after the birth of Yu Roungling, in Tientsin, her father, Yu Keng, became minister of the Tsungli Yamen, the department of the government which by process of evolution eventually became the Foreign Office. As minister to Japan, Yu Keng later took his family there. From Japan he went to Paris as minister to France. Roung-ling was placed in charge of the sisters of Sacre Coeur convent, and the stamp of western culture which she received in those early years causes her today, in Parisian costume to be mistaken for a French woman.

About the time of Yu Keng's return to China, in the first years of the present century, the empress dowager wished to have some young woman who spoke foreign languages and with a knowledge of western customs attached to her court. Yu Roung-ling notwithstanding her youth was introduced and installed as a member of the imperial suite.

"It is amusing now to think of those days," said Madame Dan. "I was so young and so little that I could not possibly wear the beautiful and elaborate Manchu head dress and without it the court costume wasn't complete; so they dressed me in boy's clothes. I was glad because they were so much more comfortable to wear but still it took more than an hour every morning to have my hair dressed. We had to get up early, always by half past six or seven o'clock to be ready to go to the empress' apartments to wish her 'good morning' and make our bows, when she came out of her boudoir at about eight o'clock.

"But they were happy days. The empress always was very kind to us and we were very fond of her. I always went to audiences with the empress. It was quite a long way to go in the palace; but it was easy for me in my boy's clothes to get about. I used to stand or sit on the floor behind a screen where I could hear everything, but of course I was too young to understand much of what was said."

Yu Roung-ling left the palace after the empress' death and joined her parents then living in Shanghai. Life in the old surroundings lost its charm with the passing of her beloved sovereign and she pleaded to be taken away. In Shanghai, she married a rising young official, Dan Pao-tchao, who is now counselor in the office of the president with the rank of general.

Each succeeding administration from Yuan Shih-kai down to the present chief executive has availed itself of Madame Dan's efficient and tactful services as mistress of ceremonies.

MINISTER HAS REQUESTED REDUCTION IN SALARY

PHILADELPHIA, March 7.—(AP)—Reversing the usual order, the Rev. A. Ray Petty of New York who has accepted a call to Philadelphia, asks that the salary offered him be reduced. The request, contained in his acceptance of the call to Grace Baptist temple, was read to the congregation tonight.

As the successor to the late Dr. Russell H. Conwell, Dr. Petty wrote that he did not wish to accept the proffered salary of $10,000, saying that "as a younger man who has not yet demonstrated his ability" he did not desire the same salary as his predecessor. "I would prefer therefore that my salary the first year be fixed on a basis of $5,000."

The Rev. William D. McClury, associated pastor, intimated that the congregation would decline to reduce its offer downward.

SAYS MRS. COOLIDGE DOES NOT TALK BUSINESS WITH HUSBAND

NEW YORK, March 7.—(AP)—Mrs. Coolidge never discusses business with the president, C. Bascom Slemp, his former secretary, discloses in his book on The Mind of the President.

But she has provided a home atmosphere that has made infinitely easier the development of the president's unique personality, Mr. Slemp adds. "There he has refreshed his weary spirit when the day was done. There he has ever found the warming fire of sympathy and affection and the inspiration of a happy and contented companion, the faithful example of another blameless life."

"BIG BILL" EDWARDS NAMED AS HEAD OF NEW PRO FOOTBALL LEAGUE

NEW YORK, March 7.—(AP)—William H. (Big Bill) Edwards, football captain and lineman in his days at Princeton, and widely known gridiron referee, today was named president of the newly formed American League of Professional Football Players, the organization sponsored by Harold (Red) Grange and his manager, C. C. Pyle.

Edwards, who retired in 1921 from the post of collector of internal revenue at the port of New York and who was made a special deputy police commissioner last year, has been appointed to this post for three years and will receive an annual salary of $25,000, the league announced at its meeting here.

Pyle was elected temporary vice president, William Coughlin of Newark N. J., treasurer, and Colonel William Coughlin of Newark, N. J., treasurer and Colonel William D. Hayward, former United States district attorney, general counsel. Four clubs already have obtained franchises in the new circuit—New York, Newark, N. J., Milwaukee and Boston—and it is expected that six more cities will be received into the league at a meeting in this city late this month.

One of the president's first moves, and he has been voted virtual dictatorship, was to have inserted in the by-laws of the organization a clause which will prohibit any club in the circuit from accepting the services of any high school or college player until after his class has been graduated from either high school or college.

Edwards said that with such a stringent ruling in black and white there will be no loopholes for pro moters. He explained that if a football star left his university in his freshman year he would not be eligible for professional play for three years.

"This league will be modelled after the major leagues of baseball," he went on, "except that there will be no scouting of the colleges for material. Men play this game in college because they love it—not merely for financial reasons—and no one wants to see our great game of football preserved more than myself. Our officers are men who have long been interested in the gridiron sport. Colonel Hayward was a player at the University of Nebraska.

"The good qualities of the game and the tremendous public interest combine to make it the property of the public and it must be played by others than college men and schoolboys. There is a great public demand. Those who are unable, by constant increasing demands for football tickets at the great university struggles, to see the college games turn to the professional battles and attendances have increased.

"Football can only be preserved by the most careful supervision and the future rests not only on those who control it but upon the players and public as well. We intend to have clean, wholesome sport, attractive games that the public will enjoy, in perfect condition for the crucial afternoons they must undergo after a boy leaves college, if he loves the game, he probably will want to play as."

It was announced at the meeting that a regular schedule, each team to play eighteen games, will be prepared to start about October 1. American cities that have made application for franchises are Cleveland, Detroit, Chicago, Cincinnati, St. Louis and Indianapolis. Garry Gerrard, owner of the Cincinnati baseball club in the National league, is said to be among the bidders, and Rogers Hornsby of St. Louis Cardinals' second baseman would be linked with Otto Stifel if the promotion of a club in their city is effected.

George Wilson, all-American halfback of the University of Washington, is expected to lead a team of western stars into the circuit, playing a roving assignment, but this plan has not been fully developed.

Under the league constitution each club must deposit $2,000 to guarantee appearances and take care of fines and other financial matters under the circuit's supervision.

One per cent. of the gross receipts at all games will be placed in the treasury, 50 per cent. of which will go to owners of the visiting teams for the season's games competed and the remainder to be divided among the owners of the victorious clubs.

COLUMBIA LACKS ONE VICTORY FOR COLLEGE TITLE

NEW YORK, March 7.—(AP)—Columbia, with two games to play, required but one victory to gain the championship of the Eastern Intercollegiate Basketball league for 1926. The New York university's opponents in its remaining games will be Princeton and Yale and records for the season indicate that Columbia will defeat the New Haven quintet with little difficulty.

Dartmouth, with nine games already played is assured of at least a tie with Pennsylvania for second place, while by winning its lone remaining game, Dartmouth would tie for first place in the event Columbia dropped both its contests.

The rise of Rothenfeld, Columbia forward, featured the individual scoring the past week, by netting eleven points against Yale he gained second place in the standing, displacing his teammate Loub. Captain Loeb of the Princeton team still leads the list with 77 points.

The team and individual standings follow:

TEAM	Won	Lost	Percentage	Points	Opp. Points
Columbia	7	1	.850	241	164
Dartmouth	6	3	.667	216	208
Pennsylvania	5	4	.556	217	195
Princeton	4	4	.500	197	203
Cornell	2	5	.375	155	184
Yale	0	8	.000	147	219

HOFF SETS ANOTHER MARK FOR POLE VAULT

CHICAGO, March 7.—(AP)—Charley Hoff has again defeated the most persistent aspirant to his world's indoor pole vault crown. The vaulting Viking will have to make better than 13 feet 6 3-4 inches to win from himself again.

When the timber began to topple at a bit over 12 feet in the National A. A. U. games last night, Hoff stepped out of his flannels and joined the competitors. Two or three easy vaults, and he had the bar raised to just above his record height of 13 feet 5 1-8 inches made in the east a week ago.

Taking off perfectly, Hoff, four times breaker of the international record in the event, went up and over and flung his body fully four inches clear of the cross-bar. The standards showed the Norwegian had passed his previous record by three-eighths of an inch.

Then, while the applause still lingered, officials rechecked the height for the records and found that Hoff had cleared 13 feet 6 3-4 inches by the tapeline.

The meet saw another world mark broken, by an unheralded champion, Herbert Schwarze, of the University of Wisconsin, who competed unattached. He put the shot 50 feet 7 5-8 inches to better the distance set a week before at the Illinois relays by John Kuck, Kansas. The world's records in the 70-yard high hurdles and the 60-yard dash were tied during the trials.

HAGEN BEATS JONES BY A LARGE MARGIN

The match, which was heralded as for the unofficial gold championship of the United States, began last Sunday when 36 holes were played over the Whitfield estate course at Sarasota, Hagen leading eight up at the end of that day. The final 36 holes were played over the Pasadena course here, and ended with Hagen four up for this 36.

The contestants quit their match play on the 25th hole as Jones was willing to yield to his opponent, but they finished the course to please a gallery of nearly 3,000.

In his work on both links Jones showed occasional flashes of the form which carried him to the top of the amateur list, but Hagen's steady and relentless game and his calm demeanor, in the most trying situations resulted in his overwhelming victory. Hagen's performance today was considered by experts to be one of the finest exhibitions of golf ever seen in this country.

What was believed here to be the largest purse ever pocketed by a golfer for a single match was taken by Hagen, who quit the links just $6,800 to the good. Jones took nothing out of the match except the experience. Hagen received 100 percent of the gate receipts at Sarasota last Sunday. Today, Benjamin F. Namm, of Brooklyn, gave him $5,000 for the Pasadena half of the match. It was estimated that Namm broke about even today; the estimated paying gallery being about 2,500 persons.

Hagan said he realized that he could not have profited so largely except for the sporting attitude of Jones, monarch of the amateurs, in meeting men in the match.

They halved the first hole and Hagan made one of the finest shots of the day for a birdie three to win the second. The next two holes were marked by narrowly missed putts and on the fourth Hagen scored a birdie two, only to have Jones do the same thing.

After the eighth Jones sank a six foot putt for a three and won when Hagen missed a foot and a half putt. Both missed the cup on the twelfth but Hagen laid Jones a stymie. Their tee shots generally were straight down the center but Hagen sliced into a clump of palms on the fourteenth only to have the ball bound back into the fairway. Jones hit a 280 foot drive on this long hole but missed his putt and Hagen holed a four foot putt for a three three to win.

In the afternoon round both started with par fours. Jones lost the second when he hooked his tee shot and on the seventh Hagen was within 15 feet of the cup in two and needed the putt for the match. He holed it and ended the actual match play. Their cards:

Hagen, out 435 244 444—34.
Jones, out 445 245 424—35.

Hagen in 354 434 435—35—69.
Jones in 364 544 554—38—73.

Afternoon round:
Hagen, out 445 344 3—37—96.
Jones, out 455 334 3—37—110.

CALIFORNIA LEADS IN BOXERS AND PROMOTERS

SACRAMENTO, Cal., March 7.—(AP)—California has more boxers and more fight promoters than New York Secretary Walter Yarwood of the state athletic commission declares, basing his comparison on 1925 figures for both states.

Although 1925 was the California boxing body's first year of operation, it wielded authority over 87 promoters or clubs, as against 29 under the authority of the New York boxing commission. It licensed 2,448 boxers as against the 1,789 registered in New York, and one of the California mitt men was Jack Dempsey.

New York led in total receipts for the year, the figure being $252,749, as compared with California's $146,-569, but it cost the eastern flistic board more in proportion to operate. The New York commissions expenses totaled $63,447; the California commissions $22,860.

MISS WILLS WINS TITLE IN MENTONE TENNIS FINALS

MENTONE, France, March 7.—(AP)—Helen Wills, the American champion, took temporary possession of the Mentone challenge cup today by defeating Senorita De Alvarez, the Spanish champion, in the finals of the women's singles of the Mentone tennis tournament. The score was 6-4, 6-4.

In the afternoon Miss Wills and J. H. Van Alen, of Brooklyn, were defeated by Henri Cochet and Mlle. Vlasto, of France, 6-2, 6-2, in the international doubles for the cup of the nations.

The California girl played a somewhat slow and listless game against Senorita De Alvarez, who made Miss Wills race about the court in an effort to return well placed drives. Helen contented herself with a baseline game, and declined to go to the net.

Miss Wills was somewhat off her game. She took the first—this by her opponents faults rather than her own good playing. The second game, with the Spanish champion serving: Senorita de Alverez won at love. Miss Willsat the third game on service, but took the fourth.

With four to three against her, the California girl tightened up to her old form and won the last three games, allowing her opponent only one point.

Miss Wills' service was slow and uncertain and the long easy rallies showed her lacking in the usual court strategy. Although her overhand drives and occasional bullet shots to the baseline made up for much.

The second set ran very much the same as the first, Helen winning the first game, then losing the next two, against she pulled herself together, when the score was 3 to 2 against her and finished out the set easily allowing her opponent only one more game, the eighth.

The score:

First set—
Miss Wills
4 6 2 4 3 4 6 4 4 4—55
Senorita de Alvarez
2 4 4 4 2 5 0 3 1 0 0—27

Second set—
Miss Wills
4 6 2 4 2 4 4 6 2 4 4—60
Senorita de Alvarez
2 4 4 1 4 1 1 4 1 2—24

The doubles match between Miss Wills and J. H. Van Alen, paired against Henri Cochet and Mlle Vlasto was an easy victory for the French players. It was chiefly interesting by reason of the rallies between the two girls.

Henri Cochet, who ranks fourth in the French list, won the men's singles, defeating Count Von Kehling the Hungarian champion, 6-4, 3-6, 7-5, 3-6 6-6.

QUADRUPLE TIE POSSIBLE IN BIG TEN BASKETBALL

CHICAGO, March 7.—(AP)—The final week of the western conference basketball race finds the teams apparently headed toward a possible quadruple tie for the big ten championships.

Purdue leads, but only a direct reversal of form will keep Indiana and Michigan from making the claim to the title a three way affair and Iowa has a chance to tie for first place. Wisconsin, whom Indiana must meet has lost the last seven starts and Northwestern, blocking Michigan's path to a joint claim to the pennant has dropped four straight.

The Boilermakers closed their season last week, defeating Illinois and Northwestern to take the lead. The Illini ahead as the week started lost twice to drop into a tie with Ohio State for fifth place. Indiana won from both Illinois and Northwestern to tie for second with Michigan, which ended a two weeks spectacular climb by running up the highest score of the winter, 44 to 28, against Ohio last night.

The 107 points made by Captain George Spalding in Purdue's 12 game lead the individual scoring among western conference basketball players and bid fair to stand as the record for the 1926 big ten season.

Polante Sets New Record

TIJUANA, March 7.—(AP)—Polante a two-year-old, full brother to General Thatcher owned by the Nevada Stock Farm, won the juvenile stakes at four and one half furlongs today in 54 1-5 seconds, one second slower than the track record. Short Price was second and Sergeant Seth was third.

BRADY AND WILLIAMS FALL IN FOUR-BALL PLAY

MIAMI, Fla., March 7.—(AP)—Favorites in all matches with one exception survived the first day's play in the international four-ball golf tournament which began today over the Miami Country club course.

Contrary to expectations, Mike Brady and Eddie Williams, his club partner, succumbed to the slashing offensive launched by Cyril Walker, former national open champion, and Pat Doyle, former Irish titleholder, one up. Doyle substituted for Jack Hutchinson after the latter had announced his inability to participate on account of a quarantine ban detaining him in Nassau, Bahamas.

The largest gallery of the day trailed Gene Sarazen, former national open champion, and Leo Diegel, Canadian open champion, who defeated John Golden and Joe Boyd, four and three. MacDonald Smith and "Wild Bill" Mehlhorn had little difficulty in downing Jack Rodgers and Leonard Schmutte, 6 and 5.

The Chicago team of Bobby Cruickshank and Al Espinosa took an early lead and maintained the advantage during the greater part of the play in defeating Bill Damen and Larry Nabholtz, 5 and 3.

One of the principal matches of the day witnessed the victory of Willie MacFarlane, national open champion, and Tommy Armour, Florida west coast champion, over Bill Fairman and Willie Dow, the Hialeah team. The local team fought the titleholders to a standstill for 34 holes, but went down 3 and 1.

Joe Kirkwood, trick shot artist, and Joe Turnesa, the Chicago team, downed Willie Klein, Miami open champion, and Jock Forrester, 5 and 3.

Johnny Farrell, new Florida open champion, paired with Tommy Kerrigan downed the Canadian team of Andy Kay and Charley Murray, 2 and 1, while the Cuici Brothers, Al and Henry, went down before Clarence Hackner and Walter Hampton 2 and 1.

The "Y" Emps will without doubt present the following starting array: Lambert, center; forwards, Falcone and Barber; guards, D'Atri and Smith.

The game will start at 7:15 p. m. sharp.

TWO YOUNGSTERS ARRESTED AS TICKET SPECULATORS

Boston, March 7.—(AP)—Noting the absence of ticket speculators about the Boston arena at recent hockey games and boxing bouts, the police investigated and arrested two small boys as agents of the speculators.

The police claimed today that the boys mingled in the crowd selling tickets at the highest prices they could secure and in return got a small percentage from the speculators who supervised the sales from a safe distance.

The boys, after implicating the speculators, were turned over to their parents. The names of the speculators, however, were given to the federal authorities and it was expected that they will be prosecuted for failure to file income tax returns on their ticket sales.

AGGIES CLOSE BASKETBALL SEASON WITH VICTORY OVER RHODE ISLAND

(Special to The Bulletin.)

STORRS, March 7.—The Connecticut Aggies closed a successful basketball season here last night by giving Rhode Island State a decisive 43-29 trimming on the Hawley armory court.

Connecticut's quintet was on edge for the contest, following their surprising defeat at the hands of Rhody a week ago, and last night the Storrs five was out to even up the score.

The game proved to be no walkaway for Connecticut, however, and the score fails to indicate how close the rival fives battled on even terms, with the lead alternating. Then Connecticut's superiority finally asserted itself and as the half progressed the Aggies took a commanding lead.

Then when there was but three minutes left in the half and the score stood 22-8, Haire of Rhode Island went on a private scoring rampage. He made one from the foul line, and three from the floor for a total of 7 points, bringing his team's total to 15 as the half ended, Connecticut leading 22-15.

Eddy of Connecticut connected for two field baskets at the start of the second half, after which Rhode Island rallied and threw in four field goals in rapid succession. This brought the score to 26-22, with the Aggies leading by a scant three points.

Connecticut's defense then stiffened checking the Rhode Island attack. At the same time the Storrs five loosened its offense, and from then on displayed an all-around superiority over the Rhode Island five.

Last night's contest was the last college court game for three Connecticut seniors, two of whom are from eastern Connecticut. They are Gerald Allard of Putnam, Paul Bitgood of Danielson, and William Makofski of Schenectady, N. Y. All played fast basketball and gave a fine exhibition of playing in their final game.

FIGHT FANS WORKING TO LEGALIZE CHICAGO BOUTS

CHICAGO, March 7.—(AP)—Friends of pugilism here today set to work earnestly to secure passage of a measure to legalize boxing in Chicago, following announcement last night that Jack Dempsey had agreed to defend his heavyweight boxing title against Harry Wills here on Labor Day.

Floyd Fitzsimmons, midwest promoter, who has signed contracts of both champion and challenger, indicated tonight that favorable action by the voters April 13 is virtually all that is necessary to bring the bout here.

"Dempsey and I are satisfied with the proposals and backing of the Chicago bidders," Fitzsimmons said. Wills has assured me that anything I do to get the champion in the ring will be satisfactory to him."

The fight was talked in terms of days and dollars yesterday when Dempsey and Fitzsimmons conferred with a group of Chicagoans representing the Coliseum Athletic club, a South Bend, Ind., syndicate, and several individual sportsmen.

"Personally, I'd like to see the battle held at Chicago," the promoter asserted. "And even if Chicago does not pass the boxing bill" he pointed out, "there are several towns nearby which might vote otherwise, and the match could be held there. No contracts have yet been signed with any group of promoters."

Dempsey left last night for California and Fitzsimmons followed tonight. They plan to go into camp within two weeks, at an undesignated place, where the champion will start training for the match with the negro challenger.

The championship battle if held here would be, under the state law, for ten rounds. The state boxing commission, as yet unappointed, is empowered to decide whether bouts are to be for a decision or no decision.

This spring's primaries give Illinois cities their first opportunity to lift the ban on boxing which has obtained for more than a decide. The Illinois legislature in 1925 passed the measure legalizing the sport, subject to the individual cities vote as to whether or not they want boxing.

As soon as one city takes favorable action, the governor is to appoint a state boxing commission. By recent action of the city council, the boxing question goes on a separate ballot for vote in the Chicago primaries of April 13.

According to plans which promoters announced in connection with yesterday's conferences, the Dempsey-Wills match will be held at Riverview park, a large private amusement center. An arena would have to be built.

STRONG BOX STOLEN AT NEW LONDON FOUND SUNDAY MORNING IN THE WOODS

(Special to The Bulletin).

NEW LONDON, March 7—Two more burglaries were reported to the police Saturday night, the reports being received within five minutes of each other. Both breaks were perpetrated in the same manner and were of the same character as those which took place two weeks ago, which indicates that all four jobs were performed by the same crooks.

The first break was reported at 8.30 o'clock when a telephone message stated that the residence of Frank Frottas, a Bank street merchant of 16 Williams street, had been entered. Hardly had the report been booked an another telephone message from Peter Carried Herman Staab, 28 Brook street, stated that his home had been entered. Both breaks occurred during the absence of members of the families.

Patrolmen Augustus Ray and Clarence Martin were assigned to conduct an investigation. The officers visited the Frottas house where they found that the crooks had entered the house by prying open a rear window and through which they easily entered the house. A search of the house was made, but no plunder was discovered missing. At the home of Staab entrance was gained by a front window being jimmied. Here the crooks ransacked this place and found a small bank which contained a quantity of pennies, which they took, as they did a strong box which continued bank books, bonds, insurance papers, etc., and a gold watch, chain and penknife. The crooks did not leave any clues, but this morning a recreation seeker in walking through the woodland near the Perry ice houses, on Bayonet St., discovered the safety box and its contents. The police were notified of the discovery and Sergeants Nelson Smith and John Cavanaugh were sent to the woods where they took charge of the loot and returned it to Staab. The houses entered are within about 300 yards of each other and the two residences burglarized two weeks ago were within a very short distance of each other.

TWO COAST GUARD SAILORS LOCKED UP SATURDAY NIGHT

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, March 7—Members of the United States coast guard stationed at the state pier, were about the city Saturday night in large numbers and some of them resorted to indulging in drink in order to have a good time in their own way. As a result, two members of the prohibition enforcement agency are prisoners at the police station with battered heads for they precipitated a battle with the police and in order to subdue them the officer used his night-stick with telling effect. The sailors arrested are Alfred J. Heriot, 34, a member of coast guard patrol boat 333 and Daniel Carr, 23, of coast guard patrol boat. Heriot will be in the police court tomorrow morning, charged with being drunk and resisting an officer, while Carr will be charged with being drunk, using profane language and interfering with an officer.

Patrolman John Clifford was on Union street, near the corner of Methodist street, about 10 o'clock when he observed Heriot came from a house in an intoxicated condition. The first automobile that was parked on Union street that Heriot came upon received the attention of the sailor, who started to bang the machine with his fists and to kick violently at the wheels and spokes. When the officer remonstrated with Heriot the sailor became hostile, so he was placed under arrest. All went well until just after Clifford and his prisoner had crossed State street. Carr suddenly appeared from the same house that Heriot had left a few minutes before, leaping upon the officer. Carr attempted to rescue his companion. A fight ensued and the two sailors and Clifford fought and to protect himself Clifford sent Heriot to the ground with a blow on the head. He then directed his attention to Carr and with another blow of the night-stick the latter went to the ground. About that time, Patrolman Dennis Cavanaugh, who was off duty and in his automobile at the corner of State and Union streets, and who had witnessed the fight between his associate officer and the sailors, jumped from his auto and went to the assistance of Clifford. About the same time Patrolman Braxton Hill, who was on duty on State street and who had been attracted by a large crowd that had collected took a hand in the fight and the three officers escorted the troublesome sailors to the police station. After the sailors had been locked up they were examined by officers and as Heriot was bleeding freely from a scalp wound, the coast guard authorities were notified and visited the police station. The surgeon received permission to take the injured sailor to the state pier hospital, where the wound was sewed up, after which Heriot was returned to the station. Prior to await his court trials Carr's injuries were of a less serious nature and did not require medical attention. Heriot was demonstrative in his utterances while awaiting the arrival of the coast guard surgeon and made threats that he intended to "get" Clifford at an early date.

Practically all the troubles that the police experiences with the federal forces stationed here are those connected with the coast guard and a misunderstanding between the civil authorities and the coast guardsmen, has been anticipated a long time. So turbulent have been the acts of the coast guard sailors of late that for the first time since the World war, a provost guard was placed on duty about the streets several nights ago. He, however, was not in the vicinity of the row and did not appear at the police station until about two hours after the fight occurred.

A State street restaurant, a place frequented greatly by sailors and where several disturbances have occurred, has caused an officer to be stationed at the place throughout Saturday nights to quell any acts of violence by the sailors.

New London had a case of kidnapping this afternoon, but so far as is known the authorities are making little or no effort to take a hand in the matter. Adam Lombroski, 80 Potter street, appeared at the police station late today and declared that recently Jacob Sapala, 49 Swissel street, Jersey City, N. J., appeared at the former's home and left an infant for safe keeping. This afternoon about 3:30 o'clock, according to Dombroski, a woman appeared in front of the Dombroski home and observing the child, which was about two and one-half years of age, called to the child, who toddled to the woman. The latter seized the child and retreated through Potter street. Following the police being notified of the alleged kidnapping a watch was maintained on trains and busses leaving the city, but no trace of the woman was obtained.

An automobile owned and driven by George Ellon, 21 Thames street, was in collision this evening with a car owned and operated by Ernest Johnson, of Broad street extension, Waterford. Both cars were damaged. Mrs. Honora Brennan, wife of Patrolman Michael O'Neill, 28 Ashcraft road, died late this afternoon at the private hospital, where she had been under treatment but three days. Mrs. O'Neill's health had been impaired some time, but until last Friday her condition did not appear serious and it was then that she was transferred to the hospital. Besides her husband, Mrs. O'Neill is survived by a son, Walter O'Neill and a daughter, Miss Mary O'Neill, both of this city.

The bearers were Tillotson Daniels, Chester Johnson, Charles Linski and Seymour Rowley. Burial was in St. Mary's cemetery.

Augustus C. Stears of Quaker Hill, Waterford, who suffered a fractured leg several weeks ago by being run down by an automobile on State street, was among the patients discharged at Lawrence Memorial Associated hospital Saturday. Other patients discharged were Anthony Simmons, of the United States Coast Guard patrol boat, 126, state pier; Mrs. Paul Stagrus and infant son, Waterford; Master Edward Ryan, 301 Huntington street; George Exanakas, United States Coast Guard destroyer Downs, state pier; Charles Morris, Niantic; Manuel Egitto, United States Coast Guard patrol boat, 127, state pier; Alfred O'Neill, United States Coast Guard destroyer Jouett, state pier, and Joseph and Lillian Dodo and Kenneth Latham of Norwich.

An automobile owned and operated by R. Noel Williams, 25 Washington street, Westerly, struck and injured Beatrice Enos of Bayonet street extension yesterday afternoon, the child sustaining only bumps and bruises. Williams was driving his car through Main street and at the corner of Federal street, the child started to cross the street. Before Williams could bring the car to a stop the child was struck and knocked to the pavements, but not with great force. Williams assisted the child to the automobile and then had her conveyed to her home.

An automobile owned by Enrico Carnarolis 75 School street, while parked on Bank street, near Lake A, late yesterday afternoon, was bumped by a machine owned by the proprietor of the Atlantic restaurant. Carnarolis car was damaged.

Three automobiles were stolen from the streets of New Haven last night and today the New London authorities were requested to maintain a lookout for the stolen autos. The cars were a Marmon, registration N-57975; Ford coupe, 3324, and an Essex coach 5899, all of Connecticut registrations.

Clifford H. Belden left his automobile parked for the night in front of his residence, 8 Nathan Hale street, last night and this forenoon when he emerged from the machine he discovered that a thief had visited the auto during the night and had stolen a robe. Mr. Belden reported the theft to the police.

Michael L. O'Connell, 561 Montauk avenue, complained to the police late Saturday night that one of his cottages, located at 62 Alewife avenue, had been used recently by some one and without the knowledge and consent of the owner. O'Connell requested that a watch of the place be made by the authorities.

Seized at Norwalk by state police officers Thursday, when the crew attempted to land a cargo of liquor at the wharf of the Norwalk Country club, the 42-foot gasoline launch, "Not Us", was brought into port late Friday night by a United States coast guard patrol boat crew and is now tied up at the state pier. The craft, which is documented as hailing from Greenport, L. I., was seized several months ago and brought into port where her crew was charged with violation of the navigation laws. After being held in port several days the craft was released. The craft has long been under suspicion as being a rum-runner.

Mr. and Mrs. John G. Comstock of Ocean avenue, are entertaining their son, Captain R. G. Comstock, of Norfolk, Va.

Mrs. Charles F. Baker, 32 Latham street, Groton, is able to be out daily, having been confined to her bed several weeks as the result of a fractured arm, which she sustained by falling on a slippery sidewalk.

Patrick Connelly had not recovered from a bayrum jag he took the day before when he was presented in the police court Saturday as a vagrant and for intoxication. He said he was waiting for work at Fishers Island and that he would be employed as soon as the weather moderated so that the work could be done. Connolly was at the bus station when he was arrested. There he was annoying passengers and making himself so familiar with them that one of the drivers asked Policeman John Courtney to take Connolly away. Connolly had consumed all but a gill of the bay rum. It was shown that he had made a lodging place of the tramp room in the police station the past four nights, so Judge Prince committed him to the workhouse for three months as a vagrant and to jail for thirty days as a drunk. Generally the Fishers Island story is a summer yarn, but Connolly proposed to make use of it the year round.

Prizes are to be offered at Chapman Technical school for the best "creed" for the American Legion. Many pupils will compete for the prize.

CONN. COLLEGE STUDENTS ANNOYED BY SHEIKS

(Special to the Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, March 7.—Officials of the Connecticut College for Women, as well as some of the students have become annoyed of late because of the actions of New London sheiks, and on two occasions complaints within the last week have been made to the police in an effort to relieve the students from their alleged annoyance. A few days ago at one of the dormitories it was alleged that young men were loitering about the place in the role of "peeping Tom". Two policemen, one of them Sergeant Patrick Murphy, speeded to the college in the police automobile, started a search and observed a figure lurking in the darkness. As the officers approached the fellow, he started to walk away and when commanded to stop he refused to and instead started to run. Sergeant Murphy pulled his revolver and fired into the air, in an effort to intimidate the fellow and cause him to come to a halt, but instead of doing so the peeper ran only the faster and disappeared in the darkness. Last night about 10.30 one of the students who is a lodger on Mohegan avenue, communicated with the police, stating that some of the girls had been annoyed because of the actions of three young men in an automobile, the occupants of the machine having made insulting utterances to the young students. Sergeant Murphy and Patrolman Augustus Day were sent to Deshon street where the automobile in which the annoyers alleged to be was parked, but when the officers arrived there the automobile had been driven away. The officers made a search in the vicinity of the college, but the car they sought was not found.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

Life Savers Dividend

Life Savers, Inc., directors, have declared the first regular quarterly dividend of .40 per share, payable April 1st to stockholders of record March 15th.

Life Savers' business for 1926 has started at a pace which indicates record breaking gross. January sales of the company's regular line of products exceeded the same amount a year ago by 15 per cent. An interesting feature is that this comparison takes no account of the sales of Life Savers Fruit products, a hard candy brand which was added to the regular brands a few months ago.

There has been a remarkable demand for this new product and as the company plans a substantial expansion of their advertising and publicity campaigns, much more than normal ratio of gross increase is anticipated.

The company is well stocked in raw materials including peppermint.

Broadway Theatre

Since the local talent show presented on Feb. 22, the management has received numerous requests for a return engagement of that sensational program and as a result five of the principal hits will again be seen tonight, in an entirely new program. Not only will this announcement please those who witnessed them before but it will give the many hundreds who were turned away, due to the capacity house, another chance. We would advise however an early attendance. The program will open with that powerful story "Siege" by Samuel Hopkins Adams which is on the screen with Virginia Valli and Eugene O'Brien. It starts at seven, followed by the stake offerings, in which are featured again Zim's Novelty orchestra; Mary Cosentino, dancer; John Diachyshyn, boy wonder pianist; George La Fleur and Edward Slater the wonderful singers of Willimantic and two additional attractions—they being Mr. Louis Tringe, the local accordeon wizard and Jerome Dion of Taftville, the exceptional saxophonist. Again we remind you to start early, the doors will be open at 6:30.

Recital by Dancing Classes

A programme of interpretive dances will be given at the State armory, Friday evening, April 16, by pupils of Mrs. Edward Andrews' classes. The programme will include solo numbers by fourteen dancers and two group numbers.

Breed Theater

The Tower of Lies: a Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer production, directed by Victor Seastrom, will doubtlessly be ranked as one of the outstanding six productions of the year.

This picture opened last night at the Breed theater and received the acclaim that audiences all over the country have been giving it.

Without doubt the popularity of Norma Shearer and Lon Chaney co-stars, add to the attraction of the production but Seastrom's directorial genius has given the picture a touch of appeal that cannot go unheeded. We had thought that Seastrom had reached the pinnacle in He Who Gets Slapped in which Miss Shearer and Chaney also appeared but that picture could never attain the height reached by The Tower of Lies.

The picture is a screen adapation of Selma Lagerlof's popular novel The Emperor of Portugallia. The continuity was prepared by Agnes Christine Johnston, who has many successful scenarios to her credit and who must have gotten everything out of the original story for her screen version.

The two are supported by a remarkable cast, which includes: Ian Keith, Claire McDowell, William Haines Edward Connelly, David Torrence, Anna Schaefer, Leo White and Bodil Rosing.

The Tower of Lies must be commended for the heights and depths reached and for pathos which has been translated to the screen. There have been few pictures which grip at the heartstrings and bring smiles of joy at unexpected moments as does this one.

Butler, sanitary engineer of Haiti, has placed an order with Dodge Brothers dealer in Port au Prince for 4 fleet of Dodge Brothers cars and Graham Brothers trucks to be used in sanitary work on the island, according to information received by Dodge Brothers, Inc. recently. The fleet, as soon as delivered, will displace trucks of another make which have been used by the Sanitary department of Haiti.

FINANCIAL AND COMMERCIAL

WEEKLY FINANCIAL REVIEW

NEW YORK, March 7.—(AP)—Overshadowing all other developments in the week's financial markets was the sensational break in stock prices, the greatest in history, followed by an irregular recovery, the ultimate effect of which was the chief subject of discussion in Wall street when the week closed. Stock trading had no sooner returned to normal proportions, however, when the Briand ministry fell in France as a result of its legislative defeat on the sales tax, and French francs crumbled over 12 points to around 3.60 cents, or within striking distance of the year's low of 3.54 1-2 cents.

While opinion of professional stock market observers is still divided as to the next definite trend of prices, there was an almost unanimity of agreement on several points. These were: 1, that speculative operations on the bear side had been grossly overdone in many issues; 2, that the technical position of the market has been improved by the recent reaction; 3, that the decline was not associated with any actual change in business, although the future trend of business is still a controversial subject; 4, that the basis of security values was not greatly altered by inflation of commodity prices of business generally, and 5, that there is no strain on the credit situation, which has been a forerunner of most of the violent declines of the past.

In some quarters, the unsettling rise in stock prices is looked for which the oils and coppers, which had not yet participated extensively in the recent advance. In the forefront while in other quarters opinions equally as positive are held that the coalition movement which has been in progress over the years is definitely at an end and that a bear market is under way.

The morning service of the Taftville congregational church, Sunday, was in charge of the pastor, Rev. Edwin Gordon Grindle, was a lenten subject, our Saviour as Shepherd. The anthem for the offertory was Nearer, My God, to Thee, with solo parts sung by Mrs. William J. McNeilly. In the evening there was the regular meeting of the Young Peoples society of Christian Endeavor in the church parlors. The topic considered was Perseverance in What? and the leader was Miss Dorothy Hunt.

225 CAR OWNERS CAME UNDER NEW LAW ON "FINANCIAL RESPONSIBILITY"

The state motor vehicle department required 225 owners of motor vehicles in Connecticut to furnish proof of financial responsibility during the month of January, it is revealed by the first announcement concerning the administration of the new law on this subject. This was due to the fact that seventy-four of them caused property damage during the month, fifty-three were convicted of speeding, forty-two of reckless driving and twenty-nine of intoxication while driving, twenty-three caused personal injury and four evaded responsibility after an accident.

Given the alternative of filing an insurance certificate, a bond, a real estate lien, collateral or money as proof of their financial responsibility to satisfy any claim for possible future damages of at least $10,000 by reason of personal injury to or the death of any person and for damages of at least $1,000 to property, 170 promptly filed certificates of insurance. Thirty-eight failed to respond to registered letters stating the requirements imposed upon them under the new law and are now on the registration suspension list. Several of those who filed insurance certificates had not previously held insurance before they came under the provisions of the financial responsibility law by their faulty driving as noted above.

Since the Connecticut law on this subject is believed to be the first of its kind anywhere, considerable interest has been manifested inits operation. The law is often referred to as a "compulsory insurance" law, which is a misnomer, as it provides four methods other than insurance by which to prove financial responsibility, and none of the methods is required of people who have not, by their own acts, made themselves liable to its provision.

For the administration of this new phase of the motor vehicle department's activities, a separate division has been established, which deals exclusively with the cases of registrants whose cars have been involved in any of the offenses named in the first paragraph.

One effect of the law has been to cause an increased demand from insurance companies for certified copies of the driving record of certain drivers who have presumably applied to them for insurance. It is believed this additional checking of drivers' records will have a tendency to promote safety on the public highways, for drivers will realize that, if they are unable to furnish satisfactory proof of financial responsibility, their right to operate cars of their own on Connecticut highways will be forfeited.

GREAT ENTHUSIASM AT JEWISH RELIEF MEETING

On Sunday morning the Norwich United Jewish Relief committee held the second organization meeting at the Y. M. H. A. rooms and despite the inclemency of the weather the meeting was well attended. Max Hanover presided and was enthusiastically supported by the entire committee. Several important preliminaries were quietly arranged with the cooperation of the committee. The consensus of the entire gathering was that a very able committee was needed to confer with the Jewish communities adjacent to Norwich, urging upon them the necessity of active cooperation in this relief drive. The following were appointed to act in this committee: Benjamin Schleifer, Joseph Polsky, Dr. Meyer S. Goldberg, Solomon Wechsler and Charles Jacobson.

On a question of the chairman as to how many of those present were willing to give a great part of their time and effort to make the relief drive a success, the response of the gathering was a one hundred per cent. pledge that each and every one will do his or her duty in this humanitarian cause. A suggestion made by Harry M. Land that a supper should be held on Wednesday evening March 10th, where all Jewish people should be invited for the purpose of outlining the drive, was met with great applause. The chairman put the suggestion to a vote in the form of a motion, and it was unanimously carried. In the enthusiasm that followed the vote upon this conference supper the ladies present began holding voluntary contributions to cover the expense of the supper, and in less than five minutes enough bills were heaped upon the table to defray the entire cost of the supper. President of the Y. M. H. A. Dr. Meyer S. Goldberg, stated that the Y. M. H. A. will be greatly pleased to have the relief committee use their rooms for the supper and the offer was accepted with thanks. It was therefore voted that a supper should be held at the Y. M. H. A. room at Odgpic hall on Wednesday evening, March 10th, at seven o'clock and that the Jewish people of Norwich should be invited to attend. Also to invite able speakers for the occasion who possess first hand information of the unfortunate conditions of the Jews of Europe. The committee also intends to outline the scope of the campaign. It was also voted that no contributions of any kind are to be asked at this supper and that children under sixteen will not be admitted. For the complete arrangement of the supper the following committee volunteered their services: Mrs. Elkin Smith, Mrs. Tony Adlopoz, Mrs. Alexander Manes, A. Bruckner, George Blum, and Mrs. Daniel Polsky. Several members present offered to donate the use of their stores for permanent relief headquarters, if the committee finds the location desirable for this purpose. The following committee was entrusted with the office of selecting and securing a suitable place for headquarters: Harry M. Land, Rudolph Henschel and Daniel Polsky. The use of an automobile for the work of the suburban committee was also offered, and was accepted with thanks. One member donated the cost of installing the use of a telephone during the drive. The Norwich United Jewish Relief committee appeals to the Jewish people of Norwich for volunteer workers as solicitors in this campaign. Every man and woman wishing to enlist is asked to apply to Max Hanover or any other member of the relief committee.

GILBERT FURNITURE SHOP DAMAGED BY FIRE

Fire, thought to have been caused by an overheated stove, caused about $2,500 damage at the Gilbert furniture shop on Willow street Saturday noon. The fire was discovered by Leon Bruckner of Talman street about 12:30 o'clock and he ran to the central fire station nearby and notified the department. The firemen responded quickly and sizing up the situation Chief Howard L. Stanton ordered box 225, Franklin and Willow streets, pulled, this calling out additional apparatus.

Flames were shooting through the roof when firemen arrived, but after a fight of about 45 minutes the blaze was under control. The result was bounded shortly after 1 o'clock a large quantity of furniture in the building made ready food for the flames.

The building, close to 80 years old, is occupied by the N. S. Gilbert & Sons company as a repair shop, factory and store room. The second story, contents and roof were badly damaged. The building is insured but there was no insurance on the stock. It was just 50 years ago last week that the Gilbert factory on the same location was badly damaged by fire.

MRS. HINDLEY SPEAKER AT SPIRITUAL ACADEMY

Two splendid addresses were given at the Spiritual academy Sunday by Mrs. Harriet Hindley of Providence, who chose for her afternoon topic "The Crucifixion and its Relation to Modern Spiritualism," and for the evening topic, "The Resurrection, the Proof of Spiritualism." She held her congregation's spell bound by her direct and forceful statements and later demonstrated the law of psychic phenomena; her messages were most convincing and very accurate.

The beautiful soprano solo at the offertory, by Mrs. Herbert Stewart, was entitled One Sweetly Solemn Thought (Ambrose) and charmed the hearers by its delightful and masterly rendering.

President Dowsett announced the appearance next Sunday, at the academy, of Annette P. Conyers, the famous psychometrist, a mediumistic gift, unique in the psychic realm.

FINANCE COMMITTEE NAMED FOR UNITED CHURCH

An item on the United Church calendar reads:

At the adjourned church meeting last Tuesday night it was voted that the moderator appoint a finance committee to serve as contemplated. Believing that the selection of such a committee should not be merely his own, the moderator has secured the help of fourteen men. Each of the following men has separately suggested to him a list of names for selection: Messrs. Bishop, Bliven, Campbell, Carey, Charles Coit, H. F. Dawley, Gibbs Higgins, Lanz, Lester, Peale, Thompson, Trankla and Wells.

Upon the generous advice of the above named men the moderator appoints as the finance committee the following: Dr. Hugh B. Campbell, Herbert B. Cary, H. F. Dawley, H. M. Lerou, Charles S. Holbrook, Walter F. Lester and Harold E. Robbins.

PARISH SCHOOL PUPIL SINGS ST. THERESE HYMN

A composition new to this country, a hymn to St. Therese, affectionately called "the Little Flower of Jesus," was very pleasantly sung at the children's mass in St. Patrick's church Sunday by Miss Alice Murphy, a parish school pupil daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John J. Murphy, of Broad street. She sustained the solo parts well and the organist, Henry J. LaFontaine joined her in the refrain with his notably fine tenor.

NORWICH TOWN

Shortly after one o'clock Saturday afternoon the death of Mrs. John Leo Hasson (Ellen Grace O'Connell) occurred at Backus hospital where she had been critically ill only a few days. She was the daughter of Mrs. Mary McNally O'Connell and the late John J. O'Connell of 208 West Town street. Mrs. Hasson was born in Norwich Town February 21, 1895. In June, 1925, she was united in marriage with John Leo Hasson, by Rev. Charles W. Brennan, pastor of the Sacred Heart church, Norwich Town. Mrs. Hasson was a devout member of this church, was also active in the parish work, being a loyal member of the Altar society. She also was a member of the Catholic Ladies of Columbus.

Of exceptionally bright and cheery personality, she was a most successful teacher, graduating from Norwich Free Academy, later from Willimantic Normal school. She was a successful teacher at Laurel Hill school, being principal for ten years previous to her marriage. The announcement of Mrs. Hasson's death came as a shock to relatives and friends, who for some time have been anxious for her welfare.

Besides her twin daughters only a few days old, Mrs. Hasson leaves her husband who at the time of their marriage was superintendent of construction work for the H. Wales Lines company; her mother, a sister, Miss Julia O'Connell, of the town treasurer's office in the court house; and two brothers, John and James O'Connell, all of Norwich Town.

The sympathy of many friends has been expressed to the bereaved family.

WARNS OF THE JUDGMENT IN LENTEN SERMON

As the subject for the third in his series of special lenten sermons at St. Patrick's church, Rev. Mathew Brady, spiritual director and professor at St. Thomas Seminary, Hartford, spoke Sunday evening upon The Judgment, addressing an earnest appeal to his large congregation to take thought of preparation for that day when the Lord of all will mete out the final judgments, eternal punishment or eternal blessedness. Today, said the preacher, is the day of mercy. That day will be the day of justice and Christ will say to the sinner "Was not the time I gave you for penance long enough?" Believing in that dread day, how can we, the speaker asked, continue to live our lives in sin?

Speaking at the opening of his sermon of the insatiable thirst of the human mind for knowledge and the rewards that come to those who make discoveries in science and other fields, Father Brady said that this thirst cannot compare with the desire for knowledge of what lies beyond the portals of death. Hundreds of religions give answer to the question, but the followers of Christ have a knowledge that has the certitude of the word of the Son of God himself. He tells us that there is a future life beyond the grave and that our state there depends upon our life here. He tells us that there is heaven for the good, hell for the wicked and purgatory to purge our souls.

The preacher gave an impressive word picture of the final judgment day and asked his congregation to think how they should stand before that judgment. What have you done with the talents I gave you? the Judge will ask. How have you followed the tables of the law? What regard have you had for your fellow man, for your family? What have you done with the graces I have given you? What use have you made of your education?

That great gathering will be separated into two groups. To one He will say "Come ye blessed." To the other "Depart ye cursed into eternal punishment." Why does not this picture of the great final judgment claim our attention today? Is our faith less? Are we too preoccupied? There is no excuse that will avail to explain indifference to this coming day of judgment. How shall we continue to live in sin if we believe in this judgment and sin that will increase the weight of that judgment. For any one of us a judgment day may come at any time, within an hour, a day, a week, a year, and the sentence of our judge will be ratified in the final judgment. Watch and pray for ye know not at what hour the Lord cometh, for death may bring the judgment any day. Do we fear that judgment, to stand with our sins in our hand and await His eternal sentence?

The service closed with benediction in which the music was rendered with pleasing effect by the choir under the direction of Organist Henry J. LaFontaine. The Veni Creator was by a quartette, Roderick J. Sullivan, Walter LaFontaine, J. Kelly and H. J. LaFontaine, whose voices blended harmoniously and the O Salutaris was rendered by Walter LaFontaine in fine voice. The choir sang the Magnificat from Mozart's credit mass, which was done with fine effect.

STATE'S LANDSCAPE ARCHITECT TO SPEAK IN NORWICH

Norwich council, D. C. T. will have as one of the speakers at the joint meeting of Norwich and New London's mayors and members of the common councils of these cities, H. A. Bauer, landscape architect for the state highway department of Connecticut.

The commercial traveler's are urging the embellishment of the highways of eastern Connecticut and the illuminating the Mohegan Trail from New London to Webster, Mass. This will be the first time the newly appointed landscape architect will be heard in eastern, Connecticut and he has been asked to speak upon the work he intends to take up on the trunk lines in this end of the state.

The meeting is to be held on the evening of Thursday, March 18, with a business luncheon at 7 o'clock at the Wauregan hotel, followed by the business meeting.

River Road Illumination

Secretary C. W. Pearson has the following letter to James B. Palmer of Lisbon, who has offered to furnish poles and set them, commending Mr. Palmer, in behalf of Norwich council, for his fine public spirit.

Norwich, Conn.,
March6th, 1926.

Mr. J. B. Palmer,
R. F. D. No. 4,
Norwich, Conn.
Dear Mr. Palmer:—

As you are aware, the United Commercial Travelers are desirous of having the Mohegan Trail electrically lighted, its entire length from New London to Webster, Mass.

The town of Montville has just completed the lighting of the Trail from the Waterford town line to Norwich. This gives a continuous stretch of 17 miles from New London to Lisbond town line at Blissville.

Now if the town of Lisbon will carry the torch on to the point where the River road is lighted, an unbroken chain of upwards of 25 miles, of the Mohegan Trail, will be taken care of in this respect.

The Commercial Travelers not with admiration, your splendid offer to furnish poles and set them, in order that the River road to Jewett City may become a well lighted public thoroughfare, and we hasten to commend you for your very generous act. There is no doubt in our minds, that the towns of Griswold and Plainfield will do their bit towards lighting the sections, passing through their towns, and so on along the entire length of the Trail. RESOLUTIONS PASSED BY KNIGHTS OF COLUMBIA

WASHINGTON, March 7—(AP)—A mass meeting at Poli's theater today, under the auspices of the Knights of Columbus of the District of Columbia, passed resolutions protesting against "the policy of religious persecution being followed by the present government of Mexico."

Representative Boylan, democrat, New York, one of the principal speakers, who demanded in the house last week that the United States sever diplomatic relations with Mexico, announced that he would introduce a bill asking that the United States "withdraw its recognition from this bolshevik and robber republic to the south until it amends its constitution on the grounds of decency, righteousness and justice." "American recognition," he said, "should no more be extended to Mexico than it should be offered to Soviet Russia."

The meeting, which was attended by persons of various religious faiths was told by Rabbi Abram Simon of the Washington Hebrew congregation, that "the Mexican constitution had apparently been written overnight" and showed signs of "constitutional delirium tremens."

The resolutions adopted at the mass meeting denounced the provisions of the Mexican constitution under which foreign religious teachers are being expelled from that country, "as endangering the progress of human liberty and as unworthy of a nation otherwise entitled to an honored place in the family of nations." Copies of the resolutions were ordered sent to Secretary Kellogg, Chairman Borah of the senate foreign relations committee, and Chairman Porter of the house foreign affairs committee.

FRENCH VIEW UNCLE SAM AS HARD-HEARTED CREDITOR

PARIS, March 7—(AP)—Americans in France have become quite used to, and usually take in the best of good humor, little digs on Uncle Sam's role as hard-hearted creditor, and their reputed habit of pouting on the clipping franc. In recent months they have had frequent opportunity of hearing all about this in cabarets and music halls and even from such casual acquaintances as taxi drivers and fellow passengers in busses and trams.

But once in a while there has been too much vindictiveness even for good nature and so, the newspaper Record, the American ambassador, Myron T. Herrick, was forced a few days ago to call the authorities' attention to a number of "impolite" songs on tap in the music halls. The offending ditties were then voluntarily withdrawn.

POETRY

The Quest

Often the view affrights me,
Of sweeps of stellar space;
Light of measured thousands
Of goodness give no trace.

In life, around, beneath me,
Harsh struggle looks the law;
And dreams of loving purpose
Seem rent, by savage claw,

And hearts so prone to warmness,
Are numb with woes that chill;
Souls that might scale the mountains,
With pain are dull and still.

And yet, my spirit, groping
'Mid the bewildering wild,
Feels a resistless stirring;
A Father calls his child.

Within amazing reaches,
And ways that stun the mind,
Within my deepest being,
A meaning, sure, I find.

Up from all lower strivings,
Out of our hopes and fears,
Comes forth the great revealing
That dries the bitterest tears.

Touched by undying splendor,
Aglow with light divine,
I fling the shadows from me;
The break of day is mine.

I turn to Thee, Great Spirit,
I know Thee as mine own;
I cannot wander from Thee,
I tread no path alone.

The Bibliomaniac's Prayer

Keep me, I pray, in wisdom's way,
That I may truths eternal seek;
I need protecting care today,
My purse is light, my flesh is weak.
So banish from my erring heart
All baleful appetites and lusts
Of Satan's fascinating art,
Of first editions, and of prints.
Direct me in some godly walk
Which leads away from book[illegible]
That I with plows dead and talk
May extra-illustrate my life.

But if, O Lord, it pleaseth Thee
To keep me in temptation's way,
I humbly ask that I may be
Most notably beset today:
Let my temptation be a book
Which I shall purchase, hold and read,
Whereon, when other men shall look,
They'll wail to know I got it cheap.
Oh, let it such a volume be
As in rare copperplates abounds,
Large paper, clean, and fair to see,
Uncut, unique, unknown to Lowndes.

Men use twice as much thread in sewing on a button as do women, but far more buttons, and yet when faced with an emergency are quite capable of sewing on their own buttons. An English gramophone company, celebrating its twentieth anniversary, says that the "most popular songs" in its long list have been and are, the "old favorites" and not the new songs. It puts at the top the following: The Floral Dance, Simon the Cellarer (a close second); The Kerry Dance, The Lute Player, The Sand of Dee, Blow Thou Winter Wind, The Bandelero. The Floral Dance is 12 years old, said a representative of the company "and its popularity in the face of the new jazz ditties of today seems to us remarkable. Simon the Cellarer is another ditty which threatens to live forever. On the other hand, the jazz songs, though they start with a tremendous rush, rarely live longer than 12 months."

CONFLICT FOR SEATS IN THE LEAGUE OF NATIONS COUNCIL

Crisis Continues Over the Election of Germany to Membership—Assembly at Geneva Adjourned Without Having Made Any Progress in the Enlargement of the Council—Frenzied Exchange of Visits Were Made Between Statesmen.

GENEVA, March 8—(AP)—No progress was made today in the crisis over the question of enlargement of the league of nations council. The opening session of the assembly convoked for the election of Germany adjourned tonight after a dramatic appeal by the president, Mr. Alfonso da Costa, former premier of Portugal, for harmony, without designating a day for the next meeting. In order to gain time to permit the reappearance of M. Briand at Geneva, the sub-committees of both assembly and council will take up auxiliary matters tomorrow.

The day closed with a continuation of the almost frenzied exchange of visits between the statesmen and with all parties to the conflict for council seats adhering rigidly to their original positions and openly proclaiming that they had no intention of receding one inch.

Count Quinones de Leon, Spanish ambassador to France, said: "Spain demands a permanent seat simultaneously with Germany. As for the idea of a sub-committee investigating how best to reconstruct the council, we do not fancy it."

The Brazilian spokesman explained the attitude of that country: "We are going to pursue our claim for a permanent seat to the end. We do not know what the end will be, but we are persevering. We cannot allow a whole continent to remain without permanent representation, and in this claim we have no Latin-American rivals."

The Swedish representative declared: "We will not agree to any present enlargement of the council even if Germany's approval is won for it."

The Polish delegates seemed gloomier, yet not less insistent, in their demand for a council seat.

Despite the undoubted crisis, members of the council not directly connected with the present conflict informed the Associated Press correspondent tonight that they deemed yesterday's conversations with Dr. Luther and Dr. Stresemann, the German delegates, helpful, in that they removed the spirit of vindictiveness engendered by the dispute. They therefore thought that, so might was the issue at stake, involving as it does the reconciliation of Europe and the whole destiny of the league of nations, a way should be discovered to adjust the crisis.

In their best judgment the proper procedure was the election of Germany to a permanent seat, and to have the entire problem of the reconstruction of the council then submitted for profound study. One point sugested was the adoption of a clear cut system of rotation for the non-permanent chairs.

Dr. Da Costa in his salutatory address warned the delegates that the league's life had reached a turning point, and besought them neither to make nor let others make depressing or paralyzing suggestions. Recalling Locarno, he asserted that its harmony had brought all peoples together in fraternity and hope for the opening up for making of an era of tranquility and happiness after all the anguish and suffering of the past.

"The league of nations," continued the president, "has no right to contemplate the remotest possibility of its own disappearance or even check. The present juncture is so decisive that we must feel the most complete confidence and obstinately refuse to admit that the vast dream of peace and progress might vanish at the very moment when it has begun to seem a beautiful reality, leaving mankind once more beneath the heel of all the forces of destruction which we had thought were vanquished."

Dr. Bello Codecido, former foreign minister of Chile, came out ally tonight in support of Brazil's candidacy for a permanent seat, if the council was enlarged. He believed Latin-Americans generally favored the Brazilian cause.

BODY OF YOUNG MAN FOUND IN HOUSATONIC RIVER

MILFORD, March 8—(AP)—Mystery surrounds the finding by two boys of the body of a young man at the foot of a 50-foot embankment in the Housatonic river, about a mile above the mouth of the Gulf refining company, here, shortly after 2 o'clock this afternoon. Milford police have as yet no clues to the identification of the man, which evidently had been in the water about a month.

There is nothing found in the clothes to indicate the name of the man. On the finger he wore a gold class ring with the initials, W. E. H. S., '24, and M. C., and the label in the coat shows that it was purchased at the store of J. Johnson and Son, Waterbury, Conn. Although his face is battered believed to have been caused by ice and snags in the river, there are no marks of violence on the body.

According to the description given of the police, the man was apparently about 25 years of age and was smooth shaved. He was well dressed, being attired in a steel blue suit, and wore no overcoat. Medical Examiner Dr. J. W. Fischer, following an autopsy, said that the cause of death was drowning and allowed the body to be taken to a local undertaking parlor.

The body was found half in the water and half on the land by two school boys, Leroy Blakeslee and Thomas Welch. Instead of notifying police they rushed to the Milford fire headquarters and told the story. Chief of Police J. H. Maher was called and accompanied by other officers he went to the spot. He then summoned Medical Examiner Fischer.

SPEEDY DISPOSITION OF CASE OF BIGAMIST

NEW YORK, March 8—(AP)—For the first time on record here, a bigamist was convicted and held for sentence today without having been indicted. The speedy disposition of the case was made possible by a law passed last year allowing a defendant accused of a felony to waive a grand jury hearing.

The convicted bigamist was Thomas Webber, 37, a masseur, who last September married Miss Ida Landarski, daughter of a New York real estate operator, she later learned he had been married in September, 1924 to Miss Irma Gleason of Chicago.

SENATE VOTES 51 TO 26 TO LEASE MUSCLE SHOALS

WASHINGTON, March 8—(AP)—Congress today approved appointment of a joint committee to negotiate bids for private leasing of Muscle Shoals.

A resolution drafted to carry out a recommendation of President Coolidge and already adopted by the house was accepted by the senate 51 to 26, and senate to conference.

The senate added two amendments One, by Senator Caraway, democrat, Arkansas, would require that surplus power developed at the big war-time project be distributed equitably to states adjoining Alabama. The other by Senator Lenroot, republican, Wisconsin, would give the joint committee until April 26 To submit a proposal to congress for lease of the project, instead of April 1 as voted by the house.

Proponents of the resolution led by Senator Heflin, democrat, Alabama, fought vigorously for its adoption without amendment to avoid the necessity of conference adjustment with the house and expedite disposal of a long pending problem. Opponents of private operation fought fruitlessly but with equal vigor to attach amendments to the resolution that would nullify its object.

DISPOSED OF $850,000 WORTH OF LIQUOR IN ONE TRIP

NEW YORK, March 8.—(AP)—Emanuel H. ("Mannie") Kessler, once the king of New York's bootleggers, who was indicted last week for falsifying his income tax returns, disposed of $850,000 worth of liquor in one trip from Europe he says in an interview in Collier's Weekly.

Clearing from Hamburg, Germany, with free trader's papers allowing him to dispose of his cargo anywhere on the North American coast, he said, he smuggled the entire cargo into New Jersey.

"People ask me whether the prohibition laws will ever be repealed," he said. "I don't see how they can be. Too many politicians and too many crooks are making big reputations or big money through prohibition."

CABLED PARAGRAPHS

Batteries at Tako Fort Shelled

TIENTSIN, March 8—(AP)—After an abortive attempt to shell the batteries at Taku fort yesterday, a squadron from Shantung province came up to Taku bar to dawn today and for two hours bombarded the fort, which is held by Kuominchun troops supporting the Peking government. The shore batteries replied vigorously, and shells flew over Taku which is at the mouth of the Pei river. Foreign and Chinese residents narrowly escaped being hit. Women and children evacuated the city, going toward Tientsin, 37 miles westward. Two foreign steamers were fired upon, one returning seaward and the other running the gauntlet without serious damage.

DISORDERS IN PARADE OF STRIKERS IN PASSAIC

PASSAIC, N. J., March 8.—(AP)—A flurry with police, involving an exchange of snowballs and jeers, broke up a march of striking mill workers through Clifton this afternoon before the parade had reached its objective.

There were no injuries and no arrests. Immediately afterward the strikers announced they planned to march into new territory tomorrow. They will attempt to march on the United Piece Dye Works, in Lodi, which employs about 4,000 workers, only a few of whom have joined the strike.

Today's clash was with the police of Clifton. The strikers set out for the Forstmann & Huffmann mills, which lie partially in Clifton and partially in Passaic, and have been running almost full time despite the strike.

There were about 2,000 in the parade. They had crossed from Garfield into Clifton by the Ackerman avenue bridge, and were nearing the mills when the police met them.

Mounted policemen tried to ride through the parade to clear the way for other traffic. They were met by jeers and a volley of snow andice. After 20 minutes of confusion, the strikers took another route into Passaic and dispersed.

Two department of labor observers were on the scene today, at the instance of Secretary of Labor Davis.

Albert Weisbord, chairman of the strikers' united front committee, said tonight the principal speaker at tomorrow's mass meeting will be Abraham Shiplakoff, New York socialist leader.

He also said that Lady Cynthia Moseley, English peress and labor sympathiser who is visiting this country, had been invited to address the strikers.

Weisbord gave out statistics today showing that seven different nationalities are represented in the strikers' ranks. He said 99 per cent of them are foreign born. Seventy-five per cent of the women employed in the mills are on strike, his figures showed.

WOMAN'S BODY FOUND ON NANTASKET BEACH

NANTASKET, Mass., March 8.—(AP)—A woman's body, a slip of paper bearing a name and a New York address and a ten dollar bill pinned to the underclothing, was washed up on the beach toddy and was found by the police. There was no evidence of long immersion.

On the small piece of paper were written the words "Miss S. H. Tatvalan 229 East 21st street, New York city." The woman had long, black hair and wore a fashionably cut dress with fur trimmed collar and stockings. There was no hat, shoes or top coat.

The body was taken to an undertaker's in Hingham, where an autopsy will be performed tomorrow by Medical Examiner John Petterson.

SIX PERSONS OVERCOME BY SMOKE IN STAMFORD

STAMFORD, March 8.—Six persons, overcome by smoke, were rescued tonight by police officers in a double alarm fire in a six family tenement house at 492-494 Main street. Two blind men, William Gardener and Charles Wells, both living on the second floor, were found in their rooms by Detective Sergeant George McCarthy and Patrolman Louis Schlechweg, and were taken from the building before suffering serious effects.

400 MEN'S GARMENT WORKERS GO ON STRIKE

BOSTON, March 8. — (AP) — Four hundred men's garment workers struck today for higher wages and full union conditions. Today's strike was authorized by the local joint of the Amalgamated Clothing Workers of America.

55 Men Entombed In West Virginia Mine

Fumes in the Mine, Following Explosion, Hampered Volunteer Rescuers.

BLUEFIELD, W. Va., March 8—(AP)—Fifty eight miners were entombed tonight at Eccles, when a double explosion rocked two connecting mines, numbers 5 and 6, of the Crab Orchard Development company, according to reports reached here. The first blast was said to have trapped 30 miners in number 6 and a moment later the explosion carried to number 5, entombed 28 men working there.

Both mines are shaft operations, electrically equipped, with a daily tonnage capacity of about 2,000.

The night shifts were at work when the blasts occurred. Mining men expressed the belief that the explosion in No. 6 traveled through the underground channels to the laterals running into No. 5 and that the explosion spread through the latter mine setting off coal dust.

A state rescue car, stationed at Gary, was ordered to the scene. It will make a fast run on the Virginia railroad. R. E. Taggart, general manager of the mines, is en route from his home at Big Stone Gap, Va., by automobile. He will make the final dash on a special train from Princeton.

At Eccles, officials of the two mines issued calls to surrounding mining villages to send rescue crews. Volunteer rescuers hastily organized at the mines, could not go down the shafts because of the fumes.

Efforts to obtain details of the explosions by telephone from Bluefield failed an hour after the blasts occurred, when telephone communication was interrupted from some undetermined cause. Bluefield's only connection in the Eccles region was with the Virginian railroad offices at Princeton.

FATE OF 28 ENTOMBED MINERS STILL UNKNOWN

ROANOKE, Va., March 8—(AP)—All entombed miners in number six mine of the Crab Orchard company at Eccles, W. Va., have been rescued alive, but the fate of 28 men entombed in mine number 5, where the explosion occurred at 6:50 o'clock tonight, is still unknown.

SUB S-51 TO BE TOWED TO BROOKLYN WITH BODIES

NEW LONDON, March 8—(AP)—Beneath the surface of the ocean which trapped them to their death the bodies of several sailors of the submarine S-51 sunk last September when rammed by the steamship City of Rome will be towed back to the Brooklyn navy yard within their water-filled steel prison.

In announcing today that salvage work on the submarine will be resumed as soon after April 15 as weather conditions will permit, Captain E. J. King, commander of the New London submarine base, said that no attempt will be made to remove any bodies of the 33 members of the crew who lost their lives that still remain within the compartments of the undersea craft, until it is brought under 60 feet of water to Brooklyn, This, he believed, would be after June 1.

Six pontoons attached to the hull, and two attached 75 feet above the vessel will exert the lifting power. The submarine, now imbedded to some extent in the ocean bottom, is expected to shoot upwards, its rush checked as the two pontoons above it reach the surface.

Two tugs will make fast to it when it is within 60 feet of the surface, and start at once with it for shallow water either off Block Island or Point Judith, R. I., where adjustments will be made for the long under-water tow to New York. In Hempstead Bay, adjustments will again be made to facilitate passage through Hell Gate.

The navy ship Falcon from which the crew of divers worked last fall, will be used at the scene of the raising operations. On it will be all the apparatus for the handling of the air for the pontoons and the compartments of the submarine.

ELSIE DE WOLFE IS TO MARRY SIR CHARLES MENDL

PARIS, March 8.—(AP)—According to reliable information this evening Elsie De Wolfe the American actress, and Sir Charles Mendl, head of the press section of the British embassy in Paris, plan to be married Wednesday morning. The intended wedding comes as a great surprise to their friends.

Sir Charles, at the British embassy tonight, expressed keen regret that the news had leaked out, the couple being anxious that nothing should be known of their plans until after the wedding. Later Sir Charles said he would neither affirm nor deny that he and Miss De Wolfe planned to be married.

Miss De Wolfe could not be reached in Paris tonight.

The announcement of the wedding was made very recently at a fashionable tea given by Mrs. W. K. Vanderbilt. Only a small circle of intimate friends were informed, the couple desiring that the most careful secrecy be maintained. They planned to hold the ceremony either at the home of the bride or in a private room at the Rits hotel.

Miss De Wolfe is 61 years old. She made her debut on the stage in 1890, was for years head of her own stock company, left the stage in 1905 and since has been engaged as an interior decorator. Sir Charles Mendl was an intelligence officer in the British army during the war. He was knighted in 1924.

ARRESTED FOR SLAYING OF "BATTLING SIKI"

NEW YORK, March 8.—(AP)—Martin Maroney, 19, a laborer, was arrested tonight on a charge of homicide in connection with the killing of Louis Phal, "Battling Siki" pugilist, on December 15.

The two detectives who made the arrest had disguised themselves as gangsters, and kept close watch on Maroney for the last two weeks after he had aroused their suspicion by telephone conversation in a social club. The detectives said that Maroney telephoned a man whom they believed to be one of Siki's murderers. They said they overheard him say "there're close on our trail, and know who killed Siki."

A $200,000 Verdict Against Film Actress

Miss Corliss Palmer Penalized For Alienation of Affection of Eugene V. Brewster.

NEW YORK, March 8.—(AP)—Miss Corliss Palmer, screen actress, now in Hollywood, Cal., today was assessed $200,000 for the love and affections of Eugene V. Brewster, wealthy New York magazine publisher.

A jury in supreme court, after deliberating one hour, returned a verdict for this amount in favor of Mrs. Eleanor V. Brewster in her suit against the actress for alienation of Brewster's affections. The action was not contested, and the jury deliberated only on the amount of damages. Mrs. Brewster asked for $250,000.

Mrs. Brewster was the principal witness at the trial, which began last Friday but was halted until today to permit counsel for Miss Palmer to determine whether she intended to contest the action. Mrs. Brewster testified that Miss Palmer first came to their home as a contestant in a beauty prize which Mr. Brewster conducted in 1920. She asked permission to stay at the Brewster home for a few days because she had no other place to go.

After gaining access to the home, Mrs. Brewster said, Miss Palmer refused to leave. She won the beauty prize, won Brewster's affections, and finally virtually drove Mrs. Brewster from her home, the latter testified.

Later, the wife said, Brewster installed the actress in his New York studio, and only occasionally visited his wife and boy. In November, 1921, these visits ceased altogether, and in June 1922, she said, Brewster and Miss Palmer established themselves in a "love palace" at Morristown, N. J., where they lived for some time.

There were no defense witnesses.

NINTH BRIAND CABINET PROBABLE FOR FRANCE

PARIS, March 8.—(AP) — A ninth Briand cabinet tonight seemed the most probable solution of France's cabinet crisis.

"The situation is complicated and simple. It is simple because it is complicated. The explanation of this apparent anomaly is that when a situation is so complex there is only one man who can unravel it. That man is Briand." Thus one of the public men consulted today by President Doumergue expressed the general sentiment regarding the crisis.

M. Briand, however, will require a great deal of persuasion before he consents to undertake anew the difficult task of bringing order out of parliamentary chaos. He is willing to remain at the Quai D'Orsay as foreign minister, but prefers that someone else grapple with the financial situation. The opinion tonight however, is that the necessary pressure to overcome his objections will be brought to bear, because it is impossible now to see how any other man can unravel the tangle.

The extreme radicals and socialists are making another effort to reorganize their cartel behind a Herriot cabinet this president of the chamber of deputies, however is averse to this combination, because he would be obliged to support the same financial policy he followed when in power before, which was rejected by the senate.

Joseph Caillaux is still mentioned as an available candidate if M. Briand should steadfastly refuse. He is understood to have formulated three condition to his acceptance, at least two of which are thought to be fatal to his chances. The first is that any government presided over by him be authorized to settle the financial problem by decree, levying taxes, holding lotteries and consolidating loans without action of parliament. His second condition is that parliament at once repeal the proportional representation electoral law and substitute therefore a system of electing deputies in separate districts instead of on a single ticket for a whole department.

President Doumergue devoted the day to consultations with leaders of the groups, that made up the old majority of the left bloc. Tomorrow he will continue with leaders of the opposition. Definite indications as to how he expects to solve the crisis will be possible only after his conversation of tomorrow.

Politics gossip tonight is all in favor of M. Briand's resumption of the premiership. It is held that it is necessary to send him back to Geneva with the same prestige he has had before and hence he must again assume direction of the government.

LAST FIGHT TO HAVE WIFE ADMITTED TO UNITED STATES

WASHINGTON March 8.—(AP)—Jacob Markin, of New York city, today lost in the supreme court a desperate fight to get his Russian wife past the immigration barriers set up by the government. Markin is a naturalized American citizen. Since his naturalization was not effected until after the passage of the cable act of 1922, the immigration authorities held it did not carry with it naturalization for his wife.

When she arrived at Ellis island she was stopped on the grounds that her physical defects would interfere with her earning a living and therefore she might become a public charge. The courts declined to intervene in her behalf and she was ordered deported. Markin, as a last resort, appealed to the supreme court. Today the appeal was denied.

BLOCK ISLAND COAST GUARD CAPTAIN HELD IN RUM RING

Captain Eli Sprague, For Twelve Years Commander at New Shoreham Station, Held For Trial on Two Secret Conspiracy Indictments—Surrendered, Pleaded Not Guilty and Was Held in $11,000 Bail—Charge Came as a Surprise to Mariners and Coastguardsmen—Had Participated in the Rescue of Hundreds of Persons

PROVIDENCE, R. I., March 8—(AP)—Captain Eli Sprague, for 12 years commander of the New Shoreham coast guard station and veteran of many a daring marine rescue, was held today for trial on two secret conspiracy indictments brought in connection with the government's investigation of alleged rum running into Rhode Island. Notified of his indictment, he surrendered, pleaded not guilty in federal district court, and was held in $11,000 bail which he furnished.

Captain Sprague is the 12th man to be arrested since government agents began an investigation of alleged collusion between the coast guard and rum smugglers. The nature of the indictments brought by extraordinary session of the federal grand jury ten days ago, will not be revealed until other indicted persons are arrested.

News of the arrest of Captain Sprague, who has shared in rescues involving more than 500 persons, came as a shock to mariners and fellow coast guard members.

Captain Herbert M. Knowles of Wakefield, now retired, who appointed him back in 1909, at first refused to believe and later voted his staunch belief in his innocence.

Captain Sprague, now 51 years old, has passed his life on Block Island, where he was born, and in his years with the coast guard, has shared in the hardships of the service, its work in saving the lives of sailors and travellers, and in the prevention of smuggling.

Since he became commander of the New Shoreham station, he has participated in the rescue of hundreds of persons.

It was in 1909 that he became a surfman at Sandy Point station and two years later he was transferred to New Shoreham, still a surfman. In 1913 he was promoted to be No. 1 surfman and in 1914 when the previous commander died, he was made keeper at New Shoreham.

His full record is known only since he received his warrant, or commission, in 1916. Under his leadership, on June 8, 1917, the New Shoreham crew went to the rescue of the brig Thiago, bound from Cape Verde Islands to New Bedford. The vessel, carrying 50 Portuguese passengers and a car load of 20, went aground on Black Rock, south of Block Island. All were saved.

Another notable rescue in which the crew under Captain Sprague participated, was that of the Portuguese steamer Mormugao, bound from Lisbon for New Bedford and which also struck on Black Rock. With the men from Station 61, the New Shoreham crew helped take off the 418 persons aboard and transferred them to mine sweepers and destroyers standing by.

In the northwest gale of August 26, 1924, Captain Sprague then [illegible] the yawl Montauk in the new harbor. They also saved five passengers from Muskegat, the sloop Harold and the motor boat Ventura. In the same storm, the sloop Thelma H. Snow crashed on the rocks of the breakwater in the old harbor and Captain Sprague and his crew saved the crew of three.

Among those arrested since the indictments were brought are Lamprose Brown and Christos Petropoulos of Newport; Joseph L. Kelley of North Smithfield, former member of the Rhode Island legislature and at one time a prohibition agent. Sprague, Frank, Harry Shatkin, Jacob Shatkin and John R. Silverman of Providence; J. Truman Dodge, former state [illegible] at Block Island; Henry C. Johnson, former manager of the Hummocks at Hamilton; Jacob Beckelhammer of Pawtucket and "Dutch" Reitzman of Cumberland.

All of these defendants provided bail of $11,000 each. A negro mail, Andrew J. McCarthy, former coast guardsman was arrested and held for bail under $1,000 bail, but so far as has been made known, he is not under indictment.

Sprague has four days in which to file special pleas or demurrers. Demurrers were filed today by counsel for Kelley, Shatkin Silverman, Frank and Johnson. Attorneys for the indictments. It was contended that they do not allege sufficient facts to constitute offenses and that they fail to identify sufficiently the offenses charged. Counsel that these defendants attempted to bribe coastguardsmen or that they attempted to defraud the government in smuggling liquor are not definite in its counsel.

Separate demurrers were filed by counsel for Keeley against two indictments One charges it is said, that Keeley aided Thomas Meade coast guardsman in the case of liquor he helped Kelley bring into the country.

RECONCILIATION MAY END $1,000,000 KRESGE SUIT

NEW YORK, March 8—(AP)—Trial of the suit of Mrs. Doris Mercer Kresge to recover $1,000,000 from her husband, Sebastian S. Kresge, head of the chain stores system of Kresge & Co., was halted suddenly today by an adjournment until tomorrow. This led to rumors of a possible reconciliation between the two.

The adjournment came just as Mrs. Kresge was about to take the witness stand, after a consultation between opposing counsel.

The plaintiff, who is Kresge's second wife, alleged that the capitalist made a pre-nuptial agreement to assign her, after their marriage a large block of stock in the Kresge company and that he had refused to deliver the stock. Trial of the case began today in supreme court before Justice Warner.

Max D. Steuer, counsel for Kresge, asserted that his client was "a fool," and that the principal question before the court was whether Kresge was to be "mulcted out of more millions than he already had been gouged out by a grasping group." On every occasion, he said, Mrs. Kresge's attitude had been "if you love me you ought to do what I ask. You ought to give me what I want."

"Mr. Kresge's intellect was not working very fast then," the attorney said, "but it finally dawned on him that she was more fond of his stock and money than of himself. He moved out, bag and baggage."

He said that Mrs Kresge's brother, who had been brought from Pittsburgh by Kresge to effect a reconciliation, had after some negotiations, intimated that Mrs. Kresge might be put in a mood for reconciliation by payment of $10,000,000 cash.

It had been planned to spend the afternoon with an oculist in Hartford, to learn the condition of Gilpatric's eyes and the probable chance for regaining the sight in one of them, but upon arriving here, the men learned that the specialist whom they hoped to see was out of town.

pondent tonight that they deemed yesterday's conversations with Dr. Luther and Dr. Stresemann, the German delegates, helpful, in that they removed the spirit of vindictiveness engendered by the dispute. They therefore thought that, so might was the issue at stake, involving as it does the reconciliation of Europe and the whole destiny of the league of nations, a way should be discovered to adjust the crisis.

In their best judgment the proper procedure was the election of Germany to a permanent seat, and to have the entire problem of the reconstruction of the council then submitted for profound study. One point sugested was the adopion of a clear cut system of rotation for the non-permanent chairs.

Dr. Da Costa in his salutatory address warned the delegates that the league's life had reached a turning point, and besought them neither to make nor let others make depressing or paralyzing suggestions. Recalling Locarno, he asserted that its harmony had brought all peoples together in fraternity and hope for the opening up for making of an era of tranquility and happiness after all the anguish and suffering of the past.

"The league of nations," continued the president, "has no right to contemplate the remotest possibility of its own disappearance or even check. The present juncture is so decisive that we must feel the most complete confidence and obstinately refuse to admit that the vast dream of peace and progress might vanish at the very moment when it has begun to seem a beautiful reality, leaving mankind once more beneath the heel of all the forces of destruction which we had thought were vanquished."

Dr. Bella Codecido, former foreign minister of Chile, came out ably tonight in support of Brazil's candidacy for a permanent seat, if the council was enlarged. He believed Latin-Americans generally favored the Brazilian cause.

SENATE VOTES 61 TO 26 TO LEASE MUSCLE SHOALS

WASHINGTON, March 8—(AP)—Congress today approved appointment of a joint committee to negotiate bids for private leasing of Muscle Shoals.

A resolution drafted to carry out a recommendation of President Coolidge and already adopted by the house, was accepted by the senate 61 to 26, and sent to conference.

The senate added two amendments One, by Senator Caraway, democrat, Arkansas, would require that surplus power developed at the big war-time project be distributed equitably to states adjoining Alabama. The other by Senator Lenroot, republican, Wisconsin, would give the joint committee until April 20, to submit a proposal to congress for lease of the project, instead of April 1 as voted by the house.

Proponents of the resolution led by Senator Heflin, democrat, Alabama, fought vigorously for its adoption without amendment to avoid the necessity of conference adjustment with the house, and expedite disposal of a long pending problem. Opponents of private operation fought fruitlessly but with equal vigor to attach amendments to the resolution that would nullify its object.

DISPOSED OF $850,000 WORTH OF LIQUOR IN ONE TRIP

NEW YORK, March 8.—(AP)—Emanuel H. ("Mannie") Kessler, once the king of New York's bootleggers, who was indicted last week for falsifying his income tax returns, disposed of $850,000 worth of liquor in one trip from Europe he says in an interview in Collier's Weekly.

Clearing from Hamburg, Germany, with free trader's papers allowing him to dispose of his cargo anywhere on the North American coast, he said, he smuggled the entire cargo into New Jersey.

"People ask me whether the prohibition laws will ever be repealed," he said. "I don't see how they can be. Too many politicians and too many crooks are making big reputations or big money through prohibition."

TIENTSIN, March 8—(AP)—After an abortive attempt to shell the batteries at Taku fort yesterday, a squadron from Shantung province came up to Taku bar to dawn today and for two hours bombarded the fort, which is held by Kuominchun troops supporting the Peking government. The shore batteries replied vigorously, and shells flew over Taku which is at the mouth of the Pei river. Foreign and Chinese residents narrowly escaped being hit. Women and children evacuated the city, going toward Tientsin, 27 miles westward. DISORDERS IN PARADE OF STRIKERS IN PASSAIC

PASSAIC, N. J., March 8.—(AP)—A flurry with police, involving an exchange of snowballs and jeers, broke up a march of striking mill workers through Clifton this afternoon before the parade had reached its objective.

There were no injuries and no arrests, immediately afterward the strikers announced they planned to march into new territory tomorrow. They will attempt to march on the United Piece Dye Works, in Lodi, which employs about 4,000 workers, only a few of whom have joined the strike.

Today's clash was with the police of Clifton. The strikers set out for the Forstmann & Huffmann mills, which lie partially in Clifton and partially in Passaic, and have been running almost full time despite the strike.

There were about 3,000 in the parade. They had crossed from Garfield into Clifton by the Ackerman avenue bridge, and were nearing the mills when the police met them.

Mounted policemen tried to ride through the parade to clear the way for other traffic. They were met by jeers and a volley of snow ...adice. After 30 minutes of confusion, the strikers took another route into Passaic and dispersed.

Two department of labor observers were on the scene today, at the instance of Secretary of Labor Davis.

Albert Weisbord, chairman of the strikers' united front committee, said tonight the principal speaker at tomorrow's mass meeting will be Abraham Shiplakoff, New York socialist leader.

He also said that Lady Cynthia Moseley, English peress and labor sympathiser who is visiting this country, had been invited to address the strikers.

Weisbord gave out statistics today showing that seven different nationalities are represented in the strikers' ranks. He said 99 per cent of them are foreign born. Seventy-five per cent of the women employed in the mills are on strike, his figures showed.

WOMAN'S BODY FOUND ON NANTASKET BEACH

NANTASKET, Mass., March 8.—(AP)—A woman's body, a slip of paper bearing a name and a New York address and a ten dollar bill pinned to the underclothing, was washed up on the beach today and was found by the police. There was no evidence of long immersion.

5... Men Entombed In West Virginia Mine

Fumes in the Mine, Following Explosion, Hampered Volunteer Rescuers.

BLUEFIELD, W. Va., March 8—(AP)—Fifty eight miners were entombed tonight at Eccles, when a double explosion rocked two connecting mines, numbers 5 and 6, of the Crab Orchard Development company, according to reports reached here. The first blast was said to have trapped 30 miners in number 6 and a moment later the explosion, carried to number 5, entombed 28 men working there.

Both mines are shaft operations, electrically equipped, with a daily tonnage capacity of about 2,000.

The night shifts were at work when the blasts occurred. Mining men expressed the belief that the explosion in No. 6 traveled through the underground channels to the laterals running into No. 5 and that the explosion spread through the latter mine setting off coal dust.

A state rescue car, stationed at Gary, was ordered to the scene. It will make a fast run on the Virginia railroad. R. E. Taggart, general manager of the mines, is en route from his home at Big Stone Gap, Va., by automobile. He will make the final dash on a special train from Princeton.

At Eccles, officials of the two mines issued calls to surrounding mining villages to send rescue crews. Volunteer rescuers hastily organized at the mines, could not go down the shafts because of the fumes.

Efforts to obtain details of the explosions by telephone from Bluefield failed an hour after the blasts occurred, when telephone communication was interrupted from some undetermined cause. Bluefield's only connection in the Eccles region was with the Virginian railroad offices at Princeton.

SUB S-51 TO BE TOWED TO BROOKLYN WITH BODIES

NEW LONDON, March 8—(AP)—Beneath the surface of the ocean which trapped them to their death the bodies of several sailors of the submarine S-51 sunk last September when rammed by the steamship City of Rome will be towed back to the Brooklyn navy yard within their water-filled steel prison.

In announcing today that salvage work on the submarine will be resumed as soon after April 15 as weather conditions will permit, Captain E. W. King, commander of the New London submarine base, said that no attempt will be made to remove any bodies of the 33 members of the crew who lost their lives that still remain within the compartments of the underseen craft, until it is brought under 60 feet of water to Brooklyn. This, he believed, would be after June 1.

Six pontoons attached to the hull, and two attached 75 feet above the vessel will exert the lifting power. The submarine, now imbedded to some extent in the ocean bottom, is expected to shoot upwards, its rush checked as the two pontoons above it reach the surface.

Two tugs will make fast to it when it is within 60 feet of the surface, and start at once with it for shallow water either off Block Island or Point Judith, R. I., where adjustments will be made for the long under-water tow to New York, in Hempstead Bay, adjustments will again be made to facilitate passage through Hell Gate.

The navy ship Falcon from which the crew of divers worked last fall, will be used at the scene of the raising operations. On it will be all the apparatus for the handling of the air for the pontoons and the compartments of the submarine.

PARIS, March 8.—(AP)—According to reliable information this evening Elsie De Wolfe the American actress, and Sir Charles Mendl, head of the press section of the British embassy in Paris, plan to be married Wednesday morning. The intended wedding comes as a great surprise to their friends.

Sir Charles, at the British embassy tonight, expressed keen regret that the news had leaked out, the couple being anxious that nothing should be known of their plans until after the wedding. Later Sir Charles said he would neither affirm nor deny that he and Miss De Wolfe planned to be married

Miss De Wolfe could not be reached in Paris tonight.

The announcement of the wedding was made very recently at a fashionable tea given by Mrs. W. K. Vanderbilt. Only a small circle of intimate friends were informed, the couple desiring that the most careful secrecy be maintained. They planned to hold the ceremony either at the home of the bride or in a private room at the Ritz hotel.

Miss De Wolfe is 61 years old. She made her debut on the stage in 1890, was for years head of her own stock company, left the stage in 1905 and since has been engaged as an interior decorator. Sir Charles Mendl was an intelligence officer in the British army during the war. He was knighted in 1924.

The detectives said that Maroney telephoned a man whom they believed to be one of Siki's murderers. They said they overheard him say "there're close on our trail, and know who killed Siki."

A $200,000 Verdict Against Film Actress

Miss Corliss Palmer Penalized For Alienation of Affection of Eugene V. Brewster.

NEW YORK, March 8.—(AP)—Miss Corliss Palmer, screen actress, now in Hollywood, Cal., today was assessed $200,000 for the love and affections of Eugene V. Brewster, wealthy New York magazine publisher.

A jury in supreme court, after deliberating one hour, returned a verdict for this amount in favor of Mrs. Eleanor V. Brewster in her suit against the actress for alienation of Brewster's affections. The action was not contested, and the jury deliberated only on the amount of damages. Mrs. Brewster asked for $250,000.

Mrs. Brewster was the principal witness at the trial, which began last Friday but was halted until today to permit counsel for Miss Palmer to determine whether she intended to contest the action. Mrs. Brewster testified that Miss Palmer first came to their home as a contestant in a beauty prize which Mr. Brewster conducted in 1920. She asked permission to stay at the Brewster home for a few days because she had no other place to go.

After gaining access to the home, Mrs. Brewster said, Miss Palmer refused to leave. She won the beauty prize, won Brewster's affections, and finally virtually drove Mrs. Brewster from her home, the latter testified.

Later, the wife said, Brewster installed the actress in his New York studio, and only occasionally visited his wife and boy. In November, 1921, these visits ceased altogether, and in June 1923, she said, Brewster and Miss Palmer established themselves in a "love palace" at Morristown, N. J., where they lived for some time.

There were no defense witnesses.

NINTH BRIAND CABINET PROBABLE FOR FRANCE

PARIS, March 8.—(AP) — A ninth Briand cabinet tonight seemed the most probable solution of France's cabinet crisis.

"The situation is complicated and simple. It is simple because it is complicated. The explanation of this apparent anomaly is that when a situation is so complex there is only one man who can unravel it. That man is Briand." Thus one of the public men consulted today by President Doumergue expressed the general sentiment regarding the crisis.

M. Briand, however, will require a great deal of persuasion before he consents to undertake anew the difficult task of bringing order of the parliamentary chaos. He is willing to remain at the Quai D'Orsay as foreign minister, but prefers that someone else grapple with the financial situation. The opinion tonight however, is that the necessary pressure to overcome his objections will be brought to bear, because it is impossible now to see, how any other man can unravel the tangle.

The extreme radicals and socialists are making another effort to reorganize their cartel behind a Herriot cabinet. The president of the chamber of deputies, however is averse to this combination, because he would be obliged to support the same financial policy he followed when in power before, which was rejected by the senate.

Joseph Caillaux is still mentioned as an available candidate if M. Briand and Herriot definitely refuse. He is understood to have formulated three condition to his acceptance, at least two of which are thought to be fatal to his chances. The first is that any government presided over by him be authorized to settle the financial problem by decree, levying taxes, holding lotteries and consolidating loans without action of parliament. His second condition is that parliament at once repeal the proportional representation electoral law and substitute therefore a system of electing deputies in separate districts instead of on a single ticket for a whole department.

President Doumergue devoted the day to consultations with leaders of the groups, that made up the old majority of the left bloc. Tomorrow he will continue with leaders of the opposition. Definite indications as to how he expects to solve the crisis will be possible only after his conversation of tomorrow.

Political gossip tonight is all in favor of M. Briand's resumption of the premiership. It is said that it is necessary to send him back to Geneva with the same prestige he has had before and hence he must again assume direction of the government.

LAST FIGHT TO HAVE WIFE ADMITTED TO UNITED STATES

WASHINGTON, March 8.—(AP)—Jacob Markin, of New York city, today lost in the supreme court a desperate fight to get his Russian wife past the immigration barriers set up by the government. Markin is a naturalized American citizen. Since his naturalization was not effected until after the passage of the cable act of 1922, the immigration authorities held it did not carry with it naturalization for his wife.

When she arrived at Ellis Island she was stopped on the grounds that her physical defects would interfere with her earning a living and therefore she might become a public charge. The courts declined to intervene in her behalf and she was ordered deported. Markin, as a last resort, appealed to the supreme court. Today the appeal was denied.

BLOCK ISLAND COAST GUARD CAPTAIN HELD IN RUM RING

Captain Eli Sprague, For Twelve Years Commander at New Shoreham Station, Held For Trial on Two Secret Conspiracy Indictments—Surrendered, Pleaded Not Guilty and Was Held in $11,000 Bail—Charge Came as a Surprise to Mariners and Coastguardsmen—Had Participated in the Rescue of Hundreds of Persons

PROVIDENCE, R. I., March 8—(AP)—Captain Eli Sprague, for 12 years commander of the New Shoreham coast guard station and veteran of many a daring marine rescue, was held today for trial on two secret conspiracy indictments brought in connection with the government's investigation of alleged rum running into Rhode Island. Notified of his indictment, he surrendered, pleaded not guilty in federal district court, and was held in $11,000 bail which he furnished.

Captain Sprague is the 13th man to be arrested since government agents began an investigation of alleged collusion between the coast guard and rum smugglers. The nature of the indictments brought by extraordinary session of the federal grand jury ten days ago, will not be revealed until other indicted persons are arrested.

News of the arrest of Captain Sprague, who has shared in rescues involving more than 500 persons, came as a shock to mariners and fellow coast guard members.

Captain Herbert M. Knowles, of Wakefield, now retired, who appointed him back in 1909, at first refused to believe and later voted his staunch belief in his innocence.

Captain Sprague, now 51 years old, has passed his life on Block Island, where he was born, and in his years with the coast guard, has shared in the hardships of the service, its work in saving the lives of sailors and travellers, and in the prevention of smuggling.

Since he became commander of the New Shoreham station, he has participated in the rescue of hundreds of persons.

It was in 1909 that he became a surfman at Sandy Point station and two years later he was transferred to New Shoreham, still a surfman. In 1913 he was promoted to be No. 1 surfman and in 1914 when the previous commander died, he was made keeper at New Shoreham.

His full record is known only since he received his warrant, or commission, in 1916. Under his leadership, on June 3, 1917, the New Shoreham crew went to the rescue of the bris Thiago, bound from Cape Verde Islands to New Bedford. The vessel, carrying 56 Portuguese passengers and a crew of 20, went aground on Black Rock, south of Block Island. All were saved.

Another notable rescue in which the crew under Captain Sprague participated, was that of the Portuguese steamer Mormugao bound from Lisbon for New Bedford and which also struck on Black Rock. With the men from Station 61, the New Shoreham crew helped take off the 448 persons aboard and transferred them to mine sweepers and destroyers standing by.

In the northwest gale of August 26, 1924, Captain Sprague's men saved the yawl Mohican in the new harbor. They also saved the powerboat Muskegat, the sloop Harold and the motor boat Ventura. In the same storm, the sloop Thelma H. Snow crashed on the rocks of the breakwater in the old harbor and Captain Sprague and his crew saved the crew of three.

Among those arrested since the indictments were brought are Lampros Brown and Christos Petropoulos of Newport; Joseph E. Kelley, of North Smithfield, former member of the Rhode Island legislature and at one time a prohibition [illegible]; Samuel Frank, Harry Shatkin, Sam Shallcross and John R. Silverman of Providence; J. Truman Dodge, former state pilot at Block Island, Henry C. Johnson former manager of the Hummocks at Hamilton; Jacob Berkelhammer of Pawtucket and "Dutch" Reizman of Conimicut.

All of these defendants provided bail of $10,000 each. A 13th man, Andrew J. McCarthy, former coast guardsman, was arrested and is at liberty under $1,000 bail, but so far as has been made known, he is not under indictment.

Sprague has four days in which to file special pleas or demurrers. Demurrers were filed today by counsel for Kelley, Shatkin, Shallcross, Frank and Johnson, attacking the indictments. It was contended that they do not allege sufficient facts to constitute offenses and that they fail to identify sufficiently the offenses charged. Charges that these defendants attempted to bribe coastguardmen or that they attempted to defraud the government in smuggling liquor are not definite, it is claimed.

Separate demurrers were filed by counsel for Keeley against two indictments. One charges, it is said, that Keeley offered Thomas McGir, coast guardsman, $3 for each case of liquor he helped Keeley bring into the country.

RECONCILIATION MAY END $1,000,000 KRESGE SUIT

NEW YORK, March 8—(AP)—Trial of the suit of Mrs. Doris Mercer Kresge to recover $1,000,000 from her husband, Sebastian S. Kresge, head of the chain stores system of Kresge & Co., was halted suddenly today by an adjournment until tomorrow. This led to rumors of a possible reconciliation between the two.

The adjournment came just as Mrs. Kresge was about to take the witness stand, after a consultation between opposing counsel.

The plaintiff, who is Kresge's second wife, alleged that the capitalist made a pre-nuptial agreement to assign her, after their marriage a large block of stock in the Kresge company and that he had refused to deliver the stock. Trial of the case began today in supreme court before Justice Wagner.

Max D. Steuer, counsel for Kresge, asserted that his client was "a fool," and that the principal question before the court was whether Kresge was to be "mulcted out of more millions than he already had been gouged out by a grasping group." On every occasion, he said, Mrs. Kresge's attitude had been "if you love me you ought to do what I ask. You ought to give me what I want."

"Mr. Kresge's intellect was not working very fast then," the attorney said, "but it finally dawned on him that she was more fond of his stock and money than of himself. He moved out, bag and baggage."

He said that Mrs Kresge's brother, who had been brought from Pittsburgh by Kresge to effect a reconciliation, had after some negotiations, intimated that Mrs. Kresge might be put in a mood for reconciliation by payment of $10,000,000 cash.

ELIMINATING CANDIDATES FOR PRESIDENTIAL RACE

WASHINGTON, March 8—(AP)—Having already announced unalterable opposition to the nomination of Governor Smith of New York as the democratic presidential candidate in 1928, the board of temperance and morals of the Methodist Episcopal church here turned its guns on Governor Ritchie of Maryland.

"They have been talking of Governor Ritchie for the democratic presidential nomination," said a statement given out today by the board's press bureau. "When they set through joking, why not trot out a few real candidates.

"If Ritchie were nominated, the republicans could send any cub reporter to Annapolis and get enough real dope in one half hour to make every democrat wish that Ritchie had never been born."

GILPATRIC RETURNING TO PRISON AT ATLANTA

HARTFORD, March 8—(AP)—C. Harold Gilpatric, former cashier of the First National bank, of Putnam, left Hartford on the 7:13 p. m. train for New York today on the first leg of his journey back to the federal prison at Atlanta, where he has served a few months of his 15-year sentence imposed for embezzlement of nearly $1,000,000 of the bank's funds. He will reach Atlanta Tuesday morning. For two of the three weeks he has spent away from the prison, he has been engaged in the work of examining the bank's records with Receiver George M. Coffin to help trace some of the money apparently lost.

Gilpatric left Putnam at 10:47 a. m. today, arriving in Hartford shortly after noon. He and the federal prison guard, George M. Hughes, lunched at the Hotel Bond. It had been planned to spend the afternoon with an oculist in Hartford, to learn the condition of Gilpatric's eyes and the probable chance for regaining the sight in one of them, but upon arriving here, the men learned that the specialist whom they hoped to see was out of town.

HAIR EXPERT SOUNDS AS KEYNOTE "DEATH TO THE BOB"

NEW YORK, March 8—(AP)—Women who bobbed their hair seven years ago have fifty per cent less hair now than they had then, Frank Parker, hair expert, today told members of the American Master Hairdressers' association. The association opened its two-day annual convention, at which was sounded the keynote, "Death to the bob."

Tight hats worn by women with short hair duplicating the condition to which the common baldness of men is attributed, may be the cause of the loss of hair by women, Mr. Parker said. Charles Nessler, president of the association made the same statement.

"Nature must compensate for this discouragement to hair growing on the head, and it has been predicted that a race of short-haired women will be a race of bearded women," said Mr. Parker. "I think the bob is doomed, however. In 1878 women did the same thing. They cut off their hair and murdered the hairdressing business. In 1892 they did the same. Both times they got over it. They will now."

Luncheon was served at noon by women of the church, headed by Mrs. Arthur S. Wheelock. The afternoon paper was by Rev. Edwin E. Sundt of South Willington on the topic, Our Personal Devotions, relative to the minister's personal life. The paper was deeply impressive and promulgated an interesting discussion. Justice of the Peace Albert M. Gilman is grateful to his German police dog "Carl" today for having saved his home on Wall street, South Coventry from serious damage by fire. Mr and Mrs. Gilman were listening to their radio when the dog began barking and undaunted by lack of attention continued to do so until Judge Gilman arose to determine the cause of the trouble. A step into another room showed that smoke was coming through the floor in a clothes closet. The contents of a fire extinguisher were emptied on the blaze and it was quickly extinguished but not before clothes belonging to Mr and Mrs. Gilman had been damaged to the extent of $100 and some $50 damage had been caused the woodwork. It was found that the fire had started from an overheated furnace. Insurance was carried on both the clothing and house.

The town of Mansfield, often pitied as one of the poorest towns in Connecticut in view of the fact that many of its most desirable and what should be its most highly taxed properties are controlled by state institutions, disproved this reputation and voted a decrease from 26 to 20 mills in its tax rate at a special town meeting Saturday. The vote for the decrease came after a lively discussion and was won by 42 as against 19 votes. Judge George H. Andrews presided over the meeting and Judge Lewellyn J. Storrs, town clerk, read the warning. The agitation for a reduced tax rate has been gathering momentum since last fall. Those backing the movement have contended that every year the budget called for eight to ten thousand dollars more than was necessary for the actual expenses. They alleged that the extra money went to build up a surplus to build a school at Storrs and to this move several Mansfield people are opposed. In the arguments it was said that a 20 mill tax rate applied to the grand list, which is a little less than in 1924, would raise sufficient money to pay the expenses and leave a small surplus. There was a strong denial of establishing any surplus. The tax money was expended judiciously, it was said $10,888 being paid on the town debt last year, leaving the balance $6,619.32. In view of the fact that in the past years the town debt has been raised from $55,000 to a mere $3,619.32, was proof that every nickel taken in had found its place and that the record of the town compared favorably with any in the state considering the grand list.

The 1925 grand list of Mansfield is approximately $1,300,000 which is less than in 1924. The budget as figured out will be about $32,000 and that with personal tax, dog tax and other income, plus a 20 mill tax on the list would have sufficient income to cover expenses for the year.

HOW TO GET RID OF MUSCLE-LAMENESS

Beach Patrolman Advises this Treatment

After exposure to dampness and cold, and after hard exercise, muscles will stiffen up and get lame.

A beach patrolman at Atlantic City writes that he has found this treatment the quickest and most effective way to take out the stiffness and pain: "Just pat on a little of Sloan's Liniment. Don't rub. It's the liniment—not the rubbing—that helps. You'll get relief right away. I've tried all sorts of other things, but nothing gets results like Sloan's."

Hundreds of letters like this tell of the wonderful relief from muscular pain that Sloan's gives.

Sloan's gets results because it doesn't just deaden pain, it gets at the cause. Right to the place that hurts it brings a healing stream of fresh, new blood. Quickly and surely it carries off the "fatigue-poisons," takes out stiffness and drives away the aches and pains.

BURIAL OF MRS. PRINCE TOOK PLACE MONDAY

(Special to The Bulletin.)

DANIELSON, March 8—The burial of Mrs. Maria S. Prince, who died last Thursday, took place Monday in the family lot in the West Thompson cemetery. Funeral services were held here Sunday afternoon at the home of her son, Nathan Dyer Prince. The services were conducted by Rev. Roger C. Stimson, pastor of the Methodist Episcopal church, assisted by Rev. W. F. Davis, a former pastor of the church and now resident here. Rev. Mr. Stimson read the scriptures and offered prayer, also reading a favorite hymn of the deceased and a short poem. Rev. Mr. Davis gave the eulogy and spoke in the highest praise of the Christian character of Mrs. Prince and of her unfailing helpfulness to all with whom she came in contact. He also spoke words of consolation and comfort to the relatives and friends present, and of the lasting influence for good upon the lives of others that a person of such ideals of Christian service exercised.

Mrs. Prince had been a member of the Danielson Methodist Episcopal church for 48 years, joining in 1878.

A wealth of floral tributes gave testimony as to the high esteem in which Mrs. Prince was held by her many friends.

The bearers were Sidney H. Perry, Luther Pilling, Harold Holehouse, J. Herbert Marsh, Charles A. Tillinghast and A. Don Bitgood. A. F. Wood was in charge of the funeral arrangements.

TOURIST CAMP WILL BE ASSET TO DANIELSON

(Special to The Bulletin.)

DANIELSON, March 8—The summer tourists' camp that this town is to have the coming warm weather season is something about which detailed information is not available for publication at this time. There are certain arrangements to be made that are not as yet completed, and until they are publicity regarding them would serve no useful purpose. It may suffice to relate at this time that the camp will be established on a worth while scale, that is almost certain to attract a daily contingent of touring motorists and that it will be of commercial value to this community. Insofar as can be recalled, there is no such camp in this section of southern New England, though scores like it dot the main routes for tourists in many parts of the United States.

Monday morning the funeral of Mrs. Sarah S. Flagg was held from her home with funeral services at St. James' church. Rev. Joseph McCarthy, rector. Rev. Emile L'Heureux and Rev. E. N. Richards, M. S., were officers of the solemn high mass of requiem. The body was taken to Worcester for entombment at Notre Dame cemetery. Louis E. Kennedy was in charge of the funeral arrangements.

The case of the State vs. Charles Lavalle of Plainfield in which the accused is alleged to have received cars that were stolen has been continued from the date originally set for the hearing and will not come up until Wednesday of next week.

While there is no manner of forecasting the matter exactly, the assumption is that there will be from 12 to 15 bids for the general building contract and from eight to ten for subcontracts on hand Wednesday afternoon when those who would like the work of building additions to Killingly high school or want the heating, lighting or ventilating contracts have their bids opened at the town hall building. Supt. Parker said Monday afternoon that no bids have been received as yet. As the bids are to be opened publically, it is assumed that the contractors will bring in their bids and await the opening of them.

People who have traveled between Danielson and Worcester the past day or two say that the roads between Oxford and Worcester are in frightful condition, due to the storms and the wear and tear of winter travel. A great deal of ice and snow also remains in that territory. State highways in this section of northeastern Connecticut are in far superior condition to those north of Oxford, it is said.

Hard coal is moving through Danielson. There are those here who have looked with longing eyes at heavily laden cars of this fuel. Incidentally, note is made of the fact that the same trains are hauling much coke and semi-bituminous coal. Danielson will not suffer for some sort of fuel the remainder of the winter and in the early spring, but it would use considerable tonnage right now if it could get it.

Mrs. Mildred H. Olsson has succeeded Mrs. Merrill R. Keith, for the remainder of the school year, as a teacher at the school in East Killingly, where Mrs. Keith has taught for some time past. Mr. and Mrs. Keith have gone to Northbridge to make their home.

Monday afternoon the funeral of Viola May Williams was held from her home in East Killingly with services at the United Baptist church at 3 o'clock. Rev. A. E. Gallup conducted the services. The bearers were Harold Williams, George Greene, Cleon Greene and Charles Henries. The body was placed in the receiving vault at the Bartlett cemetery. L. E. Kennedy was in charge of the funeral arrangements.

Mud has taken the place of snowdrifts in making hard traveling over country highways all through this section. During Monday people living in outlying sections were telling of their experiences in getting motor cars through the highways, or, trying to. The heavy rain of Sunday made them like quagmires, and it will be several days, unless a hard freeze comes, before one may venture on them without danger of getting mired.

Spring must be somewhere in the offing. A never failing indication of its coming is the appearance of the marble shooters. They were on the job Monday, having sought out sheltered spots from which the ice and snow has disappeared and where the sun has partly dried out sufficient space for a game or two.

Selectmen of the town of Killingly were engaged at a special meeting held Monday on preparation of the budget to be presented to the adjourned annual town meeting later this month. This budget when completed will show the estimated cost of maintaining the various departments of the town for the current fiscal year.

C. A. Hamilton is at a Worcester hospital to undergo a surgical operation. He has been in poor health for several months.

A talk on income tax returns by Walter A. Musgrave of this place was heard over the radio from WTIC, Hartford, Monday evening by numbers of Danielson people.

Some excavators say that there is only about eight inches of frost remaining in the ground at points where they have been digging.

Those who have not already attended to the matter will make it a point to file their income tax returns this week. March 15 is the time limit for doing this.

Mrs. Mary Taylor has returned to Webster after spending about ten days at her home in Danielson.

Now radio fans here are scurrying around trying to learn how to build a special one-tube long wave receiving set that they may hear the overseas radio conversations.

Part of the program at Monday evening's meeting of Putnam grange was furnished by members of Killingly grange, who were guests of the evening.

Rev. H. Goring Alder of St. Philip's church, Putnam, will be the Lenten preacher at St. Alban's church Thursday evening.

PUTNAM

POMFRET MAN ON SHIP WHICH MADE A RESCUE

(Special to the Bulletin)

PUTNAM, March 8.—Henry W. Peterson, Jr., a resident of Pomfret, was one of the principal actors in one of the tragedies of the sea that have been so numerous this year, but he was instrumental in the saving of two lives from a ship wrecked in the gulf of Mexico. He is the wireless operator on the tanker Gulf of Venezuela owned by the Gulf Refining company. His ship arrived recently at Port Arthur, Texas, with two survivors of a small vessel wrecked in one of the heavy storms that have been prevalent along the Atlantic and Gulf coasts. The men rescued were members of a barge crew and were forced to take to a lifeboat when, during the high seas, the barge broke from its tow, and, after being buffeted about by the heavy seas, began to sink.

The survivors were the skipper of the barge and his mate. Both had regained their health by the time the rescuing tanker reached port but when picked up by the captain they were in a precarious condition. The captain had to be hauled aboard the tanker with a rope around his waist while the mate was barely able to climb the rope ladder over the side. Both were given first aid and put to bed by the ship's crew as soon as they were taken over the side. The heavy sea drenched both of them to the skin during the rescue.

At the last meeting of Quinebaug lodge, A. F. and A. M., two candidates, the last of a class of four, received the Master Mason degree, and five candidates for the degrees were approved by the lodge. The attendance at the meeting was unusually large. Refreshments were served by a committee of the Eastern Star order.

Two names appearing on the list of members of the Amherst College Musical club, which is soon to give a concert in this city, attract local attention. These young men are J. P. Grant, leader of the glee club and a saxaphone player and A. H. Grant, one of the banjo players. These boys are sons of Rev. J. H. Grant of Fairfield, Conn., who was a son of Major Hiram Grant, who went out from Putnam to the Civil war and afterwards located in North Carolina. Rev. J. H. Grant was a graduate of the Putnam high school, class of 1887, and from Amhurst college in 1892. Rev. Mr. Grant is well remembered here and has many friends in the city.

Acid Stomach

"Phillips Milk of Magnesia"

Better than Soda

Hereafter, instead of soda take a little "Phillips Milk of Magnesia" in water any time for indigestion or sour, acid, gassy stomach, and relief will come instantly.

For fifty years genuine "Phillips Milk of Magnesia" has been prescribed by physicians because it overcomes three times as much acid in the stomach as a saturated solution of bicarbonate of soda, leaving the stomach sweet and free from all gases. It neutralizes acid fermentations in the bowels and gently urges the souring waste from the system without purging. Besides, it is more pleasant to take than soda. Insist upon "Phillips." Twenty-five cent bottles, any drugstore.

Metropolitan service in a small community

THE fact that Danielson is a place of some 3500 inhabitants does not prevent Mr. E. V. Johnson, Manager of the local branch of the Eastern Dairies, Inc., from rendering big-city service to his customers—for by means of toll telephone calls he is able to fill all orders for ice cream.

"The size of the community does not warrant carrying in stock fancy molds and 'special' ice creams," explains Mr. Johnson, "but orders for these are often received on short notice. Toll telephone service enables us to call our other branches, and make prompt deliveries to our customers." And he adds that he has thus been able to build up a very desirable trade in these grades.

Toll telephone service recognizes no size. Metropolis or village, town or city—it is everywhere available to everyone who will call on it. It is "universal service" indeed.

In a type of retail business where success is wholly dependent upon the good-will of its customers, it is particularly important that every demand be met and every order filled. The toll telephone call, with its instant power of reaching near and far, is invaluable in its ability to help the business man give his customers the kind of service that builds permanent business success.

There are various classes of toll telephone service, designed to meet different needs. If you are not entirely familiar with their special features, give our local Exchange Manager the opportunity to explain them to you.

WILBUR AND CROWLEY APPROVE CANAL PROJECT

WASHINGTON, March 8.—(AP)—Secretary of the Navy Wilbur and Elmer L. Crowley, president of the Fleet corporation in letters today to Chairman Dempsey of the house rivers and harbors committee, both endorsed the proposal for an all-American canal to connect the Great Lakes with the Atlantic ocean via the Hudson river.

The proposed route recently was disapproved by a special board of army engineers as economically unsound and will be the subject of a hearing tomorrow before the river and harbor board of the engineers corps.

Secretary Wilbur said the proposed canal would add materially to our transportation system from the viewpoint of national defense. "A waterway of this type, to be an asset to the national defense, must be entirely within the limits of the United States," he asserted. Mr. Crowley said he favored the canal route through New York state and down the Hudson in preference to the proposed St. Lawrence river route.

STRIKERS FINED FOR INTERFERING WITH TRAFFIC

NEW YORK, March 8.—(AP)—Fines of $5 each were imposed today on 27 men and 15 women striking fur workers, who were arrested when police charged a parade of 500 strikers at Seventh avenue and 24th street and a melee ensued.

Magistrate Goodman in Jefferson market court, in fining the strikers censured them for blocking traffic and declared that while they might picket, they must not become disorderly.

The strikers were en route to a meeting hall when police ordered them to keep in line or disband. In the scrimmage that followed refusal of the men and women to disband until they reached the hall, several strikers received black eyes and damaged noses.

A general round-up of strikers found in the vicinity followed the first clash. Among those arrested was Benjamin Gold, manager of the New York joint board of furriers, a leader of the strike which started January 6, 12 days after employers declared a lockout.

Mr. Palmer was born in North Stonington, Nov. 6, 1851, son of the late Benjamin H. and Betsey A. Babcock Palmer. His family then lived at Pendleton hill. Following the death of his mother when Mr. Palmer was a boy, the family moved to Lisbon, where his father purchased and for a number of years operated the Round Hill farm. Mr. Palmer was married 50 years ago to Julia Morgan of Groton. Shortly after their marriage, Mr. and Mrs. Palmer moved to Poquonoc Bridge. Mrs. Palmer died 14 months ago and since that time Mr. Palmer has resided with his son, Charles R. Palmer.

Forty years ago Mr. Palmer was elected deacon of the Poquonoc Bridge Baptist church of which he was a devout member. During his 50 years as a resident of Poquonoc Bridge, Mr. Palmer achieved a high position among the townspeople. For years he cultivated a farm at Poquonoc Bridge until old age and attending infirmities compelled him to retire. NORWICH LEADS IN SEEKERS FOR WORK

HARTFORD, March 8.—(AP) — The five free employment bureaus of the state department of labor reported 2,739 applications for employment during February, or 150 more than during the previous month. The increased applications were more than offset, however, by the advance in requests for workers by employers, enabling the bureaus to find positions for 2,650 applicants or 326 more than were assisted in January.

At the Hartford office, which has the greatest number of employment applicants, largely due to the fact that many apply directly to the department at the capitol and are referred to the employment bureau, on Allyn street, reported a decrease of thirty four for the month, from 981 applications in January.

The greatest increase in applications for employment was received at the Norwich bureau, where 120 more persons applied than the 501 in January. At New Haven, the increase was from 392 to 437, and at Bridgeport, from 862 to 971. Applicants decreased at Waterbury, there being only 768 last month as compared with 853 the previous month.

REVENUE COLLECTOR'S OFFICE DIFFERENT FROM LAST YEAR

There are comparatively peaceful times this week at the office of Deputy Revenue Collector George M. Charbonneau in contrast with a year ago in the last week for the payment of income taxes. At that time his office in the county commissioner's room at the court house was often crowded full all day long and at times a line extended out into the hallway and down the stairs. In the final week, last year, Collector Charbonneau and the assistant assigned with him sometimes worked all day with hardly a chance to speak to each other, so constant was the stream of people filing in to fill out their income tax returns.

This year all is different and Mr. Charbonneau and his assistant are easily and promptly handling all the business that comes to them. The effect of the increased exemptions is seen in the decreased number who appear to make income tax returns. There are only about half of the number who came to the office last year.

FAIRVIEW RESERVOIR HAS WATER TO SPARE NOW

Fairview reservoir is brimful and a little water is running over the spillway while Stony Brook is three feet eight inches below the old high water mark. It is expected that Sunday's rain fall, 1.68 inches, will shortly bring Stony Brook reservoir to the old high water mark. Stony Brook reservoir's storage capacity has been greatly increased by the addition of a five foot dam so that, considering the top of the new dam, the reservoir is eight feet eight inches from full pond. The total rainfall for March so far has been 1.89 inches.

With the possibility of shutting off Stony Brook reservoir so that all the draught will be from Fairview, the former will be brought to be the full pond mark all the quicker.

AMATEUR TALENT NIGHT HAS ENTHUSIASTIC AUDIENCE

Monday night at Broadway theatre an enthusiastic crowd was on hand to witness the specially arranged programme by local talent.

Zim's novelty orchestra once again proved its worth, a feature number being The Prisoner's Song with John Kelly rendering the solo, for which several encores were demanded. Each one of the five numbers by the orchestra was a hit.

John Diachyshyn, the 16 year old Laurel Hill boy, a pupil of Professor Frank L. Farrell, again came out with flying colors for his piano numbers, first playing the second Nocturne by Lechetsky and following this with Le Cavalier, which was greeted with a storm of applause.

Mary Consentino gave a Spanish dance to the music of La Paloma, which showed her grace and versatility, and Jerome Dion of Taftville proved that he knew his instrument when it came his turn to play the saxophone. Since this was his first appearance upon the stage his slight nervousness was overlooked by the responsive crowd. Then came Louis Tringe with his accordion. He was scheduled for four numbers, but the audience apparently could not get enough and he had to play six before they would let him go.

Edward Slater and George La Fleur accompanied on the piano by William Smith, all of Willimantic, repeated their success of a previous appearance in vocal solos and duets, and were warmly greeted with applause when they were introduced. PUMPED OUT MAN-HOLE FOR TELEPHONE COMPANY

Showing a picture of the fire station on Joseph Perkins road, the March issue of the Telephone Bulletin contains the following story, of helpful co-operation on the part of the Norwich fire department with the telephone company:

The value of good public relations is well illustrated and the spirit of helpful co-operation which prevails between our company and the civic authorities in many cities and towns of the state is strikingly shown by a little story that was picked up in Norwich not long ago.

During the night a water main burst. One of our manholes in the center of the city was flooded and a cable was put out of service. Many of the business places in the central section of the city were threatened with a service interruption. But when the trouble was located during the night, an example was furnished of community spirit which is well worth record.

Our people in Norwich called Chief Stanton, of the Norwich fire department, told him what the trouble was and what the results would be to many business places if the trouble could not be repaired before they opened for business in the morning. This is what then happened.

One of the pumping engines, located on the outskirts of the city, but a new piece of fire apparatus by the way, was despatched to the manhole and pumped it clear of water so that our men could repair the trouble before business began in the morning.

Our force worked through much of the night on the job and had everything shipshape when Norwich was ready to go to business. Few of the business men of the city knew they had a narrow escape from being greatly inconvenienced by an interruption to their telephone service.

The fire department authorities of Norwich, friendly to us in every way, were quite alert to sense the importance to the community of constant telephone service. What, with a number of lines out of order, might have happened to the city no one can tell. But that business people and the community in general would have been greatly inconvenienced by such an event there is little doubt.

The community's fire fighting apparatus was used in a way perhaps not intended as a regular use, but one which was for the best interests of the community and the people in that community.

It was mighty nice of the firemen to give us a helping hand so promptly and especially during the night.

COMMENT ON JUDGE WHO WOULD RULE NEWSPAPERS

NEW ORLEANS, March 8.—(AP)—Commenting editorially on the order against newspaper publication of evidence developed at the trial in Bay St. Louis, Miss., of Jesse Favre, the New Orleans Item says:

"The judges object in suppressing the publication of testimony is to make it easier, by keeping the public in Hancock county in ignorance of the facts, to get an intelligent jury to try another case that is likely to grow out of the same facts. He raised the fearsome suggestion that a guilty man may escape through failure to procure a jury. * * * We reply it were better that a thousand guilty men escape that the blood-bought priceless, privilege of free speech and free press be abolished and the dark way opened to every indescribable oppression of the past—in order to punish them. For many millions died that these privileges might live." * *

The Meridian, Miss., Star writes: "Now in benighted Italy they do this sort of thing and in bloody Russia. Trotsky 'runs' soviet Russia with high handed tyranny. He would just as soon shoot a few editors as to swat the pesky Russian 'hoss fly'—and he does it.

"But this is America; this is Mississippi and we are entirely unused to such iron-bound methods—the dictatorship of neither the fascisti nor the proletariat rules in this land of sovereign citizens."

WILBUR AND CROWLEY APPROVE CANAL PROJECT

WASHINGTON, March 8.—(AP)—Secretary of the Navy Wilbur and Elmer C. Crowley, president of the Fleet Corporation in letters today to Chairman Dempsey of the house rivers and harbors committee both endorsed the proposal for an all-American canal to connect the Great Lakes with the Atlantic ocean via the Hudson river.

The proposed route recently was disapproved by a special board of army engineers as economically unsound and will be the subject of a hearing tomorrow before the river and harbor board of the engineers corps.

Secretary Wilbur said the proposed canal would add materially to our transportation system from the viewpoint of national defense. "A waterway of this type, to be an asset to the national defense, must be entirely within the limits of the United States," he asserted. Mr. Crowley said he favored the canal route through New York state and down the Hudson in preference to the proposed St. Lawrence river route.

STRIKERS FINED FOR INTERFERING WITH TRAFFIC

NEW YORK, March 8.—(AP)—Fines of $5 each were imposed today on 27 men and 15 women striking fur workers, who were arrested when police charged a parade of 500 strikers at Seventh avenue and 24th street and a melee ensued.

Magistrate Goodman in Jefferson market court, in fining the strikers censured them for blocking traffic and declared that while they might picket, they must not become disorderly.

The strikers were en route to a meeting hall when police ordered them to keep in line or distand. In the scrimmage that followed refusal of the men and women to disband until they reached the hall, several strikers received black eyes and damaged noses.

A general round-up of strikers found in the vicinity followed the first mass. Among those arrested was Benjamin Gold, manager of the New York joint board of furriers, a leader of the strike which started January 16, 12 days after employers declared a lockout.

Pneumonia caused 361 deaths in this city last week, compared with 283 for the corresponding week of 1925, and measles caused 49 deaths, compared with but two deaths for the same week last year.

NORWICH LEADS IN SEEKERS FOR WORK

HARTFORD, March 8.—(AP) — The five free employment bureaus of the state department of labor reported 3,739 applications for employment during February, or 150 more than during the previous month. The increased applications were more than offset, however, by the advance in requests for workers by employers, enabling the bureaus to find positions for 2,650 applicants or 326 more than were assisted in January.

At the Hartford office, which has the greatest number of employment applicants, largely due to the fact that many apply directly to the department at the capitol and are referred to the employment bureau, on Allyn street, reported a decrease of thirty four for the month, from 981 applications in January.

The greatest increase in applications for employment was received at the Norwich bureau, where 120 more persons applied than the 501 in January. REVENUE COLLECTOR'S OFFICE DIFFERENT FROM LAST YEAR

There are comparatively peaceful times this week at the office of Deputy Revenue Collector George M. Charbonneau in contrast with a year ago in the last week for the payment of income taxes. At that time his office in the county commissioner's room at the court house was often crowded full all day long and at times a line extended out into the hallway and down the stairs. In the final week, last year, Collector Charbonneau and the assistant assigned with him sometimes worked all day with hardly a chance to speak to each other, so constant was the stream of people filing in to fill out their income tax returns.

This year all is different and Mr. Charbonneau and his assistant are easily and promptly handling all the business that comes to them. The effect of the increased exemptions is seen in the decreased number who appear to make income tax returns. There are only about half of the number who came to the office last year

Fairview reservoir is brimful and a little water is running over the spillway while Stony Brook is three feet eight inches below the old high water mark. It is expected that Sunday's rain fall, 1.68 inches, will shortly bring Stony Brook reservoir to the old high water mark. Stony Brook reservoir's storage capacity has been greatly increased by the addition of a five foot dam so that, considering the top of the new dam, the reservoir is eight feet eight inches from full pond The total rainfall for March so far has been 1.99 inches.

With the possibility of shutting off Stony Brook reservoir so that all the draught will be from Fairview, the former will be brought to be the full pond mark all the quicker.

AMATEUR TALENT NIGHT HAS ENTHUSIASTIC AUDIENCE

Monday night at Broadway theatre an enthusiastic crowd was on hand to witness the especially arranged programme by local talent.

Zim's novelty orchestra once again proved its worth, a feature number being The Prisoner's Song with John Kelly rendering the solo, for which several encores were demanded. Each one of the five numbers by the orchestra was a hit.

Since this was his first appearance upon the stage his slight nervousness was overlooked by the responsive crowd. Then came Louis Trisno with his accordion. He was scheduled for four numbers, but the audience apparently could not get enough and he had to play six before they would let him go.

PUMPED OUT MAN-HOLE FOR TELEPHONE COMPANY

Showing a picture of the fire station on Joseph Perkins road, the March issue of the Telephone Bulletin contains the following story of helpful co-operation on the part of the Norwich fire department with the telephone company:

The value of good public relations is well illustrated and the spirit of helpful co-operation which prevails between our company and the civic authorities in many cities and towns of the state is strikingly shown by a little story that was picked up in Norwich not long ago.

During the night a water main burst. One of our manholes in the center of the city was flooded and a cable was put out of service. Many of the business places in the central section of the city were threatened with a service interruption. But when the trouble was located during the night, an example was furnished of community spirit which is well worth record.

Our people in Norwich called Chief Stanton, of the Norwich fire department, told him what the trouble was and what the results would be to many business places if the trouble could not be repaired before they opened for business in the morning. This is what then happened.

One of the pumping engines, located on the outskirts of the city, but a new piece of fire apparatus by the way, was despatched to the manhole and pumped it clear of water so that our men could repair the trouble before business began in the morning.

Our force worked through much of the night on the job and had everything shipshape when Norwich was ready to go to business. Few of the business men of the city knew they had a narrow escape from being greatly inconvenienced by an interruption to their telephone service.

The fire department authorities of Norwich, friendly to us in every way, were quite alert to sense the importance to the community of constant telephone service What, with a number of lines out of order, might have happened to the city no one can tell. But that business people and the community in general would have been greatly inconvenienced by such an event there is little doubt.

The community's fire fighting apparatus was used in a way perhaps not intended as a regular use, but one which was for the best interests of the community and the people in that community.

It was mighty nice of the firemen to give us a helping hand so promptly and especially during the night.

COMMENT ON JUDGE WHO WOULD RULE NEWSPAPERS

NEW ORLEANS, March 8.—(AP)—Commenting editorially on the order against newspaper publication of evidence developed at the trial in Bay St. Louis, Miss., of Jesse Favre, the New Orleans Item says:

"The judges object in suppressing the publication of testimony is to make it easier by keeping the public in Hancock county in ignorance of the facts, to get an intelligent jury to try another case that is likely to grow out of the same facts. He raised the fearsome suggestion that a guilty man may escape through failure to produce a jury. • • • We reply it were better that a thousand guilty men escape than the blood-bought principle, privilege or free speech and free press be abolished and the door was opened to every judge who is oppressed of the mistaken notion that in order to punish him, he must publicly defend all these privileges might give." • • •

The Meridian, Miss., Star writes:

"Now is indicated into what do this sort of thing and to bloody Russia. Tsarism 'runs' soviet Russia with hide, hobbled tyranny. He would last as soon short a few editors as to swat the pesky Russian 'nose fly'—and he does it.

"But this is America; this is Mississippi and no one entirely unused to such iron-fisted methods—the dictatorship of neither the fascisti nor the bolshevik rules subsist in this land of American citizens."

SUSIE WRITES OF HER EXPERIENCES AT KAPLAN-PETROLLE BOUT IN HARTFORD

Susie took in the Kaplan-Petrolle bout at Hartford last week which she describes as the mob scene from the battle of the Broad street armory. She is a little worse for wear but outside of that she had a good time. Her letter follows:

Dear Sports Ed:

Well Ed. old dear, I has seen and took part in my first professional boxin' bout, an' only bein' a little worse for the wear an' tear of the game a good time was had by all, as them country folks say. Yep, me and the boy friend goes to Hartford last Monday night to see that Kaplan feller swap haymakers with Billy Petrolle but it ain't so much. Where I gets the kick an' when I say'e kick I means kick, is tryin' to crash them gates to get inta that armory. Me and the boy friend sure does participates in that mob sceen in the battle of the Broad street armory, an' believe me, we shoulda been decorated with somethin' besides black an' blue spots if they was giving out any medals that night.

Me and the boy gets a good start in that new bus of his'n and the ride was perfect seein' how the boy friend is a expert at drivin' one hand. Well, we gets to the Capitol city without no accidents an' parks the bus in back of some Norwich fellers what's also goin' to the scrap. We beats it for the armory an' by the time we gets there it's a drizzlin' rain an' the ground is as muddy as Boswell avenue but it ain't got near so many deep holes. When we gets to the place we sees a great big crowd out front so we pushes right up front 'cause we has bought our tickets in advance. It ain't no use 'cause that crowd ain't goin' to let nobody pass an' we finds ourselves right in the middle of the biggest crowd I was ever in except that time I went to Boston. That crowd in Boston was gentle 'long side of that mob at Hartford. At first it want so bad an' everybody was kinda good natured but the crowd kept pilin' up an' the rain come pourin' down till everybody ain't got no patients an' is ready to take a sock at somebody that speaks outa turn.

We been standin' there awhile waitin' for the doors to open up when a feller comes out and makes a speech about being patient, an' I thinks if I stay there much longer I'se goin' to be a patient for some good newmonia doc. I gets the idea that maybe we might pull a few strings an' get in ahead of the gang. So's I tell the boy friend to go call up a feller on a Hartford paper what usta live in Norwich an' see if he can't help us out. The boy locates a phone an' the feller tells him to go see Mr. ——— who is from Waterbury. Well we gets hold of a feller whats sellin' tickets asks for the Waterbury bird but we finds out that the feller has been dead for a coupla years. If I knew what kinda life that feller from Waterbury had led I mighta doped out what that poop feller meant. Just the same I think he put somethin' over on us an' if I ever get the chance I'm goin' to ride him proper.

Well we gets back in the crowd again but I can see we has lost a lotta ground but it ain't often our feet. I'm standing there hanging onta the boy when some big feller, who is wearin' them trench shoes, size No. 14, plants them dogs right on top of mine. Oh boy, down goes my feet in the mud. Gosh, I'm mad an' I says to the feller, "Just 'cause I walk on them feet it ain't no sign you can." All he says was "Go wash your neck sister." Well, that made me mad an' I unhitches one of my feets from the mire an' kicks him in the shins. He lets outa yell an' socks a feller next to him in the jaw an' the feller don't say nothin' cause he's out cold but ain't got no place to fall 'cause the crowd is holdin' him up.

Well, I'm bein' crushed flatter'n the prodigal pancake when I sees a feller from Norwich what runs a drug store. I'm watchin' him when all of a sudden I sees him throw a faint an' a coupla big fellers grab him an' rush him outa the crowd. I, thinks, ain't it too bad 'cause he wont see no fight but I finds out later he ain't so dumb 'cause he feints that faint on purpose to get outa the jam. We stands there some more gainin' a coupla feet on ground every ten or 15 minutes but we's goin' ahead so I don't complain much. The boy is havin' his troubles an' he confides to me that he has lost a shoe an' is tryin' to get along on one foot which is terrible for it's tough goin' with two feet.

We gets almost to the door when I spots a feller what works in a Norwich cigar store. He's havin' no better luck than we is. All of a sudden a woman what's standin' near him faints. Here's where the Norwich kid uses his bean for somethin' besides a hatrack. He grabs hold of the woman with a coupla other fellers an' the crowd lets 'em through into the hall. The feller was hold of one of the woman's foots and he ain't no more use than a mustache on a cigar counter clerk, but he gets in just the same, so I gives him credit. We ain't so lucky an' we has to wait. The police ain't no use either and neither is the Natural Guards 'cause that crowd ain't in no humor to stand no force from no cops.

Well, bime bye we gets into the armory much the worse for wear an' then we tries to find out where we is to sit. When we gets to where our two seats we finds a coupla big husky fellers parked in 'em. The boy friend says "Them's our seats" an' the big feller says "Try an get 'em", which we don't. Them seats cost us $5.50 an' we ain't goin' to get stuck so's we takes a coupla other seats an' tears the numbers off the back of the seats so's nobody can prove nothin'. We is sitting there waitin' for the show to start when a feller and another Jane comes down. The feller is a nice boy an' I feels kinda sorry for him but its a case of when you is at a Hartford fight do as the fighters do, an' we did. The young feller says "Pawdon me, but I think you has our seats." The boy friend looks up at the feller an grins an' says "Pawdon me but just try an' get 'em." "What's the number of them seats?" asks the feller. "What number has you got?" asks the boy and the feller says "108". "Well," says the boy, "your seats is on the other side of the ring, these seats ain't got no numbers," which they ain't now. "Pawdon me, for troublin' you" says the nice feller. The boy friend grins and says, "Say, feller, after losin' a shoe, havin' my feet crushed in the mud, my coat tore up the back, and bein' black an' blue all over, you don't think you can make me any more trouble, do you?" With that the feller tries to get a nother seat but the last time I sees them is about the last round of the main bout and I sees 'em parked in a window. Guess they didn't find them seats after all.

Well after the fight and them other settin' parties is over we gets out an' goes to the car. When we gets there that Norwich crowd is makin' a awful holler 'cause somebody has pinched their machine. It's tough luck an' we takes them to the police station but they don't find their car so's we take a coupla of 'em home an' somebody else takes a couple more. They ain't the only ones what loses their car. A feller what's a judge over in New Britain loses his back but I heard the other day that it was a car his friend let him take. Oosh ain't that hard luck? Well we drives on home, the boy usin' two hands seein' we has got company. There ain't goin' to be no more fights for me any more.

Say Ed, I'm thinkin' of conductin' a straw vote for mayor of this town an' if it's all right with you I wish you would let the folks send in their nominations to me in care of you. How about it?

Yours as ever,
SUSIE.

NO WORTHY OPPONENTS FOR MISS WILLS AT NICE

NICE, France, March 8.—(AP)—The Nice tennis tournament, which opened today, suffered two heavy losses when Frau Neppach, the German champion, scratched her entry and left suddenly for Berlin and Senorita de Alvarez, of Spain, announced that she probably would not play on account of fatigue. This leaves Helen Wills, America's women champion, without a worthy opponent in the singles.

Frau Neppach yesterday received a second ultimatum from the German tennis federation threatening to debar her from competition in Germany if she would play again on the Riviera. Frau Neppach said she was unable to understand the attitude of the German federation and contended that she was Austrian. However, she is unwilling to risk losing her right to play in this year's Berlin tournament.

After Frau Neppach had withdrawn Senorita de Alvarez's father announced that he would insist that his daughter take a week's rest at Cannes and not enter the Nice tournament. The Nice promoters now are attempting to persuade Mlle. Didi Vlasto to enter the singles although she has already refused once to do so.

The handicap doubles match between King Gustav of Sweden and the former Swedish champion Betterthwaltz and Prince Chichibu, second son of the emperor of Japan, paired with R. L. Murray of England resulted in a victory for the Swedish pair, 6-1, 6-1. The bespectacled son of the Mikado was wild, sending many balls over the fence in the early games, much to the delight of the small boys employed to recover the balls. These boys laughed delightedly whenever Chichibu's imperial arm swung on the empty air.

On leaving the courts Prince Chichibu tried to avoid cameramen, but King Gustave led him before the photographers saying, "All good players must consent to this."

The only American playing today George Hull of New York, was eliminated by Brame Hillyard, of England, 6-0, 6-3.

Miss Helen Wills is scheduled to play Miss Helen Shirley of England in the first round tomorrow afternoon.

LEGLESS BOWLER ENTERS FOR NATIONAL HONORS

TOLEDO, Ohio, March 8—(AP)—The appearance of a legless bowler on the alleys of the American bowling congress tournament here today marked the first instance of its kind in the 25 years history of the congress.

The bowler was Peter Gregory of Detroit. He was entered from the Toledo Rotary club, taking a position left vacant by a bowler who failed to show up.

It is customary for a bowler to run several steps before hurling the ball but this is impossible for Gregory who walks to the foul line on his stumps. It is purely an arm motion that enables the maimed pinster to reach the end of the runway.

Gregory averaged 180 for his three games in the five-man event.

Fifty six other Toledo teams were on the alleys tonight in two squads. The first of the out-of-town teams are on the schedule for Friday night.

YALE CREWS TAKE TO RIVER FOR FIRST PRACTICE

NEW HAVEN, March 8.—(AP)—The outdoor rowing season at Yale was ushered in today under favorable conditions. Four varsity crews under the direction of Head Coach Ed Leader, tow varsity 150-pound crews and two freshman 150-pound crews were out on the Quinnipiac river this afternoon for the first time this year.

Captain Kingsbury of the varsity crew was unable to take part in the first day's workout because of a minor injury, but he will be in his seat at number six later in the week. His place today was filled by D. T. Bartholomew of Ansonia, a sophomore, who was a member of one of the 1928 class crews last year.

Warren at number 7 and Peterson in the bow seat were the only members in the Blue shell today who rowed in the champion crew a year ago.

DIZZY BLONDE TAKES FEATURE AT MIAMI

NEW YORK, March 8—(AP)—Dizzy Blonde recorded her fourth victory in seven starts at Miami today by taking the Venetian Causeway, a six-furlong dash, in 1:13 4-5, followed by Postillion and Chesterbrook. Word was received from Orlando that the race meeting there again had been postponed; this time to March 20.

The Winter Haven handicap at Tampa, six furlongs, went to Seth's Alibi in 1:17 4-5. Monday morning was second and Nassau third.

Wilkes Barre scored in the fifth at New Orleans when the favorite Harland, quit after a half mile. Villager and Mary Ellen O were in the money. The time for the mile and a furlong was 1.55 1-5.

PLANSKY WITHDRAWS FROM ALL-AROUND ATHLETIC MEET

NEW YORK, March 8.—(AP)—Anthony J. Plansky of Georgetown, intercollegiate decathlon champion, withdrew today from the indoor all-around championship event featuring the Knights of Columbus track meet here March 16 because he believes he would be outclassed by other competitors. Charley Hoff of Norway, Harold Osborn of the Illinois A. C. and Emerson Norton of Georgetown.

Plansky notified K. of C. officials of his decision after training for a week at Georgetown with Norton and Hoff in preparation for the indoor test, which is to comprise seven events. Plansky feels that the indoor program is not as well suited to his capabilities as the more elaborate outdoor decathlon.

PUTNAM BASEBALL TEAM BOOKING GAMES FOR SEASON

The Belding-Heminway Silk Sox, formerly known as the H. K. H. baseball club of Putnam, would like to book games with the best teams in eastern Connecticut for the week ends. The team would prefer to schedule out-of-town games for Saturdays and home games on Sundays as the Adams field, home of the former Nightingale team, is being conditioned for fast ball.

The silk men will send a fast team on the field this year for the line-up has been strengthened by the addition of Danny McElroy, the star twirler from Providence, and "Cooler" Nelson, the Nightingale backstop. Managers wishing to book games can write to F. H. Murphy, Mgr., Belding-Heminway Silk Co., Putnam, Conn.

EMPS-NUTMEG GAME ENDS VERY UNSATISFACTORILY

The game at the Y gym last evening between the Nutmeg and Y Emp fives ended in a most unsatisfactory manner, there being a dispute after three quarters had been played. Although the game was awarded to the Nutmegs by forfeit the Nutmegs would rather win a regular contest.

Accordingly, the Nutmegs challenge the Emps for a game on the Nutmeg floor at an early date. For arrangements answer through this paper, if possible before Friday.

SPORT WORLD BRIEFS

Babe Ruth has been passed more times than any other player in the big leagues.

Bobby Jones had attained national prominence as a golf player when barely 14 years of age.

Next to the heavyweight division, the lightweight division has always been the most popular among boxing fans.

Tiger Flowers, the new world's middleweight champion, was a cotton stevedore in Savannah before he entered the boxing game eight years ago.

San Francisco saw its first game of baseball on Washington's birthday in 1860.

The bout between Gene Tunney and Young Stribling is expected to attract a record crowd to the Miami Stadium on the night of March 12.

The Oxford-Cambridge boat race on March 27 will be the seventy-seventh contest between the rival English varsity crews. The first race took place in 1829.

King Solomon, who has been laid up for some time, expects to return to the ring before the end of March. His first engagement probably will be with Jack Sharkey before one of the Boston clubs.

On March 15, 1876, nearly half a century ago, William Muldoon, who has just been reappointed to the New York State Boxing commission, won the Graeco-Roman wrestling championship of the Police A. C.

Forty years ago the wrestlers who furnished the "big time" stuff in the professional mat game were William Muldoon, Evan Lewis, J. H. McLaughlin, Tom Cannon, John Faulkner, H. M. Dufur and Charlie Moth.

In the Oxford-Cambridge boat race in 1885 one of the Oxford crew dislocated his shoulder; but with amazing pluck he struggled on with his sound arm and contributed an heroic part to the Dark Blue victory by three lengths.

A great hockey tournament with an international flavor is scheduled to be held in Hamburg during the Easter holidays. Besides 25 of the best clubs in Germany, two well-known teams from Denmark and Switzerland will complete.

On September 22, 1845, a number of young men in New York city organized the Knickerbocker club and drew up the first code of playing rules of baseball. The Knickerbocker club continued in existence for nearly 40 years.

A match has been clinched between Mike Dundee and Eddie "Kid" Wagner of Philadelphia. The agreement calls for a contest of 12 rounds to take place before a club in Dayton O., on the night of Monday, March 15.

Jack Dempsey says he will have no announcement to make in regards to a fight until April 1. And some say the day has been quite appropriately chosen.

The racing season in Canada will get under way on May 22. As usual, the Ontario Jockey Club of Toronto will start the ball rolling with the opening of its spring meeting at Woodbine.

In adding Bobby Veach and Nemo Leibold to his roster of players Manager Hank Gowdy of the Columbus American association team believes he has given the needed strength to the Senators' outfield.

Charley Hoff, the Norwegian pole vault champion, who set 13 feet 5 1-8 inches as a new world's indoor record at the Johns Hopkins games, is said to have done 14 feet in practice several years ago.

According to the program mapped out by Manager McGraw the Giants will play their first exhibition game of the season on March 9, when they will line up against the Buffalo International league team at Sarasota.

Recognizing the fact that Richmond is probably the best drawing card in the circuit, the Virginia league has arranged its schedule so that the Richmond Colts will play at home on all holidays and all Saturdays through the entire season.

The intree course, near Liverpool, where the Grand National Steeplechase has its annual renewal this month, is 4 miles 856 yards long, and there are 30 fences to be jumped. The majority of these fences are of thorn thickened with gorse, and they have an average height of five feet and a width of three feet.

Tiger Flowers, the new middleweight champion, promises to be the most popular negro battler since the days of Peter Jackson. Jackson alone of the many negros who have splashed the horizon of boxing history, was a really popular figure, and when he died he was mourned as sincerely as any white fighter ever has been. He fought bravely and sympathetically, and was modest in his victory.

The publication of Queen Victoria's diary, containing her admonitions to the then Prince of Wales in regards to his attendance at the races, serves to recall the fact that Edward VII, as he afterward became, was the keenest of all turf patrons. In his early career he had a long spell of ill luck, but he ultimately broke this when he achieved the ambition of every English horse owner by winning the Derby.

MAN WEIGHING ONLY 120 SAVED 240 POUND MOTHER

NEW YORK, March 8—(AP)—A young man weighing only 120 pounds rescued his 240 pound mother from almost certain death by fire today when he carried her on a fire escape to the roof of their 104th street home.

Alarmed by shouts from the street, Mrs. Rose Speranza opened the door of her top floor apartment and was overcome by flames and smoke. Her son, James, found her lying on the floor, badly burned, and at the cost of severe burns to himself carried her to the roof.

Even there the son found they were not yet safe. Flames were shooting up several air shafts and the roof itself was sagging under his feet. Another man came to his assistance and the two finally were able to hoist the mother over a four foot opening to the top of another building from which she was carried downstair to safety.

DELANEY FORCES LOHMAN TO QUIT AFTER NINE ROUNDS OF HARD FIGHTING

NEW YORK, March 8—(AP)—Jack Delaney of Bridgeport, Conn., scored a technical knockout over Joe Lohman, of Toledo in the tenth round of a 12-round match in Brooklyn tonight.

Three times Lohman was knocked downward in the fifth and ninth the bell saved him. After two minutes of battering in the tenth his seconds threw a towel into the ring in token of surrender.

Delaney used left hooks up to the fifth and scored heavily but after that his sight bored into Lohman continually and had him in a bad way for the remainder of the bout. Delaney weighed 172 1-2 and Lohman 167.

In a six-round preliminary Murray Gitlitz of New Haven, Conn., outpointed Dan O'Connell of Boston.

MARINES PROVE TOO STRONG FOR "Y" TEAM

There was plenty of speed in the "Y" gym last night when the fast Sub Base Marines matched their skill against the "Y" Seniors, defeating them by the score of 19 to 29. The game was perhaps one of the most hotly contested battles played on the "Y" court this season, and included a liberal share of roughness besides some spurts of good passework and shooting.

The score stood close throughout the game and the winner was in doubt until the last few minutes of play when the Marines caged several counters which thus closed the game in their favor.

Watch Your Breakfast

Eat food that supplies "balanced" ration after night's fast

HOW you feel all morning depends largely on what you eat for breakfast. Thousands have unenergetic forenoons because of wrong breakfast eating.

To feel right, you must have well-balanced, complete breakfast ration. At most other meals—lunch and dinner—you get it. But breakfast is a hurried meal, often badly chosen.

Thus Quaker Oats, containing 16% protein, food's great tissue builder, 58% carbohydrate, its great energy element, plus all-important vitamines and the "bulk" that makes laxatives seldom needed, is the dietetic urge of the world today.

It is food that "stands by" you through the morning. Quick Quaker cooks in 3 to 5 minutes. That's faster than plain toast. Don't deny yourself the natural stimulation this rich food offers you.

If Teeth Lack Gleam Just Do This

Gives sparkling whiteness quickly

Please accept full 10-day tube free of this remarkable new method that leading dental authorities urge . . . note the difference in teeth and gums as dingy film coat goes.

• • •

The prettiest smile becomes ugly when teeth look clouded. Now modern science restores "off color" teeth to dazzling whiteness.

It's been found that dingy teeth come simply from a film that forms on teeth. A stubborn film old-type dentifrices did not successfully remove. That's why brushing failed you.

Run your tongue across your teeth and you can feel that film now—a sort of slippery coating. Beneath it are the white teeth you envy.

It absorbs discolorations from food, smoking, etc. It invites tooth decay, gum troubles and pyorrhea because it breeds bacteria.

Now, in a new-type dentifrice called Pepsodent, a scientific combatant has been found. Leading dentists widely urge it. All druggists have it. 10-day test sent free.

BUILDING OPERATIONS IN NORWICH

The first week in March saw no marked increase in building activities in Norwich and vicinity although two building permits were granted during the week by Fire Marshall Howard L. Stanton. This, however, was two more than were granted during the month of February when the fire marshal did not issue a single permit. Local contractors are not alarmed at the inactivity of building and anticipate a good year although there has been little doing during the first two months of 1926.

A number of alteration jobs are being done in local buildings in the business district. The store of the O'Neill Electric Co. is being remodeled and enlarged. Several partitions on the ground floor have been removed and the show room is made much larger.

The work of remodeling the second story of the Fay block on Franklin square has been completed by Contractor Sweeney and the Far East restaurant has opened for business.

The store on the opposite side of the square has also been remodeled and new ice boxes installed and is occupied by the Norwich Public market.

Work progresses rapidly on the building at the corner of Franklin and Market streets by Contractor Sweeney who is remodeling the building.

The permits issued by Fire Marshal Stanton during the past week are as follows:

To John Dabrieul to erect a frame garage at 97 Summit street. The garage will be 22 x 25 feet and will accommodate 2 cars. The garage is the property of William Fox.

To Joseph B. Pysyk to erect an addition to the present frame house at the corner of Main street and Hamilton avenue. The addition will be of frame and hollow tile construction and will be 30 x 40 feet. The exterior finish will be in stucco with a tar and gravel roof. The foundation will be of concrete.

ZONING BOARD ISSUES SEVEN PERMITS IN WESTERLY

(Special to The Bulletin)

WESTERLY, March 8—Zoning building permits for the first week in March were issued by Zoning Inspector Louis J. Rossi as follows:

REAL ESTATE SALES AND MORTGAGE LOANS

The sales of real estate in Norwich during the past week totaled five, two less than for the same week in 1925. The mortgage loans for the past week in March in 1925 were $31,400 as compared to $8,700 in 1926.

In New London during the past week there were eight sales of real estate, an increase of three sales over the same week a year ago. The mortgage loans for the respective weeks were $55,275 and $21,950.

Building Permits In State

It is to be hoped that the figures showing the totals of building permits issued in the leading Connecticut cities and towns during the last week in February have marked the low point in the ebb of construction activity that was in evidence during the month just past says the Commercial Record. The week's total of 104 building permits issued was the lowest weekly record we have seen in some time. In the like week a year ago there were 243 permits issued for new construction estimated to cost $1,167,-000. The total estimated cost of work permitted for this past week was $[illegible].

New London

The permit has been issued to Margaret V. LaBlanc for a cottage and garage on Vauxhall street. The contract for the proposed construction has been awarded to Harry E. Green, Vauxhall extension, Waterford. The house will be 26x28 feet, of frame construction, arranged for one family. The completed cost of the dwelling and garage will be about $6,500.

George N. Dayton, Broad street extension, Waterford, has the contract for a house on West street. The house will be of frame construction arranged for one family.

The contract has been awarded to Carl E. Burgess, 29 Henry street for an addition and alterations to the store building at 558-562 Bank street, for Angelina Messere. The addition will be in two sections, 14x36 feet and 8x43 feet, respectively. The enlargement will provide an additional store making three in all. The construction will be of brick. Plate glass store fronts and other improvements are indicated in the plans.

Work will be started next month by Joseph T. St. Germain, 960 Bank street, on a dwelling on Montauk avenue. The residence will contain eight rooms and will have all modern conveniences, including hot water heat and tile baths. Mr. St. Germain is finishing work on the school building erected by him in Westerly, R. I.

Building Permits

Charles J. Long, frame garage, Colman street $400.

Margaret V. LaBlanc, cottage and garage, Vauxhall street, $6,500.

Number of permits issued for the week, 3; estimated cost of buildings, $6,950.

ALLOWING LEEWAY FOR PAYING PERSONAL TAXES

Leeway until the first of June for the payment of the personal tax which is due Feb. 1 is to be given in Norwich, following a conference between the collector of the personal tax, Miss Nellie V. Harrington and the selectmen. These officials have taken into consideration the fact that the present period of business depression has resulted in considerable unemployment in Norwich. The bills for the last tax on the enrollment of October 1925, have all been mailed by the collector, but non-receipt of a bill does not excuse any one who is liable for the tax from paying it. The tax is due from all between the ages of 21 and 60 who are not exempt by any reason.

Previously the collection of this tax has been allowed to drag along almost indefinitely, but a new law provides for prompt collection. Under the understanding reached by Miss Harrington and the selectmen, the formal demand for payment will be deferred until the first of June but after that the usual steps will be taken to collect all unpaid personal taxes at that time.

The statute applying to personal taxes and their collection is contained in the following:

Section 2 of an act amending an act concerning enrollment for and time of payment of the personal tax passed by the last general assembly and approved March 25, 1925, which is now part of the general statutes of the state of Connecticut.

Section 1155 of the general statutes is amended to read as follows: The rate maker or other authorized officer of a consolidated town and city, or of any consolidated town and borough and the selectmen of every town, shall prepare a rate bill assessing a tax of two dollars on every person whose name shall appear in said list and may at any time thereafter correct such rate bill by adding thereto the names of any person erroneously omitted and by erasing therefrom the names of any persons erroneously added there to or included there in; such tax shall be due and payable on or before November fourteenth if the consolidated municipality or other town shall have a population of less than ten thousand by the census of the United States last prior, but, if the population shall exceed ten thousand, then the tax shall be due and payable on the first of each year, except in the town and city of New Haven, where such tax shall be due and payable on January first of each year.

HUGE FOUNTAIN HAS PLACE IN CHICAGO'S GRANT PARK

CHICAGO, March 8. (AP)—One of the largest and most beautiful fountains in the world will be completed in Grant Park, Chicago's downtown 206 acre front yard. It was the gift to the city of Miss Kate Buckingham, the last of a well known Chicago family and will cost a half million dollars when completed. She added a fund of $200,000 for its upkeep.

The fountain will be the central feature of a spacious plaza, at one end of which the St. Gaudens statue of Lincoln has been mounted. At the other end, space is reserved for a statue of Washington. The group lies just inside the outer boulevard along Lake Michigan. The fountain is the fourth major project of Grant Park, the others being the Art Museum, the Field Museum of Natural History and the soldiers Field stadium.

LIPS THAT TOUCH LIQUOR CANNOT MARRY IN TAKASE

TOKYO, March 8 (AP)—At least one village in Japan is "dry" in the accepted prohibition sense of the word. The young women residents, by refusing definitely to marry any young man who has not taken the pledge, are declared to be responsible.

The members of the Young Women's association of Takase noticed that an abnormal quantity of Sake, the national Japanese drink, was being consumed by the "young bloods." They organized and voted unanimously to have nothing to do with any youth who drank sake.

NORWICH DOINGS 75 YEARS AGO

Quick work by local police, in spreading the alarm, and by Boston and Roxbury police, resulted in the arrest of two well known criminals at Roxbury 75 years ago, charged with robbery of two prominent Norwich stores. In court a low bond was fixed and this caused anger among the people, who felt that the men should be held not allowed at liberty on a small bond, thus allowing them to continue to ply their thieving trade.

Items in part, from the Norwich Courier of 1851 are as follows:

Tuesday, March 4, 1851—The Eagleville Cotton mill is being advertised for sale at public auction and there is every indication that there will be lively bidding for this choice piece of mill property. The property consists of two large stone mill buildings, a number of dwelling houses, various other mill buildings and 165 acres of land. A large stone dam is also a part of the property. It is estimated that the property cost fully $150,000 to develop and it is certainly one of the choicest pieces of mill property in this section being only about six miles from Norwich.

Norwich had a visitor last night, a small snow storm, which although not of long duration, covered the ground to the depth of about a half inch.

A modest gentleman in a Massachusetts city has hit upon a happy solution to the problem of arising from bed when people come to his front door at night. He has rigged a gutta percha mouth piece by the side of the front doorbell and attached to the mouth piece is a long piece of gutta percha tubing, reaching to the side of his bed. By this he is able to speak directly to the person at the door without bothering to arise from his bed.

Collin M. Ingersoll, Esq., of New Haven, is to lecture next Wednesday evening before the Young Men's Lyceum, at Uncas hall. The subject of his talk will be Russia, he having recently returned from that country.

Thursday, March 6, 1851—People in New London county are very much exposed at the renomination of George Bliss, Esq., for sheriff, for probably no other occupant of this office has been so universally popular with all people and parties as Mr. Bliss.

In 1851 the London Times said, "At the end of the next half century the Americans, having a population of one hundred and ninety millions, will make small work with the Canadas and West Indies. There cannot be a doubt that if the Union lasts that long, the United States will be the greatest nation the world ever saw."

A woman in a southern city, about four weeks ago, presented her husband with three fine boys. Ten days later she was again taken ill and soon afterwards she presented her husband a fourth boy. This is a singular case according to physicians of the country.

Saturday, March 8, 1851—A bold robbery was perpetrated at Apple hall, in the store of Messrs. Currier & Co., one night this week, when robbers broke in a window at the rear of the store and stole a large quantity of choice clothing. The company estimate the loss to be not less than $2,000 and believe it may be more than this amount.

The robbers broke into the store of J. B. Shaw and stole two large trunks and this led to their undoing for a description of the trunks was given the police and word was sent to all surrounding cities. Boston officers, assisted by officers in Roxbury arrested the notorious "Jim" Edgerton (alleged accomplice of Bristol Bill.) The property was recovered and Officer Prentice of Norwich went to Boston to bring the prisoner here to stand trial.

Edgerton, with a companion were given a hearing and bond over to the superior court. In their home in Roxbury were found many articles of clothing and several complete sets of burglar tools.

There is considerable feeling at the small amount of bonds required and Edgerton evidently is satisfied for he thanked the court for placing the bond at a low figure. Knowing that he is a dangerous criminal it is suggested that he be held without bond, or at least that a very high bond be required. An old saying is "A bird in the hand is worth two in the bush," and this is applicable to falsbirds as well as the feathered tribe.

Much anxiety prevails respecting the fate of Sir John Franklin, who has not returned from his trip to the polar regions, although long overdue. It is feared that mishap has befallen his party and that all may now be dead.

Norwich and New York boats did not sail yesterday because of the severe snow storm which was raging over Long Island sound.

SHOULD CHRISTIANIZE MONEY, SAYS METHODIST PASTOR

The pastor of Trinity Methodist church, Norwich, Rev. J. Harlow Graham, has sent each member of the congregation a circular letter in which he says in substance:

Dear Friend: One year ago, I wrote a special letter to each person who has come into the fellowship of Trinity Methodist church, under my ministry. I am doing so again this year.

I want to express to you the fact that you have been continually in my thoughts and prayers. I have been very anxious to see you all succeeding in your personal Christian living, happy and busy in the life and work of the church and growing in truth and in character.

There are four lines of church participation which every member should engage in, namely, (1) worship, (2) learning, (3) service, (4) giving. I covet for each of you growth in these graces.

Just now, as our church year draws to its close, two matters should especially be mentioned—Lenten services and church support for the new year. Enclosed you will find a folder listing the Lenten worship services. Please plan especially to attend the Thursday night communion service.

Enclosed also, is a card for pledging church attendance. Will you sign it and drop it in the collection plate? A careful record is to be kept of all these cards, and the attendance checked or punched. Let us make the Lenten season a time of heart-searching and of uplooking. Let us grapple with our own wayward and unresting hearts and find higher goodness and deeper peace.

Secondly—The annual canvass for funds is soon to be held. The church urges upon all of us the duty of making our church support and the use of all our money a matter of prayer and religious consideration. The church teaches us that we should Christianize our thinking of and our use of money as truly as we would Christianize our morals on our manners. Sometimes the new convert is tempted to carry over into his church life the unchristian theory that God and the church have no moral claims upon his money. I sincerely hope that not one person in this group of people who have joined the Trinity church during my ministry will be overcome by such a temptation.

We must raise for the new year about $5,500 for the church work in Norwich, and slightly less than $2,900 for work outside Norwich; and we will have somewhat under 300 subscribers to this budget.

As your pastor, I recommend my own method, which is to give one-half of a tithe of all my income to the church.

Let us approach the anniversary of our Saviour's suffering and death and resurrection, with deep and solemn appreciation. Today He reigns in a spiritual kingdom on earth. Let us help to enlarge that kingship, especially in our own hearts and lives.

Faithfully yours,
HARLOW GRAHAM.

Please assume that as your pastor, I am always on call, for any helpful service I can render. If you have spiritual or other difficulties, do not hesitate to bring them for any light I may be able to offer.

Art may be long at times, but it is usually too short to make both ends meet.

GOLD OR SILVER NECKLET IS FAD OF NEW YORK WOMEN

NEW YORK, March 8 (AP)—Smart New York women are sporting a brand new sign of their slavery to fashion. It is a solid gold or silver necklet in its plain metal design much like the iron "wedding ring" worn by ladies of certain primitive African tribes. In fact it has been called the "Twentieth Century Wedding Ring," or, by rapid alteration the "Alimony Ring."

Introduced in Paris by Raquel Meller, French singer, the necklet was brought here by Gertrude Lawrence, English star in one of the Broadway revues. One fashionable shop alone reports that it sold more than 2,000 of the necklets to debutantes, young society women and matrons during January.

Our respect for old age depends greatly on whether it is applied to men and women or to boarding house poultry.

KIDNAPPED NEW LONDON SMALL BOY LOCATED MONDAY IN JERSEY CITY

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON March 8—Jacob Sapala, 7, son of Mr. and Mrs. Jacob Sapala, 49 Sussex street, Jersey City, N. J., who was kidnapped yesterday afternoon when his mother visited the residence of Adam Drombroski, 80 Potter street, where the child had been placed for keeping by the father of the youth, has been located. This afternoon the Jersey City police notified the New London authorities that the child had been returned to that city and was in the custody of the father. What action Sapala will take is not known, the couple have been estranged several weeks.

ALLEN PENHALLOW DIES FROM PNEUMONIA

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, March 8—Allen Penhallow, for several years an assessor in New London, died at his home at 56 Faire Harbor Place early this morning from pneumonia and a complication of diseases. Mr. Penhallow had been more or less in public life for many years. He was a moulder by trade and worked with his father in the old Wilson foundry many years, being engaged in that calling as he was in all else that he undertook. He was employed as a moulder of work for a long time and made the equipment of school children also. In politics he was a republican of the regular type, firm in his convictions as to what was right and what was wrong. He lived here about 75 years and won the respect of all who had his acquaintance. In the assessor's office he was a thorough builder an accurate estimate of the values of property and a knowledge of where all property was located. When the change of the form of government came in New London his place was given to another and Mr. Penhallow left the office, though his services were often sought in the searching of real estate titles. He married a daughter of the late Hon. Chapel and she and one daughter, Susie, survive him.

Two more coast guard sailors mixed things with the police, Saturday night and as a result they appeared in the police court this morning with their heads bandaged. Two were ordered to pay heavy fines for intoxication and for interfering with and resisting a police officer in the discharge of his duties Arthur Herriot and Daniel Carroll. It was represented in court that a room on Methodist street although for what purpose was not disclosed, Carroll said that Herriot came to the room intoxicated and soon afterward left there. Carroll represented that he sought Herriot and found him in the custody of Policeman John Clifford. Carroll took hold of his charge and sought to induce Clifford to release him, that Carroll might take him to the station. Carroll was so persistent that Officer Clifford absolutely declined to release Herriot, and then there was a scuffle. Policeman Clifford walloped the sailor on the head with his nightstick. Herriot received a couple of blows also to quiet him. Both men pleaded guilty as charged. The fine imposed on Herriot was $10 for intoxication and $25 for resisting and Carroll was ordered to pay a fine of $5 for intoxication and $25 for abuse of the officer. They raised the money and paid.

Frank Palmer, employed in the country, got into town yesterday and imbibed some of the stuff that goes for whiskey here. The result was that Palmer mixed his lines and his head up and was taken into custody. He is a simple sort of fellow, so the court gave him some advice and suspended sentence.

Ernest W. Johnson of Waterford was in town in his Buick Sunday and got mixed up in a scrape on Bank street when he ran his car against the curbing. Then it was found that he was operating a car without possessing a license. He was fined $20 in the police court today.

The condition of Montauk avenue which is in a bad state of repair, was further endangered Sunday as a result of the heavy rain, for an excavation just south of Willetts avenue that had been but recently filled in, caved a distance of several inches, making that section of the highway extremely dangerous to automobiles, particularly in the night season.

The bicycle store of Robert N. Turner, 438 Bank street was entered by crooks Saturday night or Sunday night and the fish market of the Chesley Packer company, 443 was also visited, but entrance was not obtained. It was discovered this morning when the two places were opened for business. The only plunder the crooks received was at the Turner store where a bicycle tire and a horn was stolen. Both places have before received the attention of thieves and it has generally been boys who were guilty of the burglaries. The police are of the belief that the latest break and attempted break, is the work of youths. Entrance to the Turner store was gained by forcing a rear window through which the crooks entered and removed the tire and horn. A window of the fish market was also attempted to be forced, but the crooks were not successful because of the youths, it is believed, having been scared away.

Mrs. George Manning of Yantic; Mrs. Leroy Coney and infant son, 690 Main street; Lewis Main, Noank; Alfred Sandlin, United States Coast Guard destroyer Trippe, Mrs. John Pascucci and infant daughter 26 Willetts avenue; Rosario Lombardo, Westerly; Mrs. Andrew Rosenlund, Waterford and Mrs. Richard Hale and infant daughter, 133 Crystal avenue, patients at Lawrence-Memorial Associated hospital, were dismissed Sunday and today.

The funeral of Mrs. Manuel Joseph, was held this morning at 9 o'clock at St. Mary's Star of the Sea church and was attended by a large gathering of mourners. A solemn mass of requiem was celebrated by Rev. Alexander Wollschlaeger with Rev. Dr. Timothy M. Crowley, deacon and Rev. Raymond O'Callahan sub-deacon. The bearers were Antone Perry, Manuel Marshall, Joseph Perry, Antone Marshall, Frank Silva and Antone Alexander. Burial was in the family plot in St. Mary's cemetery.

Mrs. Mary Levy, 64, widow of Patrick Levy, 32 Truman street, died this morning at Lawrence hospital, where she had been under treatment but a short time. Mrs. Levy was a native of Ireland, but had resided in New London many years. She is survived by two sons, William and John Levy and a daughter, Miss Catherine Levy, all of this city.

Leita Montgomery Thompson has sold to Frank and Letitia Lena a house and lot, corner of Montauk avenue and Plant street. The price paid was $8500.

Isabel F. Leeds and Ruth L. Middleton have sold a tract of land on Ocean avenue to Mariantonio Grippo.

A deed transferring two building lots on the former Guthrie estate, Pequot, from the Pequot Realty company to Peter G. Woods, was received for record at the office of the city clerk this afternoon.

Shirley Lee, 23, alias Shirley Meek, alias Shirley Williamson, was arrested this afternoon charged with intoxication and was unable to secure a surety or her bond of $50 for her appearance in the police court tomorrow morning.

Shirley was but recently liberated from the county jail where she served a sentence during a part of January and February for intoxication. She started to drink too freely this afternoon and then clad only in a dress and shoes, she went to the approach to the Thames river highway bridge, where she took up a position leading to the United States coast guard section base. A sailor who possessed an automobile offered to get rid of the undesirable. Driving the car to the highway he invited Shirley to take a ride and she quickly accepted. The car was driven to Main street corner of Crystal avenue, where Traffic Officer William Graham was on duty and it was then that Shirley's soliciting came to an end, for the sailor delivered her into the custody of the officer.

Katie Hornsky, married, and residing on Main street with her husband and children, is a prisoner at the police station and will be arraigned in the police court tomorrow morning charged with intoxication and breach of the peace. Katie has a strong desire for drink at times and today was one of those times for this afternoon after obtaining a liberal quantity of liquor the woman started to make things interesting for other occupants of the house. Traffic Patrolmen William Graham and William Corcoran went to her home and placed her under arrest. This did not quiet Katie for she attacked the officers with hands and feet but she was finally lodged in a cell and none the worse for attacks upon the officers.

Ward T. Alling has sold the residence, 18 Vauxhall street, to Herbert O. Crandall. The purchaser will not take possession prior to May 1.

Mrs. Elizabeth Sunderland, 67, died Sunday at Lawrence hospital, where she had been under treatment but a short time. Funeral services were held this morning at 11:30 o'clock, at 15 Masonic street, Richard W. Mansfield, superintendent of the B. P. Learned mission, officiated. Interment was in Jordan cemetery.

Stephen T. Gunn, 65, father of Mrs. George F. Reichel, 58 Pacific street, this city, died Sunday at his home, Orange City, Fla. Mr. Gunn formerly lived in West Haven, this state.

QUESTION ASSESSING FOR RIVERSIDE SEWER

(Special to The Bulletin.)

NEW LONDON, March 8.— The sewering of the Riverside section of the city came before the council this evening on report of the city manager who has prepared plans and profiles of the work and has estimated the cost of the undertaking at about $40,000. Property owners from Riverside were present, a gallery full of them, but with two or three exceptions they did not talk on the subject of the proposed sewer. The council proposes that the entire cost of the work shall be assessed against the property benefited. That fact led to an expression of opposition by Messrs. Chandler and Skipworth, and an endorsement of the scheme by Mrs. Prentiss, the latter saying that she had two cesspools and needed a chief to take care of the sewage on her property.

Councilor Streeter raised the question as to whether the property owners should be compelled to pay for the filtration part of the scheme which the state requires in the case that sewerage shall be deposited in rivers of the state. He did not believe the property owners should be assessed for that portion of the expense. Councilor Whiton raised another question—that it was possible that the outfall sewer would deposit at tide water in the channel, in which event the matter was up to the federal government and not to the state. He cited the case of the state hospital at Norwich and said that in the latter case the federal government had the decision. The matter was finally referred to the public works committee for report to the council at its next meeting.

NOT READY TO REPORT ON POLICE VACATIONS

(Special to The Bulletin.)

NEW LONDON, March 8.—At the council meeting tonight Councilor May brought up the matter of allowing members of the police force two days' vacation each month, exclusive of the annual two weeks' vacation, and he inquired whether the city manager had decided upon the request of the policemen's committee. The councilor was informed that the city manager was not ready to report on the matter as the question to finance the arrangement was the whole issue.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

Breed Theatre

What promises to be the biggest picture show ever offered in this city is a mammoth double feature attraction coming to the Breed theatre Wednesday and Thursday.

Heading this monster program is "Joanna", an Edwin Carewe-First National production, based on a newspaper serial by H. L. Gates. Dorothy Mackaill and Jack Mulhall appear in the featured roles.

The story concerns the activities of a beautiful young dress model after she is given a mysterious legacy of a million dollars. Among the unusual features promised in this film are a gorgeous fashion show and a midnight bathing party in which the bathers are rather scantily attired.

"Reckless Romance", Al Christie's newest feature farce, which is the second attraction on this bill, is said to be one of the most entertaining pictures ever filmed.

The cast includes T. Roy Barnes, Harry Myers, Wanda Hawley, Sylvia Breamer, Jack Duffy, Tully Marshall and other notables, each of whom is especially suited to his role. Director Scott Sidney's years of experience in the field of comedy tell in the admirable fashion in which he has handled the farce.

Palace Theatre

Picturegoers, who visit the Palace theatre this week to see Paramount's gorgeous comedy-spectacle, "The American Venus", are certain to find the feminine members of the cast quite soothing to the eye. Not only are the principal players plentifully endowed with good looks, but the supporting cast includes seven of the prize-winning beauties in the Atlantic City pageant.

The woman's side of this spectacular story by Townsend Martin is acted by Esther Ralston, the fetching blonde screen star; Louise Brooks, a diminutive brunette charmer from Ziegfeld's Follies; and Fay Lanphier, who was designated the most beautiful girl in America at the Atlantic City bathing beauty contest and was awarded the title of "Miss America".

To this array, the Misses Bronx, Newark, San Francisco, Bay Ridge, Birmingham and Seattle, all leading contestants in the recent seashore frolic, add their charm, grace and shapeliness.

In addition to the bathing beauty show, the picture boasts a magnificent fashion display in which some of New York's loveliest mannequins wear the latest modes before the camera. This fashion show as well as the series of artistic tableaux, which is another lavish feature of the production, were filmed in color.

The leading male roles in "The American Venus", are portrayed by Lawrence Gray, who was Gloria Swanson's leading man in "Stage Struck", Ford Sterling, noted film comedian, and W. T. Bends, the internationally famous artist. Frank Tuttle directed the picture, which is based on Frederick Stowers' screen adaptation.

Coming to the Palace

Marty Dupree and her Musical Merry Go Round opens at the Palace for a three days engagement starting Thursday. Tuneful tunes, pretty girls, brand new costumes with the ever popular Benny Drohan in new comedy bits and Frank Murray with a brand new lot of material and a chorus of twenty makes this look like the biggest Marty show up to date.

Broadway Theater

"One of the most dramatic pictures of the year" is the verdict of many who have seen Siege, the Universal-Jewel feature starring Virginia Valli and Eugene O'Brien, which is now being screened at the Broadway theater.

Adapted from the novel by Samuel Hopkins Adams, and directed by Sweed Gade, noted Danish artist, this unusual production tells a dramatic story of the clash of personalities in a conventional, aristocratic New England family.

Miss Valli has the strongest role of her career as the young wife, with Eugene O'Brien as the husband. Mary Alden adds many laurels to her fame as a character actress in the role of the dominant leader of the Ruyland family.

The supporting cast includes Marc MacDermott, Beatrice Burnham, Harry Lorraine, Helen Dunbar and many others.

One of Charlie Chaplin's famous comedy revivals is also featured, same being Caught in a Cabaret.

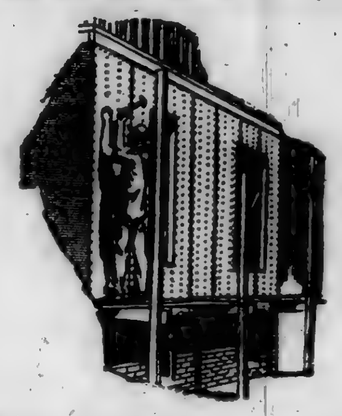
A new up to date news completes an exceptional picture program.

Live Models to Show Styles

The very latest in the designing arts of the Parisian and New York fashion producers will be displayed at a public style show and promenade at the Tubridy-Weldon store in Willimantic Thursday afternoon and evening with private showings Friday and Saturday. The matinee showing will be from 2:30 to 4:30 o'clock and from 7 to 9 o'clock in the evening. Orchestral music will furnish a realistic touch to the promenade.

Pretty models from the leading ladies' apparel houses of the metropolitan city will sport beautiful gowns and coats, attending the opening of the spring season. The displays are shown in the various sizes and are of equal interest to the average, slim and stout woman who seek the finest and most modish in attire. The year 1926 brings forth many novel changes in styles for street wear and in afternoon and evening gowns. There are also some new shades which are finding spontaneous popularity among the old as well as the young well dressed women.

The show is the fifth event of this kind held here under the auspices of the Tubridy establishment. The first show attempted was an immediate success and the demand for a continuance of the innovation was so urgent that the management of the firm has now made it a custom at the opening of the various seasons. Each show has met with unprecedented success. The women are given the privilege of bringing their husband or gentleman friend, as the case may be and in anticipation of another overcome early, as the seating capacity is flowing attendance, all are asked to limited. The doors will be opened at 6:30 in the evening.



The hidden comfort of costly homes

For years owners of costly homes have enjoyed a comfort others have been obliged to do without—a cozy warmth in winter, a pleasant coolness in summer, and restful quiet.

The secret? It is insulation—heat-insulation. Hitherto it has represented a cost prohibitive for most home builders. Few have enjoyed the comfort it gives to homes.

But now even the simplest home can have it. Now Celotex Insulating Lumber makes possible a completely insulated house practically without extra cost.

Let us tell you how Celotex will reduce your fuel bills approximately one-third and give your home a new degree of all-year comfort. Just phone us

CELOTEX
INSULATING LUMBER
"THERE IS A USE FOR CELOTEX IN EVERY BUILDING"

Clotex, the New Building Material

The Edward Chappell Co. which is always trying to find better materials for the home builder have received a carload of Clotex which is a strong, rigid, weatherproof, insulating lumber made from long, tough fibres of cane. It is better than wood sheathing and provides insulation practically without extra cost.

Architects long ago recognized the need of insulation in houses to keep out heat in summer and cold in winter. Materials were available, but they always meant an extra cost and the modest builder could not afford them. Clotex used as a plaster base eliminating wood lath or metal lath, gives a very strong bond to the plaster plus insulation.

Clotex is also used extensively for summer camps, for interior and exterior finish. It can be stained, painted or left in its natural tan color. Clotex in a home simply means health, comfort and economy at no extra cost.

GAYEST SEASON OF OPERA IN PROSPECT FOR LONDON PUBLIC

LONDON, March 8 (AP)—The opera season opening in May with the King, and queen in the audience and Melba, Chaliapin and Jeritza on the stage will be the gayest in London since long before the war and Convent Garden will once again be the center of the spring social season.

La Boheme in which Melba will make her farewell appearance is the King's favorite opera and heads the list of performances which His Majesty has selected to attend. The Wagnerian operas evidently do not appeal to the court taste for the royal box will be empty on the nights on which they are sung.

Few people know that the king pays for his theater seats like any of his rich subjects. As a matter of fact he pays advance cash.

POLICE GET MEN ALLEGED TO HAVE ROBBED KELLAS

(Special to The Bulletin.)

NEW LONDON, March 8.—By the arrest of Thomas Frank Tudisco, 5 Archer court, and Max Goldstein, one of the proprietors of the Mohegan Dairy, Jefferson avenue, this afternoon it is believed a wholesale systematic robbery of the Patterson ice cream and confectionery store, Gus Kellas, proprietor, 76 State street, will be revealed. The investigation already well under way by the authorities, it is claimed, shows that Tudisco, Goldstein and a third man, Peter Athanalos, formerly employed at the ice cream and confectionery establishment, now in business at Amboy N. J., have robbed Kellas of close to $10,000, either by deliberate theft or fraud. The arrests this afternoon were made upon information which specifically charged Tudisco and Goldstein with robbery and fraud in the approximate sum of $2,000. Athanalos will be taken into custody and brought back to New London for trial for Acting Prosecuting Attorney Perry J. Hollandersky has issued a warrant and has caused it to be forwarded to the Amboy police. Both Tudisco and Goldstein obtained sureties on their respective bonds of $4,000 in Giovanni Caccio and Max Goldstein, for their appearance in the police court tomorrow morning.

Tudisco and Athinalos were both employed at the store at the same time and at which time it is alleged the major part of the thieving and fraudulent acts occurred.

Tudisco, who has been employed at the place some time as a waiter and utility man, is alleged to have stolen butter, coffee, eggs and chickens of the value of $250.

Goldstein, it is claimed was in the habit of making deliveries of sweet cream to the store and in doing so he is alleged to have received receipts for 13,400 quarts of cream, supposed to have been delivered, but in reality when he delivered 2,940 quarts less than he charged Kellas for and received payment for, the amount of the fraud being $1,257, as claimed by Kellas.

Athinalos as cook had free access to practically all of the stock in the place and it is claimed that he stole from the stock, 56 chickens, 168 cans of foodstuffs, 56 bars of chocolate and 56 quarts of cream. A short time ago Athinalos left the employ of Kellas and removed to Amboy where he opened a place of business similar to the establishment where he was employed in New London.

The alleged thefts, it is claimed, have been carried on for a long time and it is possible that the stock taken will represent an even greater amount than is now estimated.

Kellas made known his suspicions to Sergeants Nelson Smith and John Cavanaugh several days ago and these officers started to investigate the complaint. This brought about the alleged crookedness of the trio of accused and when the information was merged with Acting Prosecuting Attorney Hollandersky this afternoon warrants for each of the accused were issued. Tudisco was found at his home and Goldstein was located at his place of business.

PEQUOTS WIN FIGHT FOR FIRE APPARATUS

(Special to the Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, March 8—The members of the Pequot Hose company won their contest for an Ahrens and Fox pumper as the new apparatus which the city is to buy at a cost of $13,528. The apparatus is to be a 750 gallon pumper and to be delivered in 19 days after the order is given.

The superintendent of schools was authorized to purchase 102 window shades for the Jennings school building at a cost of $1,600.

In July $250,000 of 3 1-2 per cent water bonds will come due and the city manager asked the council to provide for refunding of them. Councilor Whiton raised the question as to whether the bonds could not be refunded at a lower rate of interest and to determine the matter the recommendation of the city manager went to the finance committee.

The council voted to purchase a chassis for a Reo speed wagon at a cost of $1,100.

The council announced its intention to construct a sewer extension on Montauk avenue and an extension of sewer on Bolles avenue, the latter at a cost of $463.

The claim of Miss Iona Beckwith that she had been overcharged for a sewer assessment on property on Ocean avenue and Alger Place was reported on by the city manager who represented that no overcharge had been made.

There was consideration of the laying of a water main in a street for which B. A. and B. L. Armstrong had recently deeded land to the city. The statement was made that application had been made to the water department for water, but it was shown that when the applicants assured the department that water would be contracted for the main would be laid. It was the intention of the department to supply the water as soon as consumers would guarantee the payment of a specified sum of money for the service.

Director of Law Troland asked for the privilege of retaining additional counsel in the suit of Johanna Keating an action for damages against the city for injuries sustained when the plaintiff fell on an icy sidewalk. The case was twice tried and judgment was rendered against the city. That was when Attorney McGuire was counsel for the city, and also when Charles B. Whittlesey was the director of law. On the latter occasion an appeal was taken on the ground that the verdict was against the evidence and that the judge erred in his charge to the jury. Attorney McGuire tried the case and was so familiar with it that Mr. Troland believed the city's interests would be best served if Mr. McGuire was again associated in the case before the supreme court at the hearing at Norwich in April. In the case of Nancy Morgan against the city, Philip Z. Hankey was the attorney for the city and Mr. Troland asked that he should be associated in that case. The request was granted.

TWO WELL KNOWN FAMILIES FURNISH GYMNASTIC CHAMPION

BERKELEY, Cal., March 8 (AP)—Representatives of two families prominent in world-separated fields are found on the University of California gymnastics team, which also is unique in that it possessed almost entirely of champions who may be unable to defend their titles.

They are Paul G. Watson, son of the secretary of the navy, and A. Sommarstrom, a member of Ramon Novarro movie colony fame. The team has found it difficult to secure competition as the opposing conference said Captain A. Pinkerton was because the superiority of the opposite proves as the result.

CARD OF THANKS

We wish to thank our many friends and relatives for their kindness in our sad bereavement, also those who sent beautiful flowers.

MR. AND MRS. JOHN JOUBERT AND SON.

IN MEMORIAM

In sad but loving memory of our dear wife and mother

HATTIE EMILY MILLS PIKE

who passed away four years ago today

Such beautiful, beautiful hands! The heart were weary and sad,
These patient hands kept toiling on, that children might be glad.
We sadly weep, as looking back to childhood's happy day,
We think how these hands rested not, while ours were at their play.
But oh! beyond this shadowy land, where all is bright and fair,
We know full well these dear tired hands with palms of victory bear.
Where crystal streams through endless years flow over golden sands,
Where noble lives rewarded are, we'll clasp our mother's hands.

HER FAMILY.

MARKET REACTIONARY

NEW YORK, March 8—(AP)—The stock market early today underwent the traditional "secondary reaction" which follows a break such as took place last week, but a spectacular rally set in during the last hour of trading and materially reduced or cancelled many of the early losses. Closing quotations were irregular, a long list of active issues showing net losses of 1 to 6 points, with a much smaller number of 1 to 8 1-2 point gains sprinkled through the list.

Trading was rather quiet until the last hour when sales of about 435,000 shares brought the day's total to $1,655,400 shares.

News developments over the weekend were mixed in character. Publication of several favorable 1925 earnings reports particularly by the New York Central railroad, the United States Rubber company and the Phillips Petroleum company was offset by an expected cut in Pennsylvania crude oil prices. Some uneasiness developed over the political crisis arising over the admission of Germany into the league of nations and the renewed heaviness of French bonds and French exchange which, however, closed above their low levels of the day.

The credit situation continued relatively easy, call money renewing at 4 1-2 per cent and then dropping to 4, despite the approach of the income tax date. Announcement that the treasury department would offer $500,000,000 long term bonds on a 3 3-4 per cent was generally regarded as an indication of easy money rates for some time to come.

High prices industrials and the Van Sweringen railroad shares led the later rally. General Electric rallied from 310 1-4 to 329, where it was up 8 1-2 points on the day, and American Can from 299 to 309. "Nickel Plate" common, which had been hammered down over 11 points below last week's closing quotation to 146 1-8 in the early trading snapped back to 154 3-4. Pere Marquette closed 1 1-2 higher at 80 1-2, after fluctuating between 79 1-2 and 85, and Chesapeake and Ohio touched 152 1-2 and then eased off about a point after having sold as low as 134 1-2.

Foundation company was one of the few stocks forced down below the lows established in last Wednesday's drastic reaction, falling to 102 and then bounding back to 107, where it was off six points on the day. Other conspicuous weak spots were American Brake Shoe and Foundry; Coca Cola; Gulf States Steel, which duplicated the year's low; McCrory Stores B; National Cloak and Suit; Pullman; Tidewater Oil preferred which touched a new 1926 minimum at 96; United Fruit; U. S. Industrial Alcohol, which touched the lowest price since 1923, and Western Union.

U. S. Steel common sold down as low as 121 7-8, but later rallied to 123 3-4 for a small fractional gain on the day. Good buying also was noted in General Motors, Hudson, and Railway Steel Spring.

A rather thin market developed for some of the rail shares, Atlantic Coast Line dropping about 6 points to 216, and Delaware and Hudson 4 1-4 to 155 1-4.

Most of the principal commodity markets were reactionary. Active wheat futures dropped 1 1-2 to 3 cents a bushel in apparent anticipation of a bearish government report on farm reserves. Cotton prices recovered about two-thirds of the early losses of 22 to 27 points, which followed a further decline in southern spots markets. Raw sugar dropped 1-32 of one cent a pound to 4.05 cents for the Porto Rican product, a new low for the season. Coffee closed 15 to 20 points net higher.

Time money and commercial paper rates were unchanged.

Foreign exchanges were irregular. French francs got down to within a few points of the year's low of 3.54 1-3 cents but rallied to 3.60 1-2, where they were practically unchanged from Saturday's closing rate. Demand sterling held steady around 4.85 7-16.

TAFTVILLE

Mr. and Mrs. Odilon Rousseau have returned to their home in New Bedford, after spending several days with their relatives Mrs. Phillias C. Dion and family of Merchants avenue, and Mr. and Mrs. Joseph C. Marsan and family of Hunters avenue. Mr. and Mrs. Rousseau are old residents of Taftville, and have been spending their visit here renewing old acquaintances in the town, made when Mr. Rousseau was employed as a boardizer at the Ponemah mills, 32 years ago. Last week they celebrated the 40th anniversary of their wedding and were given a party by their relatives and friends at their home in New Bedford. Mrs. Rousseau was presented with a beautiful diamond by her son, Dr. Rousseau, and Mr. Rousseau was presented a well filled purse by his daughter, Mrs. Eugene LaFrance. Among people from this section who attended the gathering were Mr. and Mrs. Joseph C. Marsan of Hunters avenue, Mr. and Mrs. Desdonne Donais of Norwich avenue and Senator and Mrs. Urgil La France of Central Village.

The regular monthly meeting of Regent Garneau, No. 208, Union St. Jean Baptiste was held Thursday evening at the council rooms at parish hall, with President Joseph C. Marsan presiding. There was a large attendance, four members being initiated and nine applications received. Reports were heard upon. J. O. Tellier Jr. appeared for the delegates who attended the meeting of District No. 8, at Baltic recently, when Mr. Marsan who is also president of the district was re-elected. At this meeting a committee of five were elected to draw up some new rules and regulations to be presented at the next meeting of the district which is to be held in Parish hall on the fourth Sunday in May. John Peeler of Goodyear, one of the general directors was present and made a strong plea for the next meeting of the district to be held in Good-year at the time when the council in that place was celebrating its 25th anniversary. President Marsan then presented his annual report which was a surprise among the members as he did not give any specific reason for taking this step. It is believed that Mr. Marsan feels that the duties of other duties restrains him from continuing in office, and that he will, under his leadership the council has been placed in such an enviable and flourishing condition, he has decided that he should have a well deserved rest. Those present were very loath to act upon President Marsan's resignation and it was voted that the matter be laid over until the next meeting.

The Artisans met Monday evening at St. Louis hall, with president Peter Gauthier in the chair. There was an unusually large attendance, and the members were especially fortunate in having with them Odilon Rousseau of New Bedford who gave them an inspiring talk on "Citizenship." At the conclusion of his talk, Joseph Legare made a few remarks, urging those who had not applied for citizenship papers, to take steps to secure them at once. He offered his services gratis, to give instruction in English two nights each week at the citizenship classes at the Naturalization club. Later many of the members expressed themselves as being glad of the opportunity. The society took in 17 applications for membership at this meeting.

John Meyer of Providence street has returned from a few days stay in New York.

Superintendent Victor H. Davis has announced that the Workers conference which was to have been held Monday evening at the Taftville Congregational church, has been postponed one week, as many of the members of the conference were unable to attend the session because of previous engagements.

Joseph Paquin of North B street is a patient at the William W. Backus hospital, following an operation.

Peter Lukoff of Blackstone, Mass., was a visitor in town Sunday.

Attorney John H. Barnes of Norwich is to be the speaker at the Mens' club of the Taftville Congregational church, at its meeting next Thursday evening, in the church vestry. Mr Barnes is to speak on "Some Fallacies."

Marbles, kites and tops being displayed in local dealers' windows, herald the approach of spring.

A Raw, Sore Throat

Eases Quickly When You Apply a Little Musterole

Musterole won't blister like the old-fashioned mustard plaster. Spread it on with your fingers. It penetrates to the sore spot with a gentle tingle, relieves the congestion and draws out the soreness and pain.

Musterole is a clean, white ointment made with oil of mustard. Brings quick relief from sore throat, bronchitis, tonsilitis, croup, stiff neck, asthma, neuralgia, headache, congestion, pleurisy, rheumatism, lumbago pains and aches of the back or joints, sprains, sore muscles, bruises, chilblains, frosted feet, colds on the chest. Keep it handy for instant use.

To Mothers: Musterole is also made in milder form for babies and small children. Ask for Children's Musterole.

TELLS BROTHERHOOD SECRET OF HAPPINESS IS TO MAKE OTHERS HAPPY

The secret of happiness is to make others happy said George H. Cooper, of Pittsfield, Mass., past district governor of Rotary clubs, in a splendid and most helpful talk, Monday evening at the monthly business meeting of the United church brotherhood at the Community house. There was an attendance of about 50 at the meeting which opened at 6.30 o'clock with the following menu:

Roast Beef
Mashed Potatoes
Pickled Beets Rolls
Coffee
Chocolate Pie Whipped Cream

About 7 o'clock the meeting was called to order by President Hugh B. Campbell and the usual reports of the secretary and treasurer were heard and accepted. The report of the treasurer showed that the District School recently staged by the Brotherhood netted close to $340 with expenses of about $50. The treasurer's report also showed that the treasury is in excellent condition. Following the hearing of the reports, President Campbell introduced the speaker of the evening, George H. Cooper of Pittsfield, Mass., a past district governor of Rotary clubs. The topic of Mr. Cooper's address was "A Business Man's Religion." He said he was going to speak on what it's like to be rich. When I was a young man, said Mr. Cooper, I had the average idea of what it was like to be rich. I began to see a lot of men who made money and didn't make much of anything else. I began to think it was almost a crime for a son to inherit his father's riches.

I saw a lot of men who were unhappy because they wanted riches. I saw a lot of rich men unhappy. Half the people would like to be someone else. One rich but unhappy man asked me: What is the secret of happiness? I asked him what he had done for his community. He said he hadn't done anything but make money. Then I told him the secret of happiness is to make others happy.

I know a man with a million and a half dollars. He never made friends and he lived alone in one room in a hotel. There he was, a man with a million and a half but no friends. Every man here is made in the image of God. Every man here can say "I am a child of the Kingdom of God." It is up to me and what I do that governs where I shall get to. If a man is dishonest he thinks everyone else is dishonest. He can't see how anyone can do anything from an unselfish motive. As a man thinketh, so is he.

In these days I believe there is more pure and clean thinking than there ever has been in the history of the world. Men are beginning to become interested in others besides themselves. As we begin to put this into practice we find it brings us back hundreds per cent. And people are beginning to give not only of their time but of their money with a plan. There is a law of compensation which pays men who dare to do unselfishly.

In closing Mr. Cooper urged his listeners to "just be ourselves" and not to try to be somebone else.

At the conclusion of Mr. Cooper's talk President Campbell said: George Cooper is a man who lives what he talks. Let us hope we will do the same. A rising vote of thanks was given Mr. Cooper after which the meeting stood adjourned.

The committee in charge of the supper comprised Mrs. Luther K. Zabriskie, Miss Hattie Carter, Mrs. Clarence E. Spear, Miss Beatrice Sharpe, Mrs. Harry Sherman, Mrs. Louis Waters, Miss Alice Browning, Mrs. Gallagher and Miss Villette Peck. Eight members of Miss Jane Aiken's Sunday school class acted as waitresses.

CLINTON MAN RESCUED FROM RAILROAD TRACKS

In the city court Thomas Mangan, 50, Clinton, Mass., but now employed in this city, was fined $10 and costs, total $18.50, on a charge of intoxication. The fine was imposed by Judge Libby. Mangan paid his bill.

He was found Sunday night by Officers Eugene Calkins and Frank Gwiezdowski stretched across the C. V. railroad tracks near the West Side station. Shortly after he was pulled off the tracks by the officer a freight train went rolling by at a speed of about 35 miles an hour. Mangan didn't remember being pulled from the tracks.

A Worcester man was fined $10 and costs, total $19.50, for intoxication, and as he couldn't pay, went to jail to work his fine.

STRUCK BY AUTO, GIRL SUFFERS BROKEN LEG

Sunday about 11:30 o'clock Monday morning Marion Lawton, seven, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Lawton of No. 65 North Main street, was knocked down by an automobile driven by Nelson Parker, 42, of Gales Ferry. The accident happened on North Main street, near Bogue's garage.

Mr. Parker claimed the little girl ran in front of his machine from behind one of the Connecticut company's busses. The child was taken to the W. W. Backus hospital where examination showed that she has a fractured leg besides bruises about the body and face. Dr. W. K. Tingley was called and attended the child before she was taken to the hospital.

WRITES OF ATTRACTIONS AND GROWTH OF MIAMI

In a letter from Miami to The Bulletin, Herbert W. (Bert) Lucas details many of the attractions of the Florida city. He writes:

As I have related some of the unpleasant features in regard to Miami, I want to write something of the great achievements Miami has made in the last three years. My first winter here, 1924, the population was 55,262, in 1925 it was 250,000. The first winter I was here I believe there were only three skyscrapers. Today it looks like a big metropolis, many new tall buildings being built, and only for the embargo there would have been many more completed. Among the nice large buildings that are completed are the following: Olympia theater, seating 2,500; the Everglades a beautiful 300 room apartment; Biscayne bank building, Central Arcade building, telephone building, Columbus hotel, Roosevelt hotel, Realtors building, Miami Trust bank, the News building where ex-Governor Cox of Ohio publishes the Miami News, an evening paper, and others in the big subdivisions of Miami.

Three winters ago not many boats entered the harbor. Today there are the Clyde line, Baltimore and Caroline Steamship Co., to Baltimore and Philadelphia, Merchants and Miners Transportation Co., to Baltimore, Savannah and Jacksonville, Admiral line, American line, Allan line, Miami to Nassau, besides all the smaller ships when enter Miami.

Now as to transit. That has improved. Very much since my first trip down here, as there were no busses at all then, but now they have pretty fair bus service in all parts of the city, and they are putting in a double track to the beach from Miami, putting on new electric cars, and they will have a rapid transit line to Coral Gables by next fall, which will in time extend its tracks to Homestead. All of this has been done since 1924.

To show how the city has grown I want to quote a few statistics: Post office receipts 1924—$14,387; 1925—$1,022,000; bank resources, 1924—$59,940,842; 1925—$179,945,651; bank deposits 1924—$56,266,818; 1925—$173,375,656; bank clearings 1924—$212,353,780; 1925—$1,066,328,874; building permits 1924—$17,038,144; 1925—$60,026,140; assessed valuation 1924—$87,661,714; 1925—$730,000,000; real estate transfers 1924—$9,079; 1925—176,533. Miami building volume ranks sixth in national building permits. A new railroad, the Seaboard Airline, will come right into Miami this summer and the Florida East Coast line is double tracking its line from Jacksonville to Miami, which will do away with all further embargoes.

There has been a very large auto speedway built at Fulford by the Sea. It was opened up Washington's birthday when some 50,000 people attended the races. It will be used for many big affairs like football, big plays and as an outdoor auditorium in the future with annual auto races by all the star drivers.

Miami has some very fine churches, the Catholic Holy Name being a grand structure, both inside and out. There are also the new Episcopal church on Bay Shore drive, the Congregational church the First Christian church, the White Temple, with its beautiful chimes, where all the leading artists hold their concerts. They have a chorus of 50 voices. The Spiritualist Progressive, Temple Israel (Reformed) and the Beth David congregation are others.

Miami has many one way streets and signals have been put on nearly all the streets since 1924. The city has a number of up to date theaters besides smaller movie houses scattered about the city.

The amusements and entertainment to be had here are the glass bottom boats, which make the trip over the submarine gardens on coral reef, running races at Hileah every day but Sundays, dog races evenings, Rainbow Garden revue, Silver Slipper cabaret and plenty of places for the social set. I have told about the sunny south as I have seen it and one can't but believe in time Miami will be a big city, but of course the city is in the making now and I think there will be more or less disorder till it gets down to brass tacks.

Mr. Lucas asks to have the statement printed from his previous letter that cement cost $20 per bag corrected to say $2, and $10, not $1,000 is the amount of money one needs to have on hand when he arrives there.

U. S. PROTESTS MEXICAN TREATMENT OF CHURCHMEN

Note Asserts That Churchmen Should Not Suffer Unduly From Constitutional Disabilities Imposed by Application of the Mexican Law Upon Religious Faiths—Note Was Prepared and Presented by Ambassador Sheffield Following Instructions From the State Department.

WASHINGTON, March 9—(AP)—Mexico's new policy governing religious teaching has brought forth a note from Ambassador Sheffield to the Mexican foreign office insisting that American churchmen should not be required to suffer unduly from its operation.

The note was prepared by the ambassador after he had received instructions from the state department on the two American attitude, and advised that it had been delivered came concurrent with efforts in the senate and among government departments to secure information to that body on pending questions affecting American relations with the southern republic.

Interest centered upon the arrest in Vera Cruz of Rev. P. J. Keith, an American Catholic priest, was the immediate case taken up by Ambassador Sheffield and he reported that it had been "satisfactorily settled," although the nature of the settlement was not disclosed. It was indicated that authorities of Jarapla were inclined to allow the priest to remain in Mexico.

The ambassador's purpose in presenting a note to the Mexican government, was largely to put the Washington government on record. The document is believed to concede Mexico's right to expel church men, but at the same time to make clear the belief that American citizens in Mexico, whether churchmen or not, have the right to expect full consideration and to be given ample time to prepare to leave.

PASSAIC STRIKERS HAD ORDERLY DEMONSTRATION

PASSAIC, N. J., March 9.—(AP)—Stopped by the handful of police in Lodi, between 3,000 and 4,000 striking textile workers marched to the gates of the United Pierce Dye Works in Lodi today and staged an orderly demonstration, as the workers left the mills.

Before the strikers marched from here, 15 men who said they were employees of the Lodi plant attended a meeting of strikers and said they had struck for a 25 per cent. wage increase. Albert Weisbord, strike leader, who organized the parade, made public a letter he had sent to officials of the plant demanding the wage increase for the 4,000 employees.

Weisbord said he acted on a request made yesterday by four representatives of the United Pierce Dye Works employes.

A letter was also sent by Weisbord to the Dundee Textile company in Clifton, one-third of whose 500 employes are on strike, asking a similar increase.

The marching strikers were met as they entered Lodi by Chief of Police Ward who said they would not be molested if they maintained order.

At the Dye Works the strikers split into groups and surrounded the eight entrances. When the workers left for the day there were a few cries of "scab," but no disturbances. The strikers claimed that between 300 and 400 of the workers had joined them.

TORCH WILL MELT AND CUT STEEL UNDER WATER

NEW YORK, March 9—(AP)—Commander Ellsberg, of the Brooklyn navy yard, said today that the navy has perfected a torch capable of melting and cutting steel at any depth under water, which will be used in opening the sunken submarine S-51 off Block Island.

The perfection of the torch, which has been experimented with for several years, will cause a change in plans for the salvaging of the submarine the latter part of this month.

The lack of such a torch prevented the piercing of the S-51 when she was rammed and sunk last September. Commander Ellsberg said the new torch consists of a jet of hydrogen and oxygen emanating from two separate sleeves, with compressed air coming from a third sleeve. This compressed air forces an air bubble to surround the hydrogen and oxygen at any depth, protecting the flame from the water. The torch reaches as high as 5,000 degrees Fahrenheit, and can cut one-inch steel plate at the rate of a foot a minute.

Commander Ellsberg declared the torch would be used to cut holes in the S-51 through which compressed air would be forced to buoy it to the top. The same procedure was tried previously but failed because of inadequate torches.

The bodies of the men believed to be imprisoned in the submarine probably will be taken out before she is lifted to the surface, the commander said.

At the last annual meeting of the National Association of Dairy, Food and Drug Officials, Mr. Holt was elected president after having served as vice-president of the organization for several years. He is also president of the Connecticut dairy and milk inspectors and a member of several farmers and dairymens associations. He operates a large farm in Newington.

ITALIAN GOVT. INTENDS TO INCREASE ARMED FORCES

ROME, March 9.—(AP)—The Italian government intends to increase the armed forces of the nation when financial conditions permit, Premier Mussolini told the senate in speaking today in support of a group of military reorganization bills. The Senate approved these bills after they had been commended by Marshals Diaz and Cadorna, both of whom served as commanders-in-chief of the Italian armies during the World war.

"These bills are the result of the necessity of finding a balance between the needs of our armed forces and the situation of Italian finances," Premier Mussolini said. "From this view point the reorganization is not final. I would be most happy if tomorrow financial considerations would permit me to increase the number of divisions, but as long as our financial affairs are in a particularly delicate condition we must attentively measure our forces."

Under the voting trust agreement, the stockholder would retain full right to his stock, but the voting power would be vested in the directors alone.

WETHERSFIELD "WITCH DOCTOR" WAS SENTENCED

HARTFORD, March 9—(AP)—Thomas Mandato, "witch doctor," of Wethersfield, who seduced five little girls of that town, was sentenced to from two to ten years in the state prison on a charge of indecent assault, by Judge L. P. Waldo Marvin of the superior court today, on recommendation of State's Attorney Hugh M. Alcorn. He was allowed to plead nolo contendere to the charge because of a civil suit which will be brought against him for the assault.

Mandato was one of two persons sentenced to the state prison before a crowd which taxed the capacity of the courtroom and which was equalled in recent years only by the crowds at the trial of Gerald Chapman for murder last March.

Poisoned Wife Whose Husband She Coveted

The Second Mrs. Malinsky Absolves Husband, Whom She Married Six Weeks After Crime.

FLORA, Ill., March 9.—(AP)—Mrs. Elsie Bible Malinsky, 45, late today pleaded guilty in Clay country circuit court to the poison murder of Mrs. Laura Malinsky, 53, former wife of her husband, Ernest L. Malinsky, 50, and was sentenced to life in Joliet prison.

Mrs. Malinsky said she gave the poison to the woman in a glass of water. She absolved her husband, whom she married six weeks after the death of the first Mrs. Malinsky, of all blame. State's Attorney Harold S. Williams said he was inclined to accept her story.

The plea of guilty was made after the grand jury had returned an indictment jointly accusing the couple of the murder. Mrs. Laura Malinsky died last September 27 under mysterious circumstances.

The state's attorney said probably no further investigation would be made of the death of Ajbilla Bible, first husband of Mrs. Elsie Bible Malinsky who died about a year and a half ago.

In passing sentence Circuit Judge Thomas M. Jett, unleashed a scathing denunciation of Mrs. Malinsky.

"If you were a man I would hang you," the judge told her. "The fact that you are a woman is all that saves you." He described the crime as "cowardly."

Mrs. Malinsky was calm as she received the life sentence and remained apparently unmoved during the period of several minutes the judge lectured her. She will be taken to the penitentiary tomorrow.

Malinsky, who accompanied his wife into the court room, cried when the sentence was pronounced. He declared he had no knowledge of Mrs. Malinsky having poisoned his first wife.

The state's attorney said tonight charges against Malinsky "probably will be dropped," but added he has not definitely decided what action he will pursue.

CHARGES SHELLING OF A CANADIAN SCHOONER

WASHINGTON, March 9—(AP)—Charges that the Canadian schooner Eastwood was shelled 21 miles off the New Jersey coast have been brought to the attention of the state department by Sir Esme Howard, the British ambassador.

The master of the schooner, the home port of which is Lunenburg, Nova Scotia, and members of the crew have charged that they were fired upon by the U. S. Coast Guard cutter Seneca early in February when more than one hour's sailing distance from the American coast. This has been denied by officers of the Seneca.

At the request of the Canadian department of external affairs, which has received a protest from the owner of the Eastwood with affidavits from the crew and photographs of the ship, the British ambassador submitted a written request for information to the state department, and this has been referred to the treasury department, which has jurisdiction over the coast guard.

The ambassador's communication asked information as to whether the Seneca or any other revenue cutter or American government vessel had shelled the schooner. No response has been made thus far by the treasury.

Disarmament Move Started At Genoa

Object is to Assure American Membership on the League of Nations Technical Committee.

GENEVA, March 9—(AP)—A move toward disarmament has been made as calculated to assure American membership on the league of nations technical committee, especially the military and naval committee, which will advise with the preparatory commission for a disarmament conference. The indications were today that the first meeting of the preparatory commission, on which the United States will be represented as a full fledged member, and which was postponed on account of the Russo-Swis conflict, probably will be held in May at Geneva.

The leagues permanent military commission is limited in membership to the states represented in the council, and there was considerable questioning here as to how to give a voice on this council to other countries which have been invited to participate in the preliminary disarmament studies. These other nations include the United States, Germany and Russia as non-members of the league, and Bulgaria, Finland, Holland, Poland, Rumania and Jugo-Slavia as members.

Great Britain sent a communication to the council suggesting that in order to avoid misunderstanding all the participants in the preliminary studies should be on equal footing in the league's technical committees.

The date for the preliminary disarmament conference is unofficially set for May 17. The place of meeting has not been decided upon, whether Geneva or elsewhere.

CHAMBERLAIN, LUTHER AND STRESEMANN CONFER

GENEVA, March 9—(AP)—A sudden consultation between Sir Austen Chamberlain, British foreign secretary, and Chancellor Luther and Dr. Stresemann, of the German delegation, immediately after receipt of the news from Paris that M. Briand had agreed to form a new cabinet was the most striking development tonight in the league of nations council crisis.

From German sources emanated the report that in order to remove the council problem from the hands of the signatories of the Rhine pact and eliminate possible discontent of other members of the league on the ground that the Rhine signatories were assuming too much responsibility, the British foreign secretary was anxious to arrange an unofficial meeting between the members of the council and the Germans.

In the meantime the assembly leaders, headed by Sir Austen Chamberlain, succeeded in staving off embarrassing complications by securing immediate adjournment of the sub-committee which had been appointed to investigate Germany's application for league membership. The rules require the presence of the German delegation to respond to any questions as to whether Germany has been fulfilling her international obligations.

VOTES FOR IMPEACHMENT OF FEDERAL JUDGE ENGLISH

WASHINGTON, March 9—(AP)—The house judiciary committee, by a vote of 14 to 6, today recommended impeachment proceedings against Federal Judge George W. English of the Eastern Illinois district.

The resolution adopted called for his indictment on charges of "high misdemeanors in office." Details of the charges were not specified, but the evidence before the committee alleged manipulation of bankruptcy proceedings and usurpation of power over state officials.

The house is expected to act upon the committee's recommendation within 10 days. It must uphold or reject the accusations. If rejected, the proceedings end; if upheld, the senate, immediately upon receiving a report of the house's action, must set a date to sit as a court of impeachment. A two-thirds vote is necessary for conviction and the extreme penalty is removal from office.

INLAND WATERWAY SYSTEM IS OUTLINED BY HOOVER

CHICAGO, March 9.—(AP)—Herbert Hoover, secretary of commerce tonight outlined a complete inland waterway system, pointed out its economic necessity for the middle west and said he believed a nine foot channel from Chicago to the gulf was in sight. He appealed for settlement of lake level disputes by spending money "on concrete and steel, rather than on the lawyers."

He addressed the thirty-second annual banquet of the John Ericsson Republican League of Illinois.

Secretary Hoover's prepared speech did not touch upon politics.

He pictured the middle west as girdled by a row of toll-gates composed of increased rail rates, completion of the Panama canal, and maintenance of ocean freight rates at virtually pre-war levels, with agriculture suffering more than industry, but both in a new relation to different parts of America and to the world markets as a whole.

He visualized two great inland waterway systems, the Mississippi system of modern barge lines and the Great Lakes system of ocean steamers, the latter of first importance despite the great economic value of the lakes-to-the-gulf route, completion of which is in sight.

The system could impose an east-west trunk 16,600 miles along the Ohio Mississippi and Missouri from Pittsburgh to Kansas City, and a north-south trunk from Chicago to New Orleans, both deepened to nine feet, with lateral rivers mostly developed to six feet, bringing in the area comprising St. Louis and Minneapolis, Omaha and South Dakota points, Chattanooga Nashville, and Little Rock. Completion of the coastal canal would bring in Houston and Galveston, and so on with other possible rivers. The trunks, excepting parts of the Kansas City-St. Louis system, could be completed within five years.

The routes for the Great Lakes-to-the-Atlantic route, the St. Lawrence and the New York ship canal, are being investigated, he explained, with the comparative merits to be hammered out in debate when engineering facts and conclusions are ready.

President Coolidge has expressed willingness to approve an increase in appropriations for river and harbor work which will permit an expenditure of about $20,000,000 next year upon the Mississippi system, Mr. Hoover said. The Mississippi is two-thirds physically deepened, but in disconnected sections.

HAS SUED HER HUSBAND FOR MORE "TABLE MONEY"

CAMDEN, N. J., March 9.—(AP)—Suit to force a husband to pay more "table money" for his board was argued today in the chancery court here. The case was regarded as without precedent in this tribunal.

Mrs. Alda O. Smith, Palmyra N. J., complainant in the suit testified she demanded a minimum of $25 weekly from her husband. Walter L. Smith, a druggist, employed at Roebling, N. J. The husband testified his wife threatened to consider him "only a boarder" if he fell below her minimum. Smith declared his wife owned their home and possessed property.

"I told her," he said, "if I was only a boarder, I would give her only a boarder's board and cut the allowance down to $10. She then brought the case into court. In every other respect she is an ideal wife."

Vice Chancellor Leaming ordered the case continued for a later hearing with the remark; "Both of you need sense, more than anything else."

CLEVER PROGRAM TO GREET NEW ROTARIANS

(Special to The Bulletin)

WILLIMANTIC, March 9—The election of a board of directors and the induction of seven new members made up the principal business of the weekly meeting and luncheon of the Willimantic Rotary club held in the Y. M. C. A., Tuesday noon. President John F. Ahern presided and Secretary Gerard E. Loisell read the roll call and minutes. The following directors were elected; James F. Bath, Richard E. Dodge, Roland B. Jordan, Louis A. Kingsbury and Raymond A. Parker. The directors will organize and select officers next week. James P. Mustard and G. Everett Harrington were tellers for the balloting.

The initiation ceremonies prepared for and carried out under the chairmanship of Professor Dodge of the program committee were novel and most impressive. A beautiful Rotary wheel built by Valentine L. Murphy and accepted as a permanent fixture in the club dining room was the nucleus of the ceremonies. In his introductory remarks Professor Dodge read an excellent paper on The Meaning of the Rotary Wheel. Detachable spokes of the wheel bearing the six fundamental ideals of Rotary were placed in the case of as many new members. In receiving the spoke and placing it in its proper position on the wheel older members of the clubs gave inspiring five minute talks on their respective topics. The spoke on Acquaintance was presented by Attorney Harry S. Gaucher to Roland B. Jordan; The Fellowship spoke by County Detective William E. Jackson to Albert B Smith; The Friendship spoke by Supreme Court Judge George E. Hinman to J. E. Sullivan, speaking for P. D Donahue; the Fair Dealing spoke by Albert O'Neill to P. J. Laramee; the service spoke by Kenneth N. Gillhouse to A. Linn Weatherhead and the Inspiration spoke by Edward J. Kenney to Rev. Arthur S. Wheelock. Past President Valentine L. Murphy then formally presented the new members with a framed copy of the Rotary Code of Ethics and in well chosen words called attention to the value of knowing and practicing the six objects of Rotary.

The welcome address to the new Rotarians was delivered in splendid manner by President John F. Ahern, in connection with the initiation song Leader Dr. R. Bullock Jones directed in several appropriate songs. The stunt song was by the Judicial Trio, Judge Hinman, Attorney Gaucher and Detective Jackson, who displayed marked ability in the vocal art. The guests for the day were Warren Averill and Otis Fox of the Putnam Rotary club and Nelson A. Daniels of this city, being introduced respectively by James F. Mustard, Maurice B. Leonard and A. Linn Weatherhead. John C. Frazier, one of the seven newest members, was unable to be present and he will inducted at a later date.

At the present time the Haymakers, captained by Charles B. Pomeroy, continue to maintain a lead of one point over Captain Raymond A. Parker's Coal-Heavers in the attendance contest. Adjournment was taken at 1:30 o'clock with the announcement that James F. Mustard, chairman of the Boys' Work committee would have charge of the next meeting's program.

EYES SAVED WHEN GLASSES STOP CHEMICAL

WILLIMANTIC, March 9—William J. Smith, regular member of Engine Company No. 1 of the fire department was painfully injured and was probably saved from the loss of his eyesight or his spectacles about noon Tuesday when chemicals being used to extinguish a chimney fire at 13 Carey Hill threw hot lye face. The house is owned by the American Thread company. In fighting the blaze Fireman Smith was in the basement removing soot from the base of the chimney. Chemicals being used forced their way through the soot and out of a stove pipe opening into his face. Smith was rushed to the medical department of the American Thread company plant and later was removed to the office of Dr. William E. Hendry, who stated that the injuries did not appear serious. Chemicals which would otherwise have burned out his eyes covered Smith's glasses. The fireman is now resting at his home. A total of 52 gallons of chemicals were used in combatting the chimney blaze.

Some 500 former employes of the American Thread company, who went out on strike just one year ago Tuesday, observed the anniversary of the strike with a program of speaking and entertainment at the town hall Tuesday forenoon. George LeBlond was chairman of the committee of arrangements. Several of the local strike leaders occupied seats on the stage during the speaking. The program opened with the singing of America, with orchestral music by the White Eagle orchestra. The first speaker was John R. McCarthy of this city who gave an excellent talk on Social Economics and Psychology, concluding with an appropriate poem on the subject of service, entitled, The Measure of a Man. With intermediate orchestra selections the following program was carried out: Jokes and introductory remarks, Edward Curran; Songs and Jokes, Mrs. Alvina Beaujeau; humorous dialogue, Pearl Chamberlin; old time fiddling and favorite old French songs, Michael Chalifoux; clog dance and stump speech, Joseph LeBlond; recitation contest, Edmund Emmons and John McCarthy, Sr., which resulted in a tie; song, The Prisoner's Song, Mrs. Jessie Moran; novel old folk Russian act, Mrs Margaret Dubina, Mr. and Mrs. Michael Selivykao and Nichols Sadhura; harmonica selections with accompaniment on "the bones," John Collins, Chaplin champion; French song hits Mrs. Florina Rocheville; song, Somewhere a Voice is Calling, Mrs. Loretta Gatley; banjo selections, Miss Amy Hooker, president of the local labor union of textile workers. The concluding entertainment number was in the form of a double prize fight and evoked much laughter. John Lutton knocked out his featherweight contestant, George LeBlond, in three rounds. Edward Curran, another featherweight, then knocked out the heavyweight champion in two rounds by striking from a vantage point on a step-ladder. George Lewis accompanied at the piano for the singing. Addresses were then delivered by Secretary John J. Eagan and President Patrick O'Mara of the State Federation of Labor and Miss Mary Kelleher of Scranton, Pa., editor of the local striking body. The meeting closed with the singing of the Star Spangled Banner.

Mrs. Abbie Elizabeth Williams, 86, wife of Elmer V. Williams of 91 Bellevue street, this city, died at Union hospital, Fall River, Mass., at 6:45 o'clock Monday night. Mrs. Williams was taken ill while visiting her niece in Fall River. Subsequently she underwent an operation at the hospital. Pneumonia set in Monday morning and caused her death. Mrs. Williams was born April 16, 1863 in Foster, R. I., a daughter of William and Roxanna Robinson Fuller. Besides her husband she leaves one son, George E. Williams of this city; two brothers, William and Frank Fuller of Boston, Mass., and one sister, Mrs Mary E. Hill of Providence, R. I.

William David Barrows was charged with intoxication in police court Tuesday morning. He said that he had only had a few drinks and could not say that he was guilty. Barrows was arrested after a complaint had been received by the police that he was creating a disturbance at his home. Barrows contended that the court should not lay all the troubles of the household to him. In view of the fact that the man had steered clear of the courtroom for over one year Judge Foss said that he would be lenient. Barrows was fined $10 and costs, amounting to $17.15. He was then placed on probation for three months and if he behaves during that period the fine will be remitted. The costs of the court are to be paid.

There are approximately 1,900 employes employed at the American Thread company plant here at the present time and not 900 as erroneously stated in Tuesday's issue of The Bulletin. The commission of the "teen" caused the error, which is hereby corrected without bidding.

Pole-cats are again invading the hill section of the city, it was being reported Tuesday. The pretty kitties, which aren't kitties at all, but just plain skunks, took possession of the upper High street locality last fall. Residents resented being driven off by the unwelcome visitors. Despite many lasting experiences with the ammunition of their furry guests, 11 skunks were killed and the tribe moved to other quarters only to return of late and apparently with reinforcements. One man who was about to throw a perfectly good shoe at seven cats which had gathered on his at one wall, kept the shoe in his hand when he discovered that the supposed cats were skunks. Another drive is expected to start against the invaders and those who like to hunt pole-cats are welcome do do so.

Mayor John C. Tracy and members of the city street committee have made arrangements with a Worcester firm for six electric signals to be placed on trial here in replacing the fragile wooden standards which have been in use here for a few years past. The discarding of the wooden silent policemen will not be regretted by local automobile owners. Even in daytime the slim coppers are hardly discernable in heavy traffic and the double danger of smashing into one or not following to right of one always exists, especially for drivers unfamiliar with the layout of the main thoroughfares. The new standards are of handsome, durable design and faced on all four sides with red reflective lenses. Upon arrival here they will be placed at advantageous points along Main street.

Cars operated and owned respectively by Arthur Sweet of South Windham and Salvani L. Cardinal of Ash street, this city, figured in a slight collision at the corner of Main and Bank streets Saturday night.

No one needs to have a sallow, muddy complexion. Proper diet, exercise, surface cleanliness and above all—internal cleanliness. Nujol prevents the formation of intestinal poisons that ruin your health and complexion.

Constipation is dangerous for anybody. Nujol is safe for everybody. It does not affect the stomach, and is not absorbed by the body. Medical authorities approve Nujol because it is so safe, so gentle and so natural in its action.

Nujol makes up for a deficiency of natural lubricant in the intestines. It softens the waste matter and thus permits thorough and regular bowel movements without griping.

Members of the Daughters of the American Revolution have read with interest the items published about the death of the oldest real daughter, Mrs Louisa K. Thiers, in Milwaukee, Wis. Hers has been a life full of good deeds and her voting for President Coolidge at the age of 110 is a record of which to be proud. It has been the custom of the National D. A. R. for several years to pay a pension of $20 per month to the real daughters and at the last National Congress April 20 to 25, 1925, it was increased to $25 per month and Miss Isabel Gordon, chairman of the Liberty Loan committee, stated that the income on Liberty bonds was being used for the pensions given to real daughters and fifteen were living at that time, and it is doubtful if Mrs. Thiers was the last living real daughter, if she is the other fourteen have all passed away since April 1925.

While the passenger train service over the local branch of the New Haven road attracts little attention these days, being so restricted on account of the establishment of motor coach lines and competition from private owned motor cars, it appears to be handling a tremendous amount of freight. Long trains and many of them run over the road every day, indicating the great usefulness of the line for this sort of traffic, nearly always more profitable than the passenger end of the business.

There is evidence that those who own woodlands within a few miles of Danielson are not at all disturbed about there being a good market for cord wood next fall and winter. Choppers continue at work felling trees and reducing them to cord wood size and this work will continue for many weeks to come, forecasting an ample supply of this fuel next fall, despite whatever amount of hard coal may be available.

It is now indicated that there will be a need of Killingly increasing its tax rate at the financial meeting of the town later this month. Preparation of the budget has proceeded to a point where it may be said with confidence that an 18 mill tax will be sufficient to meet the expenditures of the town during the current fiscal year. This is good news most taxpayers will agree. It is especially pleasing in view of the fact that the snow removal cost of the present winter was unusually heavy. It is understood that this item—snow removal—in the budget will call for an appropriation of $2,500, whereas in ordinary years only $1,000, or less, is required. An offset to the unavoidably high cost of snow removal is found in that the credits have developed more generously than could be estimated last October. In March of last year a town rate of 18 mills was voted, and it now seems likely that the same rate will prove to be in force when the taxpayers come to get their assessments in April.

PUTNAM

JUDGE TELLS PARTIES TO SETTLE OWN SUITS

(Special to the Bulletin)

PUTNAM, March 9.—After two hours deliberation following the forcible admonition by Judge Edwin C. Dickinson that in the very nature of things, the suit of Joseph Gobin against Louis Gobin et ux should be settled among the parties the attorneys finally announced that an agreement had been reached and an adjournment of superior court was taken until Wednesday.

The plaintiff is the father of the defendant, named and the latter's wife is also one of the parties. It was claimed, that the plaintiff had bought a farm for $6,000 and turned it over to his son for that he had advanced him that amount of money for the purpose; that in consideration of this he was to have a home with the defendants; that they had not carried out their part of the agreement and Mr. Gobin, senior, had brought suit to recover.

Another suit that was settled during the noon recess was that of Joseph Labella and Diodnee Page, carpenters and builders, against Fred W. Wood, to recover about $600. All the parties are from Killingly. After the partial destruction of Mr. Wood's home by fire the plaintiff agreed to rebuild it as before for $1,100. Alterations and additions it was claimed, increased the amount to nearly $1,800. The defendant paid $1,100 but objected to anything beyond that. During the 40 minutes recess an agreement was reached by the attorneys, the details of it not being given out.

PUTNAM TAX RATE FIXED AT 23 MILLS

(Special to the Bulletin)

Geissler was moderator and Judge David Flagg was clerk. Notwithstanding the importance of the meeting there were only 14 citizens in attendance. But in view of the unusual expenditures it is gratifying to realize that, although the levy is high it was not found necessary to increase it.

ORE TREATMENT PROCESS A MONUMENT TO WOMAN

DENVER, March 9 (AP)—From a woman's hatred for dirt has developed the oil selective flotation process which has made the treatment of complex and low grade ores a success. Millions of dollars have been made and saved by the method, although its originator, Carrie Everson, has passed into practical obscurity.

J. J. Clark, majority owner in the big Kittimac mine at Silverton, Colo., tells how she stumbled on to the idea and other Denver mining men vouch for his story.

"One day in 1897," Clark says, "Mrs. Everson was in her brother's assay office in Denver and saw a pile of dirt, ore sacks, which her woman's instinct for cleanliness impelled her to tackle. She doused them in a pail of sudsy water and swished them around until a scum appeared on the surface of the water—a scum which, to her eyes appeared to contain mineral values, although at the time she could not conceive of metals floating.

"She removed the scum, poured out the sudsy water and found at the bottom of the pail a sludge which she knew to be only waste rock particles. The mineral values had floated to the top while the rock sank.

"Her brother analyzed the scum and determined that lead and zinc values had ridden to the surface on the grease bubbles of the soap, just as in the modern flotation process they rise to the surface on tiny rafts of oil.

"The brother took up the idea and started to develop it in a small way, trying to interest many prominent mining men. In a short while many scientific investigators were at work on the same thing, but it was several years before the oil flotation method became any more than a secondary method for separating ores.

"The idea never died out, however and ten years ago metallurgists in Australia made a great step by floating silver, lead and zinc separately in different cells. The war halted perfection of the process and it was not until 1920 that both Australian and American metallurgists made real progress and developed the method to a practical position. Now it is used almost throughout the world and has made paying projects out of workings hitherto unprofitable."

SIMPLY DOING DUTY

When President Coolidge conferred with Floor Leader Tilson for the purpose of keeping down the appropriations in the house that there may be no deficit it was simply another plea for that economy which he has been insisting upon for the past few years. And at this particular time he considered it pertinent that as chief executive he should give a word of warning concerning the existing situation whereby congress has made provision for an unexpectedly large cut in taxation and because of it there is all the more reason for not plunging into huge and unwarranted appropriations.

Representative Garner, democrat, of Texas, thought he saw the president trying to tell congress what it should and should not do, but Floor Leader Tilson apparently set that idea at rest when he pointed out that the president was simply doing his duty in calling attention to the fact that danger may lurk in case there would not be a sufficient revenue to keep the treasury solvent.

It is an easy matter to reduce taxes beyond the point of expectation and yet proceed to appropriate money which is neither on hand nor likely to be obtained through the revenue channels. That would certainly be most unwise, and it can be appreciated what the congressman from Texas would be saying if that situation developed and the president had not given a warning against it.

The president is entirely right in endeavoring to keep congress and the treasury on an even keel. He fully understands the possibilities if there exist that restraint. He knows the detestability of avoiding it. He appreciates the fact that congress must do its part if a deficit is to be be avoided and what he has had to say has been devoted to the prevention of an unnecessary situation. Now, of course, it cannot be said that congress was conducive of the desire for deficit development, but certainly the attention has been sufficiently well pointed out for congress to see that there is no excuse.

HOOVER'S SHIP BOARD PLAN

According to his statement before the house commerce committee, secretary Hoover would have the shipping board stripped of its business regulating and judicial authority and he would have the merchant fleet turned over to the fleet corporation for administration.

Such an ideal center as the result of the efforts of the shipping board to handle the merchant marine and the facts which are known in connection with such an attempt. When the shipping board was created it was thought to be the ideal arrangement but it hasn't worked out that way. There has been a huge expense involved, a costly administration of the fleet and the failure to get the merchant ships into private hands. There has been friction in the board and a strong evidence of an unwillingness to co-operate, or harmonize, with the administration.

The secretary of commerce does not advocate the abolition of the board but he would have many of its duties turned over to the fleet corporation. This was voluntarily done by the board for a time but it was constantly at odds with the head of the fleet corporation and the plan was dropped.

Perhaps it is desirable to have a shipping board for the judicial and regulatory work it can do, but while part of the duties are being turned over to the fleet corporation it would appear to be a good time to switch their control and the shipping board entirely.

It is quite evident that the shipping board has not grown in favor as the result of its work. It has furnished headlines for the time of that it would be for the best interests of the country if it should be done away with. Better results with the fleet could be anticipated and it is believed that the fleet corporation would proceed with greater speed to the disposition of the ships by putting them into the control of private capital instead of keeping them floating at anchor from one year's end to another. By all means the Hoover suggestion should at least go through but a step further would be better.

AN ALL AMERICAN CANAL

Demands from a group of middle west states for the development of the St. Lawrence waterway so that ocean steamships may enter the Great Lakes and load and unload at the lake ports have resulted in negotiations over a period of many months for the purpose of determining whether this country and Canada would join in the expense involved. Canada has displayed a cold shoulder to the proposition, both from the standpoint of developing the river for increased navigation and from the point of increased waterpower development.

In view of that fact there is interest in the announcement which has just been made by Superintendent Greene of the department of public works of New York state that the barge canal across the state is a losing proposition and that the only proper use for it is to turn it over to the federal government for development as a ship canal.

This would mean that those states which are seeking lower transportation rates and less handling of their goods would get an outlet to the ocean through United States territory instead of through Canada, one of the points which has brought opposition in this country against the St. Lawrence project.

But this ship canal idea is not a new one. It has been advocated before and it may be again. Putting a ship canal across New York from Oswego to Albany would be no slight undertaking. An expenditure that it would call for an outlay of $30,000,000 a year to maintain it, all of which New York believes should rest on the shoulders of the federal government.

The mere advocacy of such a plan does not mean that it will be adopted it is well that it should get consideration, however, among the others before a final decision is reached concerning the increased water service for the lake ports. No matter which plan is adopted, if in fact any is, the expense will not be small.

A PROHIBITION BILL

Much has been said in regard to the fact that the people were never given a chance to vote on the question of prohibition. Likewise there has been much of a contradictory nature said as to whether prohibition was desired.

Because of this fact there cannot fail to be no little interest in the prohibition poll which is to be taken by more than 375 newspapers in this country, which will cover every state in the Union and embrace territory with a population of more than 30,000,000. As described, "It will not take in merely cities here and there—nor large cities alone—it will take in small as well as large cities and extend over substantial areas of the country districts. It will be the first canvass on this uppermost question that will embrace any truly substantial part of the opinion of the nation."

Under the plan coupons will be printed on each one is required to give the name and address and they are asked to record their position on enforcement of the Volstead law as it stands, on repeal of the law and on its modification to permit light wines and beer.

It is of course open to the claim that it is only a straw vote, that those who are more interested than others will do the voting and that by such a method a full and fair expression cannot be obtained, but there is probably no better way of feeling the public pulse under existing conditions. It is a straw vote that is open to all, and there is no reason why favoritism should rest on one side more than on the other. Many will eagerly jump at the chance to express themselves.

GETTING OUT THE VOTES

When compulsory voting is suggested reference is at once made to Australia where it has been made law and where on its tryout it resulted in an increase of a half million votes for the labor party which had obtained the legislation but resulted in the success of most of the nationalist candidates.

The desire in Australia was to get a greater interest in elections and thereby get a better grade of public officials. There was strong opposition to the step at home policy which so many voters follow on too many occasions, and it was believed that the only way to get them interested in candidates and better government was to force them to go to the polls.

Without any question there should be a larger number who go to the polls at every election. Such matters ought not to be left to a few but it is preferable that they should go voluntarily. There are elections which call out a much larger number and the feeling is that on other occasions it makes little difference whether they go to the polls or not but it is the voter who says at home who invariably has the most to say about the election result. A big vote means a proper public interest.

In connection with the compulsory voting law it is interesting to note that even though they possess the franchise, and are anxious to vote, there are many who are prevented every election from getting to the polls and are denied suffrage through lack of an absentee voting law covering such cases. In such cases voters would vote if they could, but they can't, while in Australia those who could, didn't until they were made to.

HECTIC HAIR HOUR

"Him," spectulatively murmured the lady who had been married for quite a long time as she walked through the apartment of the bride, "I see you have out a sheet of sticky flypaper. If I were you, I should take it out and drop it over the back porch!

"Any flies that I can't reach with the swatter are allowed to reside happily in my home ever since I fought it with John. That was the first autumn after we were married. In fact, I may as well admit that the flypaper was my first intimation that John wasn't going to keep on trembling with fear at my frown and turning pale if he thought I was unhappy about anything.

" 'Dearie,' said John when he arrived home and nearly laid his new straw hat down on the flypaper he had not expected to meet, 'I don't believe I'd have this confounded stuff around, if I were you! It makes me nervous!'

"Laughing merrily, I patted back the scalplock which should have warned me had I possessed and sense. He was a silly boy who didn't know anything about keeping house, I told him with all a bride's coquetry.

" 'Well, but really, dear,' John said. 'I did ruin a perfectly new felt hat once at home because mother had this stuff around and had to give it away —hats cost money and we mustn't be extravagant. Let's throw it out.' "

"I saw that here was the place for me to set down my foot gently but unmistakably. Aunts and cousins and all my married friends had warned me that if I wanted a happy married life I must stand up for my rights in the home and avoid having a hectoring snoopy husband. 'No, John,' I said kindly, 'my card club meets here tomorrow afternoon and I'd die if Ethel Fish saw a fly! She'd say I was not sanitary. You should hang up your hats, anyhow, sweetheart, and not leave them around the house for me to put up!'"

"John began to look injured. He said he knew of case after case where awful things had happened because of flypaper.

" 'Here, look at the darned thing now,' he went on; that gust of wind had blown it right over onto his fresh evening paper, and if there was one thing more than another that peeved him it was a newspaper that was not crisp and fresh. Good heavens, what was I doing? Cutting off the sticky corner? Well, a person of moderate intelligence would have realized before doing so that no doubt there was something on the back of the page that was most important for him to read—yes, look at that! A great chunk cut from the account of an important murder case.

"I simply had no interest in his work nor had I his interests at heart! By this time he was walking up and down speedily, hands behind back, frown on forehead. It was an awful thing for a man to marry and find he had no rights in his own home and a blow to discover that his wife had no regard whatever for his wishes.

"If I hadn't loved him why had I married him? No doubt I was bitterly regretting the deed! Well, if I wanted a divorce it could be arranged and he never should stand in my way, no not even if I married somebody else, which was quite likely, considering the way that goof Arthur Whipstick had hung around even after we were engaged. He had always known that down in my heart I liked Arthur awfully well and why shouldn't I when Arthur was so rich and able to give me everything?"

"Mercy!" grasped the fascinated and horrified bride, not able to stand more without the relief of speech "what a terrible situation and how tragic! Whatever did you do?"

The lady who had been married a long time chuckled a bit as she rolled up the sticky sheet which had caused the discussion. "Didn't have to do a thing," she said. "Just then John clasped his hands to his head in bitter despair and sat down hard on the window seat—where he had laid the flypaper. And it sort of distracted his attention from his sorrows!"

"Let's throw this out," breached the bride, still aghast at the possibilities unfolded.—Chicago News.

IN THE PUBLIC EYE

James J. Davis, who is said to be debating the question whether he should resign his seat in President's Coolidge's cabinet and try for the republican nomination for governor of Pennsylvania, has held the post of secretary of labor for the past five years, having been an appointee of President Harding. Although he has been a recognized leader in the ranks of organized labor, his career in many respects is dissimilar from that of the typical labor leader. He was born in Wales and was brought to Pittsburgh by his parents when he was an infant. At 11 he went to work in the steel mills. He removed to Ellwood Ind., in 1898 and became prominent in local politics there. In 1906 he was chosen to reorganize the Loyal Order of Moose, of which he is now the head. Mr. Davis has engaged in the banking business in Pittsburgh and is believed to possess a large personal fortune.

From Small Beginnings

Hans Christian Anderson, the Shoemaker's Boy, Writer of Great Stories

A man who spent a most miserable and unhappy childhood lived to write stories that have made children all over the world happy. Out of poverty, wretchedness, failure and abuse there sprang, like beautiful white lilies out of a swamp, the fairy stories of Hans Christian Anderson, the great Danish story-teller.

When he was a gawky boy well over 20 Hans Christian Anderson was in a school in the very town where Hamlet is supposed to have lived—Elsinore. He was looked upon as the stupid boy of the school, and he thought of himself with shame. His father had been a shoemaker, whose life had been made miserable by sickness and lack of money. When Hans was only 11, the shoemaker had died, leaving the poverty-stricken, uneducated boy to do as he pleased. The thing that he did was to stay away from school to play with dolls dressing them and imagining that they were actors and actresses carrying out the parts of plays that he made up to amuse himself. It was a pathetic thing for the fatherless child to do, but it was the sort of thing that made him famous—the imagining of wonderful stories.

At 14, he tried to become a singer in a theater, but his voice failed him. Then he tried to become a dancer—and his legs would not behave! There was something lovable about the waif and he made good friends. By the time he was 17 he had written a book that had been published—and as yet he had scarcely any education. When the King of Denmark heard about it he sent the boy to a school, but he was a very dull and unhappy pupil. By the time he was 24 he had written another book—for he loved to make up stories. Some time later the King again befriended him, and sent him off on travels through Europe. He kept on writing poems and stories, and then, when he was 30 published the first of his glorious fairy stories, stories that will live for ages and carry delight. He lived for years after the appearance of his first fairy stories, and kept on trying to write great plays and great novels and great poems, feeling unhappy because he could not make them succeed, and writing new fairy stories from time to time; but these, his great contribution to literature, he thought quite insignificant. He wondered why people liked them. So, when he died at 70, because he fell out of bed, he thought his life a great deal of a failure.

In reality it was a great triumph.

Waving and Curling Dries Life from Hair

The constant curling and waving demanded by present styles in bobbed hair, slowly burns the color, lustre and very life from the hair, leaving it dry, faded, brittle, and full of dandruff; then the hair roots shrink and the hair falls out fast.

Since girls just must curl and wave the hair to appear their prettiest, try "Danderine" to offset any bad effects. After the first application your hair will take on new life and that healthy youthful lustre, become incomparably soft, wavy and appear twice as thick and abundant. Falling hair stops and dandruff disappears.

A 35-cent bottle of refreshing "Danderine" from any drug store or toilet counter will do wonders for any girl's hair. It goes right to the roots, invigorates, nourishes and strengthens them, helping the hair to grow thick, healthy and luxuriant.

Stories That Recall Others

All Or Nothing.

To a young attorney who was representing his client in court, the judge said: 'You may advise your client as to his constitutional right of telling his story or keeping quiet.'

"Yes, sir," replied the attorney turning to his client, "You can tell the whole truth and nothing but the truth, or you can keep quiet."

But After That—What?

The senior of the family is "pursuing" education at Yale. The father, assuming that the mother and two sisters would keep the young man informed on what was going on in the old home town, has been neglecting him recently, but will not do so any more after the receipt of this admonitory letter:

"Dear Dad: Has paternal affection waned, or have you been busy? You have not written me this year, nor even an admonition to economize, or a gentle suggestion that a bit more of application possibly would produce materially better grades. I shall lose the incentive to work, soon, unless the picture is kept before me—the picture of the poor old father, laboring, uncomplainingly, sacrificing his all that his son might have the advantage of other sons, while the son forgets all, or, blissfully unaware of his father's sufferings squanders his money, gets kicked out of college, and, repenting too late, shamefacedly returns home to be forgiven. The son reforms only after the father's death has tragically forced into his consciousness the great sacrifice of his father, and his serious demeanor is an ever present "I've got to eat."

IF YOU WANT A TIME-SAVER IN WASHING CLOTHES THEN YOU SHOULD USE AN Easy Washer

Large capacity means few loads and little handling of clothes; also slow motion of moving parts means longer life to machine and less wear and tear on clothes, hence longer life to material.

Due to the force and suction of its vacuum cup principle the Easy is extremely economical on soap—the most expensive item in the washing of clothes.

It is a matter of real science, years of experiment and experience to design a washer which will thoroughly clean the greatest number of clothes in the least volume of water, absolutely without wear or tear on the finest of fabrics, without excessive handling and in the shortest possible time.

M'ALL MISSION ANNUAL HEARS HARTFORD SPEAKER

The annual meeting of the McAll auxiliary was held Tuesday afternoon at 3 o'clock at Osgood Memorial parish house of Park Congregational church, with Miss Ellen E. Flagg, president of the Hartford branch as the speaker after the business meeting.

Miss Elizabeth B. Huntington, the president, called the meeting to order. The secretary's report was given by Miss Alexandrine Trumbull and the treasurer's report by Mrs. S. H. Howe, who stated that $413.45 has been raised, of which $60 was from three Sunday schools.

Announcement was made of the 43rd annual meeting which is to be held May 12 and 13 at East Orange, N. J.

The following list of officers was elected and presented by Mrs. Gardiner Greene, chairman of the nominating committee: president, Miss Edith Bliss; vice president, Mrs. Gardiner Greene; second vice president, Miss Alff Stephens; treasurer, Mrs. S. H. Howe; recording secretary, Miss Alexandrine Trumbull; corresponding secretary, Miss Jennie Case; publicity chairman, Mrs. Francis Gilman; executive committee, Miss Elizabeth B. Huntington, Mrs. Channing M. Huntington, Mrs. W. Tyler Browne, Mrs. Alexander H. Abbott, Mrs. William H. Allen.

Rev. George T. Berry of New York city, field secretary, had been expected to be present to give an illustrated lecture upon the McAll mission work in France, but he was unable to because of illness. Miss Flagg taking his place and giving a graphic description of what she had seen of the mission work in a visit to France two years ago. She spoke particularly of the orphanage work, which she had seen at first hand because of accompanying a group of 15 orphans as they were leaving Paris for a stay of three months in the chateau on the headwaters of the Seine, which is used as the orphanage. She emphasized particularly the natural home life, so different for an institutional atmosphere, which is thrown around the children, and the remarkable type of men and women who are at the head of this work.

These administrators of the work, Miss Flagg said, are consecrated men and women who are doing all they can for body and souls in the different phases of work in which the McAll mission functions and the French people are profoundly grateful for the aid from America. It is a work that would not be done if the McAll mission did not do it and it is for the benefit of those who have gone to the limit of their endurance because of their terrible experiences in the World war. It must be carried on indefinitely.

Prayer by Dr. Howe closed the business part of the meeting, after which tea was served.

VERDICT FOR $2,500 AGAINST TWO DEFENDANTS IN AUTOMOBILE SUIT

The suit of Abraham Simonowitz of Colchester against Lorenzo D. Fairbrother of Stonington and David Felden of Colchester brought him a verdict of $2,500 in the superior court at New London late Tuesday afternoon, when the jury brought in a verdict against both defendants for that amount.

The Simonowitz suit was brought because of injuries he received in an automobile accident and presented the unusual feature that he blamed the operators of both cars which were in collision and accordingly brought his suit against two persons, Felden, in whose motor truck he was riding, and Lorenzo D. Fairbrother, owner of the car that was in collision with the Felden truck.

The suit was brought for $15,000 damages and was defended by the two insurance companies interested. The jury was out about 90 minutes, bringing in its verdict about 6.45 in the evening. It is expected that this will close the case as an appeal from the verdict is considered improbable.

Evidence in the trial was concluded at noon before Judge Allyn L. Brown and the jury. In the afternoon Attorney Russell H. Corcoran, who with Attorneys Morris Lubchansky and Warren B. Burrows, represent Simonowitz, presented his argument before the jury and was followed by Attorney Arthur M. Brown, who, with Attorney C. V. James, appears for Fairbrother. He was followed by Attorney Wells of the firm of Perkins, Wells & Davis, representing Felden and Attorney Morris Lubchansky finished for the plaintiff.

Attorney James called to the stand in the morning Billings P. Fairbrother, Lorenzo D. Fairbrother, Jr., Erastus D. Chesebro and Lorenzo D. Fairbrother, all of Stonington; the Rev. George W. Borden, pastor of the Quaker Hill Baptist church, and Eugene Rang, of Hartford, boiler inspector. Attorney Wells called to the stand Henry F. Billings of Hartford, secretary of the public utilities commission, who testified regarding a hearing slated for Hartford on the day of the accident, which Mr. Chesebro was on his way to attend, the latter being a member of a committee on water rates in Mystic, which had asked for the hearing.

The suit was based on an accident which took place on Feb. 16, 1925, at the intersection of the New London-Hartford turnpike and the Norwich-Hamburg road, in which a truck driven by Felden, and occupied also by the plaintiff, Simonowitz, and Iman Stein, figured in a collision with a sedan driven by Lorenzo Fairbrother, Jr., and occupied by Mr. Chesebro and Billings Fairbrother. The two machines are alleged to have crashed at the intersection, the Hudson car of Fairbrother landing a distance of 62 feet from the point of impact and the Reo truck turning completely over, pinning the occupants in the cab beneath the machine. Simonowitz claims mental and physical injuries against Fairbrother and Felden. Two other suits are now pending as the result of the accident.

The court will come in this (Wednesday) morning for the trial of the suit of Jeremiah J. Lyons of New London, administrator, against Mary E. Crawford of Norwich and others for damages for the death of the plaintiff administrator's daughter because of automobile accident at a point on the "Ten Curves" on the Hartford-New London road in the early morning hours of Thanksgiving day, 1924, when the Crawford machine in which were two young men and two young women hit a rock. All four occupants of the machine were injured and the Lyons girl died in the hospital several days later.

SILHOUETTE PARTY MADE ART STUDENTS' ENTERTAINMENT

The March meeting of the Art Students' association was held Monday evening in the lecture rooms of the Slater Memorial. Mrs. Edwin W. Higgins presided at the business session, with Miss Ina M. Ufford reading the minutes of the last meeting and, in the absence of Mrs. Sudlow, the treasurer's report.

Miss Eunice Gulliver reported the important work of the docent committee in the instruction given in Greek mythology and sculpture to the children of the sixth grade schools. Mrs. Philip A. Johnson has made three visits each to the 14 or 15 schools and 426 children of that grade and 120 more of the fifth and seventh grades have listened to the story telling and then have visited the Slater museum in groups. Five graduates of the art school have served as assistants in showing the children through the museum. Announcement had been made that Mrs. Ozias Dodge would reserve certain hours during the vacation week if the children desired to make extra visits and 50 children showed their appreciation of the opportunity.

At the recommendation of Mrs. Frank S. Bunnell, it was voted that the house committee be authorized to arrange a donation party for replenishing china and silver.

Mrs. Frank Hempstead announced that in April, Royal Cortissoz, art editor of the New York Herald-Tribune and of Scribner's magazine, will give an illustrated lecture, open to the public. His easy conversational manner and command of language, added to his knowledge, make him the most popular lecturer of the Metropolitan museum and hundreds are turned away each time, for lack of room. He rarely goes to small cities so Norwich is fortunate in having an opportunity to hear him a second time.

Miss Lucas reported of the work of the committee on the preservation of trees and Miss H. R. Trumbull called attention to the etchings by Ozias Dodge, which had been purchased by the association and hung in the lecture room.

The program for the evening was a silhouette party, arranged by Mrs. John D. Hall. Miss Harriet R. Trumbull and Mrs. Frederick T. Sayles. Francis Gilman read a short paper on the history of the silhouette, and the different methods of making them; stating that while the profile or shadow portraits of black and white had been known earlier, the name had not been used until 1757. He gave a humorous account of Etienne de Silhouette, the French minister of finance, who in trying to replenish the treasury, became so parsimonious in his reforms, that his name became a by-word. Any mode of fashion that was plain and cheap was styled "a la Silhouette," so in derision the artists named the cutout profile for him. Interesting examples had been loaned for exhibition, among the older ones were: A full length portrait of Dr. John Turner, dated 1826; a bust of Elias Crane, 1829, ancestor of Edwin W. Higgins; an interesting example of those painted with colors, was a bust of Rufus Gilman. There were three examples of those with photographic backgrounds, one showing two full length portraits. The other two were by Edouard, one of the most noted silhouette makers; one portraying an ancestor of Judge Gardiner Greene, dated 1842; the other was of little Miss Eliza Buckingham, afterward Mrs. W. A. Aiken, and dated 1846.

During the social hour music was enjoyed through the courtesy of the Plaut Cadden Co., who had loaned a choice model of the new orthophonic Victrola and sent a representative with a large collection of records. Silhouette portraits were made of many members of the association, followed by a guessing contest, when prizes were awarded to those recognizing the largest number.

FORMER NORWICH RECTOR DISCUSSES RELIGIOUS TREND

According to the spring catalogue of a Milwaukee publishing house, Dr. William Henry Smith, who was for several years rector of St. Andrew's church in this city, has just written a book upon the passing of "Reformation Protestantism". The book is entitled "Modernism, Fundamentalism, and Catholicism".

Dr. Smith contends that the superstructure of Protestantism was built upon the erroneous belief that "the Bible and the Bible only" is the final and absolute authority in all matters that pertain to the Christian religion. This belief is now being rejected he argues, experience and research having made it increasingly difficult to maintain. Consequently, men are either closing their eyes to new truths (witness the Fundamentalists), or are going on to one of two alternatives: The first, to the authority of the individual mind and conscience (Modernism); the second, to the authority of the church (Catholicism).

The book endeavors to get at the psychology underlying the present trend in religion. It attempts, as the author states in his preface, to ascertain the motives, aims, and emotions which underlie the three movements of thought popularly known as Modernism, Fundamentalism, and Catholicism.

According to Dr. Smith, Modernism, since it tends to reject any notion of a supernatural revelation from Almighty God will work towards a religion without doctrinal requirements and without a creed and will ultimately become one with Unitarianism. Fundamentalism, on the other hand, being based upon principles which are now obsolete, will ultimately acknowledge the authority of the church and become reconciled to Catholicism.

WILLIMANTIC PAPER AROUND DEAD BABY'S BODY

HARTFORD, March 9—(AP)—The body of a new-born babe with a strip of rag bound tightly about its neck was found wrapped in newspapers in a dump at Prospect street, East Hartford, 100 feet north of Connecticut boulevard, Monday night. Dr. H. J. Orderdonk, medical examiner of that town, said that, because of the cold weather of the past week, it was impossible to state whether the body, which was frozen when discovered had remained in the swamp for more than a day. He pronounced death due to strangulation and gave permission for the removal of the body.

The newspapers in which the body was wrapped form practically the only clue upon which the police can conduct their investigation. One of the papers was a 1920 issue of the "New York Times," it was said, and the other was a Willimantic paper dated 1923.

ELEVEN PENS LISTED IN STORRS HONOR ROLL

For the third successive week, egg production jumped at Storrs with the contest flock reaching a new high mark for the year of 43.5 per cent. A total of 4757 eggs were laid during the eighteenth week, which is a gain of 381 eggs over the production the previous week. And compared with the production for the corresponding week a year ago, the total represents a gain of 682 eggs. With a total production to date of 68,642 eggs, the contest birds have averaged a little better than forty-nine eggs apiece up to the present time.

This week's honor roll is unusual in that eleven pens are listed for the four positions, which in point of numbers makes it the longest honor roll of the year. John Z. LaBelle's Reds, a present high pen in the contest headed the honor roll with a lay of fifty-four eggs. Second place saw a tie between the Barred Rock entry of the Rambler's Farm from Monsey, N. Y. and the Red entry of George B. Treadwell from Spencer, Mass., each with a lay of fifty-one eggs. The Wyandotte entry of the Locusts from West Cornwall, Conn., and the White Wyandottes from Mystic, Conn. tied for third place with a production of forty-eight eggs each. A total of six pens, four Leghorns and one each of Reds and Barred Rocks tied for fourth place with a lay of forty-seven eggs each. Lewis Farms from Dayville, R. I., entered the Barred Rocks, while the Hayes Hennery from Dover, N. H., entered the Reds. The White Leghorns were entered by Peetoocee Poultry Plant from Telford, Pa., R. W. Colman from Medina, N. Y., The Marquis Poultry Farm from Toms River, N. J., and Henry Rapp Jr., from Farmingdale, N. J.

LaBelle's leading pen of Reds, with a record of 892 eggs, continues to increase its lead over other contesting pens. They now have an eighty-four egg lead over the Dudley Poultry Farm Leghorns from Webster, Mass. the Reds making a thirteen egg gain over their Leghorn rivals in the one week. Three changes took place among the leading pens. W. H. B. Kent's Barred Rock entry from Cazenovia, N. Y., went up into third place in its class, displacing the entry of Harriet Smith from Newburyport, Mass. The Hayes Hennery entry of Rhode Island Reds took fourth place in its class, displacing the pen entered by Silver Crest Farm from Holliston, Mass. In the "All Other Varieties" classification, the Buff Rock entry of Cedar Brook Farm from Needham, Mass. took third position, displacing the White Rock entry of A. T. YALE SWIMMING TEAM SMASHES FOUR WORLD'S RECORDS IN MILE EVENT

NEW HAVEN, March 9.—(AP)—The Yale mile relay swimming team broke four world's records here tonight in an exhibition mile swim, one of the features of a program of water sports.

The team covered the first 400 yards in three minutes, 40 2-5 seconds, breaking the former record of 3 minutes, 42 3-5 seconds held jointly by Yale and by the Illinois Athletic club.

The team covered 500 yards in 4 minutes, 35 3-5 seconds, the old record held jointly by Yale and Illinois, being 4 minutes, 41 4-5 seconds.

The 600 yard mark was reached in 5 minutes, 34 seconds, the former record held by Illinois being 5 minutes, 40 4-5 seconds.

The mile was covered in 15 minutes, 53 2-5 seconds, breaking the record made last year by Yale of 17 minutes, 15 2-5 seconds.

Erich Rademacher, star German breast stroke, making his American debut in a series of water sports at Yale tonight, broke one world record and three American records in the four events that he entered.

Gustave Froelich, Germany's best stroke artist, was defeated by J. A. House of Cleveland, Ohio, Intercollegiate record holder, in a fast 100 yard race. The time was 1 minutes, 5 4-5 seconds.

Rademacher smashed the world's record, held by himself, in the 400 meter race, covering the distance in 5 minutes, 20 1-5 seconds. His former time was six minutes, 5 seconds.

The German star set up a new American record in the 300 yard race breast stroke, his time tonight being 4 minutes, 3-5 seconds. The American 440 yard record also was shattered, the German swimmer setting up a new time of 5 minutes, 22 2-5 seconds.

In the 440 yard swim, Rademacher made the distance in 5 minutes, 53 1-5 seconds, also a new American record.

The German star who was cheered when he entered the pool and who received greater applause when he shattered the American and world records, covered the length of the Yale pool—75 feet—in ten strokes.

The junior national amateur low board diving championship was won by Carl Michaels of New Haven, a student at Dartmouth college. J. C. Yaden, of New York city, a Yale freshman, was second. E. E. Beck of Chicago, a Yale senior, was third.

Bob Kiphuth, coach of the Yale swimming team, praised the work of the German swimmers after the meet tonight.

"I am glad," he said, "that Yale could be the first university in America to entertain the German swimmers. Rademacher's swimming was truly phenomenal. Evidently Froelich is still feeling the effect of his sea journey to this country."

Rademacher and Froelich left here tonight for New York where they will appear tomorrow night in a swimming meet.

The members of the Yale relay team who broke four records tonight, in the order of their swimming were as follows:

Bronson, House, Choate, Scott, Sanford, Meany, Stage, Peterson, Bennett, Luke, Spencer, Hoyt, Sullivan, Clark Whiting, Cogill, Marshal and Clayton.

MILLIGAN WITHDRAWS FROM MATCH WITH WALKER

NEW YORK, March 9.—(AP)—Tommy Milligan of Scotland, welterweight and middleweight champion of Europe, today withdrew from a proposed title match with Mickey Walker when he informed the State Athletic commission that he could not make the 147 pound weight limit of the division.

As a result of this withdrawal the commission recommended to Matchmaker Jess McMahon that he match Willie Harmon of New York and Joe Dundee of Baltimore, Md., for a bout at Madison Square Garden May 7 to determine the challenger for the welterweight crown. The commission said it would recognize the winner as the outstanding welterweight and inform the champion to accept his challenge.

William Ames, manager of Milligan, told the commission that it weakened the Scotchman too much to fight at that weight and at the same time he said Milligan will renounce the European welterweight championship. Milligan was selected recently as the logical welterweight challenger and Walker had been informed to meet him at the Garden May 7. Milligan, Ames said will confine his boxing to the middleweight division, during the remainder of his tour in this country.

Permission to fight Paul Berlenbach, world's light-heavyweight champion, was denied to Tiger Flowers, middleweight king, in keeping with the commission's policy to force champions to fight within their division.

Jess McMahon was called to the commission office to answer a complaint filed by John Buckley of Boston, manager of Jack Sharkey, that he was unable to obtain a fight for Sharkey at the Garden.

McMahon said he though Sharkey was not a good drawing card following his fight with Eddie Huffman, California light-heavyweight, in which Sharkey won easily.

Phil McGraw, Detroit lightweight, was matched to meet Johnny Rocco at the Pioneer A. C., March 23. McGraw was scheduled to fight this week but pleaded for more time to get in condition.

MISS WILLS SUFFERING FROM COLD FORSAKES NICE TENNIS

NICE, France, March 9.—(AP)—The ranks of the woman tennis stars along the Riviera are thinning rapidly. The latest to withdraw today of senorita De Alvarez of spain from the Nice tournament leaves Helen Wills, the American champion, without an opponent in this event who can give her much of a battle.

Miss Wills herself was suffering from a heavy cold and decided not to play today. She will have three matches tomorrow meeting Miss Helen Shirles and Miss Sallie Maynard in singles in the morning, and, paired with Charles S. Kingsley of England, playing Mr. and Mrs. Debruyn in the mixed doubles in the afternoon.

Senorita De Alvarez, considered to rank in a class just behind Suzanne Lenglen and Miss Wills in any classification of the world's woman players, announced today she would stay out of tennis competition for several months, on account of poor health.

With the Spanish star out of the tournament it is believed Miss Eileen Bennett, the young English player who Miss Wills has beaten easily in their matches this season, will be the other finalist with the American champion in the Nice tournament.

Miss Wills' friends are strongly urging that she forsake Riviera tennis and go to Italy to rest and do some of the sketching she wants to do. She might also play some tennis there outside competitive tournaments. She had had several colds in recent weeks which only her robust constitution prevented from becoming serious.

HAGENLACHER PILES UP BIG LEAD OVER SCHAEFER IN BILLIARD MATCH

PHILADELPHIA, March 9.—(AP)—Jack Schaefer risking the world's 18.2 balkline billiard title against his second European challenger in four months tonight was decisively defeated by Eric Hagenlacher of Germany in the first block of a 1,500 point match. The score was 500 to 17.

Schaefer, who lost and won back his crown in two sensational matches against Edouard Horemans of Belgium during December and January, was unable to bring from his magic cue the touch of the master that dethroned Willie Hoppe. His best run was 9 points in the second frame, and he was obliged to take the role of spectator for long stretches as Hagenlacher clicked off his 500 points in five innings.

The defeat was one of the most stunning reverses in Schaefer's brilliant career.

The second and third blocks of the match will be played tomorrow and Thursday.

Hagenlacher closed with an unfinished run of 160, 27 points short of his best string for the night. The score by innings:

Schaefer	5	9	0	3	1—	17
Hagenlacher	101	187	8	44	160—	500

High runs, Hagenlacher 160, Schaefer 3 3-5.

WESTERLY

JAIL SENTENCE FOR MAN WHO STOLE CLOTH

(Special to the Bulletin.)

WESTERLY, R. I., March 9.—Judge William A. Wilcox of Pawcatuck held a session of Stonington Town court on Tuesday morning when the following cases were heard.

John A. Elliott, of 34 Owen street, Hartford, was charged with operating an automobile without having obtained an operator's license from the Connecticut commissioner of motor vehicles. Entering a plea of guilty, Elliott asked permission to make a statement later.

Trooper Symonskei took the witness stand and testified that on March 6th he was sent to check up on all cars between Westerly and Groton, to see if the operators had driver's licenses. The defendant showed a Connecticut license of 1925 and when asked for 1926, said that he didn't have any.

Under oath John Elliott told the court that he first had a Connecticut operator's license on Dec. 14th, although previous to this time had a Rhode Island license for a number of years which was good for a year from the date of its issue. When his Connecticut permit was given him he was careless and did not read it, supposing that it, like Rhode Island licenses, expired a year later.

Town Solicitor McKenna said that the violation was technical and recommended a small fine. Judge Wilcox found the accused guilty and imposed a fine of $2 and costs of $12.21, amounting to $14.21, which was paid and the defendant discharged.

Michael Karwowoski, alias John Doe, 13 Walnut, Pawcatuck, was charged with wilfully and feloniously stealing, stealing and carrying away, property, goods and chattels out of possession of the Westerly Textile company in Rhode Island. The complaint specified 100 yards of cloth, cotton warp and rayon filling, at 40 cents a yard amounting to $40. The defendant entered a plea of guilty. A short recess was taken and Pawcatuck Police Patrolman C. Wilson Brown, accompanied by Karwowski was in search of a Polish interpreter and they returned with William Rosen of Stonington borough, who acted in that capacity.

Police Patrolman C. Wilson Brown of Pawcatuck was the first witness and testified to searching the residence of the accused, 13 Walnut street, Pawcatuck. The three bags produced in court was the collection of curtain cloth cuts of various colors and designs, and identified as coming from the mill of the Westerly Textile company. The cloth was found being stitched on the sewing machine or in trunks which were opened.

Charles S. Fowler, 29, Elem street, Westerly, testified that he was the president of the Westerly Textile Co., and had accompanied the police officer on the search. The cloth pieces were found in trunks, bags and bureau drawers. Some of the material was used in curtains at the windows and some yarn was seen but these were not brought to court. He testified that the goods were manufactured at the Westerly Textile plant. A low estimate of their value was $45 or $50. Later in the court session he said that Karwowski and his wife had been employed at the Westerly plant for some time and from the samples found the various larcenies would have extended over a period of two years.

James A. Donahue of 33 Liberty street, Pawcatuck, told the court that he was overseer of weaving at the Westerly Textile plant and was present at the time of the search. He said that two cloth found in trunks and dressers was what appeared in the three cloth bags opened in the court room.

In moving for sentence, Solicitor McKenna said that the accused plead guilty because he had no other defense and that he claimed to have taken the stuff because others had told him to. He said that a theft in Rhode Island brought over into Connecticut under the laws covering larceny in Rhode Island, was under the Connecticut statute, a larceny in Connecticut. The evidence showed that the stealing had been conducted under a large scale. The value was more than $45 which had been set to keep the case in the jurisdiction of the Stonington town court. The man had good employment and wages. This case demanded that substantial justice be done as a deterrant and he asked for both a substantial fine and jail sentence to have a good influence in the community.

Judge Wilcox found the respondent guilty and sentenced him to pay a fine of $75 and costs of $18.05, amounting to $93.05, which was paid. He also sentenced him to be confined in New London county jail for 60 days. A mittimus was issued and returning to Pawcatuck, Police Patrolman Brown took Karwowoski by automobile to New London to begin his term of imprisonment.

The News Goes Through the Green Forest

Bad news travels fast, you'll find;
Good news often fails behind.
—Old Mother Nature.

The little people of the Green Forest knew long before Farmer Brown's boy did of the coming of Puma the Panther, the Mountain Lion. Every one through out the whole of the Green Forest, with the exception of Paddy the Beaver and Buster Bear and Bobby Coon and Uncle Billy Possum, knew of Puma's coming almost as soon as he got there. Paddy the "Huh!" snarled Yowler. "Those eyes of yours are so big they see things that aren't."

Beaver, living under the ice, of course, knew nothing of what was going on in the Green Forest. Neither did the others I have mentioned, because they were asleep.

It was Hooty the Great Horned Owl who first saw Puma, for it was in the night that Puma came down from the great mountains into the Green Forest. Hooty wasn't really afraid, but he was very much disturbed. This meant one more hunter in the Green Forest, and already there were hunters enough to Hooty's way of thinking. Hooty flew at once to where he felt sure he would find Yowler the Bob Cat. He found him without any difficulty. "I've news for you, Yowler," said he.

"Huh!" growled Yowler. "You can't have any news that will interest me!"

"Oh, can't I?" retorted Hooty. "I suppose it will not interest you to know that your biggest cousin is here in the Green Forest."

Yowler glared up at Hooty without winking. "My biggest cousin in the north is Puma the Panther and there hasn't been one of his family in the Green Forest since my great-great-grandfather's time," said Yowler.

"That may be," replied Hooty, "but there is one of the family here now I saw him here this very night."

"Huh!" snarled Yowler. "Those eyes of yours are so big that they see things that aren't. If you think you can scare me with any such story as that you had better think again."

"Just as you say," replied Hooty. "But if I were you, I would keep my eyes open." With this Hooty flew to look for Old Man Coyote. As for Yowler, he quite clearly was uneasy. He didn't want to believe, but he had to. There was something about the way that Hooty had spoken that he had been telling the truth, it was very disturbing. Yowler never had seen his big cousin, but he knew that that big cousin was a great deal bigger than he. He was afraid, was Yowler.

Before that night was over Old Man Coyote and Reddy Fox and Billy Mink and Little Joe Otter and Shadow the Weasel had heard the news. Before Jolly, round red Mr. Sun went to bed behind the Purple Hills the next night Chatterer the Red Squirrel, Happy Jack the Gray Squirrel, Rusty the Fox Squirrel, Jumper the Hare, Peter Rabbit, Mrs. Grouse, and all the other little people in feather and fur who were awake had heard the news. And each, when he or she heard it, shivered. No news that ever had reached the Green Forest had caused so many shivers as did the news of the arrival of Puma the Panther.

But the ones who shivered most were Lightfoot the Deer and his family. Hilberte Lightfoot and Mrs. Lightfoot had feared no one but the hunters with the terrible guns, and they came only for a short time once a year. They respected big Buster Bear, but they did not fear him because they knew that they could keep out of his reach. But now, when they heard the news, they shivered with fear. You see they knew that Puma the Panther was particularly fond of deer meat.

PATTERSON'S DISHONEST EMPLOYES FURNISH $3,000 BAIL AT NEW LONDON

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, March 9—Frank Tudisco and Max Goldstein were accused in the police court this morning of robbing and defrauding S. Patterson, Inc., out of some $1900 in goods stolen from the place and by padded receipts and bills. The men have been under suspicion some time while the facts were being sought to connect them with the crime of which they were accused today. Tudisco was employed at the candy and ice cream store of Patterson and thus had the opportunity to take manufactured goods and raw material from the store. He is charged with having stolen candy, sugar, chocolate, extra, butter, etc., valued at several hundred dollars. Goldstein is accused of having delivered sweet cream at the store said to have been in collusion with Tudisco so that the pair charged Patterson for double the amount of cream furnished the place. In this way the pair are said to have swindled the Patterson company and to have robbed the place by taking goods out and never accounting for them. The robbery, if the facts are as alleged, is the boldest that has been carried on in this city in years. Both men are represented by an attorney, who had a prior engagement in the superior court so the complaint presented today was continued until the 16th inst. The men accused were released, when each furnished a bond for $3500.

It is believed there are others than the persons named connected with this wholesale stealing and the defrauding of Patterson.

Peter Athinaios, the third man wanted in connection with the alleged robbery and fraud and who is now in the custody this evening, according to advices received from Chief of Police N. J. Tonneson, of Perth Amboy as a result of a warrant having been sent to Perth Amboy late last night Chief of Police Tonneson also stated that Anthinaios has secured a surety on his bond for his appearance whenever he was wanted in the Perth Amboy court and also stated that Athinaios would not return to New London to face the charges against him without a fight. He further stated that Athinaios intended to make his return to New London through extradition. The New London authorities assert that so long as Anthinaios intended to demand extradition that the necessary papers would be issued without delay, but that the accused would certainly be brought back to New London to face trial.

ABOUT 250 DELINQUENTS WILL BE PRODDED TO PAY TAX

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW YORK, March 9—Every year at least it has been the case for a number of years, the city makes a strenuous effort to compel personal tax delinquents to make payment at the office of Personal Tax Collector Allen C. Richards This year just ended finds about 250 delinquents on the records of the city and because of the large number, Collector Richards today caused the names of a number of the delinquents to be handed to Assistant Prosecuting Attorney Perry J. The latter this afternoon stated that while he had received the list of delinquents he did not intend to start prosecution of the tax dodgers until they had been given one more opportunity to attempt to make payment in an effort to accomplish this payment Acting Prosecuting Attorney Hollandersky mailed letters sent to the delinquents stating it plain that unless the tax is paid within a reasonable time that prosecutions will follow if a prosecution of the delinquent does result in a conviction the individuals prosecuted, not only to pay the tax, but the costs of the court are generally assessed, making the total sum the delinquent is forced to pay about $10. The tax is $2 annually. Collector Richards is preparing a second list of delinquents, which he will turn over to the prosecuting attorney in a few days.

What is this generation coming to? On what will the next be builded? A man demands chastity of the woman he married. Should not she demand the same thing of him? Should we live for the present or for the future? These and many more vital questions are answered in "Tell Me Why," the picture dealing with questions of sex.

Those who attend the showing of this photoplay for the purpose of seeing vulgar and sensational or to satiate some thirst for curiosity will be highly astounded at the true realization of facts presented.

No attempt is being made to sensualize this production by glaring headlines and misleading titles. But because of the delicate nature of this subject there will be special shows for ladies only and men only and no one under 16 admitted.

This picture is without objectionable features but is a full and comprehensive treatment of a subject all should understand, treated in a most delicate manner.

It was stated that many people that have seen this attraction in other cities where "Tell Me Why" was shown offered congratulations to the theatre managers in presenting so delicately the vital things of life.

Tell Me Why will be shown here on March 14, 15, 16, 17 with special shows for ladies only and special shows for men only. Sunday evening 6:30 p. m. for ladies only, 8 p. m. men only. Monday 2:15 and 7 p. m. ladies only 8:30 men only. Tuesday 2:15 to 4 p. m. women only. Wednesday matinee ladies only, evening men only.

At the Breed.

The secret gift of a cool million! A girl—any girl—a modern girl!

That, in essence, is the basis of H. L. Gates' newspaper serial, "Joanna," the film version of which heads a fine double feature program at the Breed theatre today and Thursday.

The theme is: If a girl is a good girl she will always remain a girl of virtue regardless of her environment, and if a girl isn't a good girl, her environment matters little—no matter in what age she lives.

Dorothy Mackaill enacts the title role, that of a poor dress model who suddenly finds a million dollars at her disposal, to spend as she pleases. With the luxury that the money buys come all sort of temptations.

Does she overcome them? Those who really know the modern girl will be able to guess.

The fashion parade in "Joanna" is said to eclipse anything in New York, Hollywood and Paris. Thirty gorgeous manikins display the latest and most breath-taking dress creations.

The second feature which the Breed theatre is offering on this bill is "Reckless Romance."

This Al Christie feature is one of the best farces that the screen has ever had. It is adapted from the Broadway laughing hit, "What's Your Wife Doing?" and is teeming with funny situations. Joseph Farnham's titles are positively brilliant and a source of laughs on their own account.

One of the most brilliant casts ever assembled interprets this hilarious tale. It includes T. Roy Barnes, Harry Myers, Wanda Hawley, Sylvia Breamer, Tully Marshall, Jack Duffy, Lincoln Plumer, Morgan Wallace and George French.

Scott Sidney directed, and did a splendid job.

Charlie Murray heads the cast, with George Sidney and Vera Gordon also featured. Others in the cast are Nat Carr, the brother of Alexander Carr, Kate Price, Jason Robards, Olive Hasbrouck, Bobby Gordon and Mickey Bennett.

DODGE BROTHERS AGAIN BREAK ALL RECORDS

Retail deliveries of 18,516 passenger and commercial vehicles by Dodge Brothers dealers in the United States during the month of February, according to official figures released by the factory at Detroit, establish a new record for delivery during winter months. Compared with 14,485 during February, 1925, the gain is 28%.

Compared with the excellent record of 14,943 deliveries during the period from Jan. 2 to Jan. 30 this year, the gain is 24%.

Week after week this year, as a result of public recognition of the exceptional value now offered in Dodge Brothers products, with their recent improvements and their greatly reduced prices, records for previous weeks and for corresponding weeks of all preceding years have been broken.

Deliveries between Jan. 2 and the end of February this year, amounting to 33,459 vehicles, compared with 23,410 for the coresponding period last year, show a gain of 43%.

Signed, unfilled orders for future delivery of new cars taken by dealers during the week ending Saturday, Feb. 27, amounted to 6,805, a gain of 145% over the week ending Jan. 2.

In their efforts to keep pace with the rapidly accelerating demand and at the same time build up reasonable stocks in the hands of dealers in anticipation of the heavy selling period always experienced during the early spring, Dodge Brothers, Inc., have been breaking all previous production records.

During February this year factory shipments from their plants in United States and Canada established a new high record of 29,335 Dodge Brothers motor cars and Graham Brothers trucks, a gain of 84% over January this year and of 46% over February last year.

Factory shipments during February have surpassed those for any previous month in Dodge Brothers history in spite of the fact that February has fewer days than any other month. Production which is now greater than 1,500 per day is soon to be increased.

POETRY

The Beeches

My heart walked far on the hills today,
Where they beckoned with maple-fire,
And the sumac leaped through the hill-mists gray like the flames of a lost desire.
The birches columns were hung with gold that gleamed through the autumn haze,
But the beechlands raised me an altar old to the shrine of forgotten days.

I warmed my heart at the sumac flame, for weary it was and cold,
And its tattered cloak as I onward came I wrapped with the birches' gold.
But ever it wept and would not still, and wandered and could not cease,
Till it passed the slope of the hemlock hill, and entered the beechland peace.

The sunset lighted the tapers tall, then silently crept away;
The night stole sweet as a weary's call through portals of silver-gray.
And when the ash of her feet had passed, that lingered, yet left no trace,
My heart stood smiling and glad at last with dawn on its lifted face.

—Martha Haskell Clark.

The Heroic Age

He speaks not well who doth his time deplore,
Naming it new and little and obscure,
Ignoble and unfit for lofty deeds,
All times are modern in the time of them,
And this no more than others. Do thy part
Here in the living day, as did the great
Who made old days immortal! So shall men
Gazing long back to this far-looming hour,
Say: "Then the time when men were truly men:
Though wars grew less, their spirits met the test
Of new conditions; conquering civic wrong;
Saving the state anew by virtuous lives:
Guarding the country's honor as their own,
And their own as their country's and their sons';
Defying easy fraud with single truth;
Not fearing loss, and daring to be pure.
When error through the land raged like a pest,
They calmed the madness caught from mind to mind
By wisdom drawn from old, and counsel sure.
And as the martyrs of the ancient world
Gave Death for man, so nobly gave they Life;
Those the great days, and that the heroic age."

—Richard Watson Gilder.

STOCK MARKET STRONGER

NEW YORK, March 9.—(AP)—Stock prices displayed a distinctly stronger undertone in today's market with buying influenced by lower money rates and a series of favorable dividend announcements. Trading was in more moderate volume, the day's sales aggregating 1,675,300 shares as against 1,671,400 yesterday.

The splendid resistance shown to selling pressure yesterday encouraged a resumption of pool operations in a few issues in which special developments are believed to be pending but the buying was of a cautious character. The rapidity with which several stocks snapped back also tended to keep short selling in check. Trading was largely of a professional character.

United Drug was bid up over 5 points to 150 1-2 on the announcement that the annual dividend rate had been increased from $7 to $8 a share but eased to 149 3-4 on profit taking. Chrysler was depressed to 40 1-4 on the circulation of reports that the directors would take no dividend action today, but it rallied to 42 7-8 after the stock had been placed on a $3 annual basis and then yielded to 42 1-4 on the circulation of reports that the directors would take no dividend action today, but it rallied to 42 7-8 after the stock had been placed on a $3 annual basis and then yielded to 42 1-4 off 3-8 on the day. In some quarters a quarterly dividend of $1 or a quarterly of 75 cents and an extra of $1 had been expected.

Equipments attracted fresh buying power on official confirmation of reports that negotiations were in progress for a merger of the American Locomotive company and the Railway Steel Spring company, stock of the former closing 3 1-2 points higher at 108 1-2 and the later advancing over 3 points to a new high record for the year at 67 1-2, but easing to 67 3-4 at the close on profit taking. American Car and Foundry General American Tank and General Railway Signal also showed net advances of 2 points or more.

Some selling came into the oil shares early in the session in further reflection of the Pennsylvania Crude Oil price cut and the announcement of an increase in gasoline stocks during January, but this was checked by the publication of a private report showing a decrease in crude oil production last week and by the inauguration of bullish demonstrations in a few special stocks. General Petroleum was bid up over four points to its 1-4 closing just below the top, and Mariand Pan-American B, Phillips, General Asphalt and Houston sold a point or so higher.

Hudson was bid up two points to 113 1-2 despite the reduction in prices of some of its models. Black Trucks advanced 1 3-4 to 122 3-4 and Pierce Arrow common and preferred 1 3-8 and two points respectively.

Heavy accumulation took place in a number of specialties, particularly Allied Chemical, Freeport Texas and Loft, Inc., which closed 1 to 3 1-4 points higher. Other strong spots were American Can, Air Reduction, Sears Roebuck, Fisher Body, International Match preferred, McCrory Stores B., R. S., Schulte Stores and Stewart-Warner, up 3 to nearly 6 points, and Commercial Solvents A., up 13 1-2.

Railroad stocks also presented several points of strength. Delaware and Hudson soared nearly ten points to 65, closing within a point of the top of a revival of rumors that an early segregation of coal properties was contemplated. Good buying also developed in a number of the so-called "Merger Rails", Texas and Pacific and Atlantic Coast Line each climbing about four points, and Lackawanna, Pere Marquette and several others a point or more.

Commodity markets were mixed. Wheat futures held firm, pending publication of the government statistics on farm reserves. Cotton advanced 3 to 15 points net with considerable switching from old to new crop positions in evidence. Raw sugar dropped 1-32 of a cent a point to 4.02 cents, a new low price for the season. Coffee fell 14 to 30 points in sympathy with easier spot prices in Brazil.

Call money renewed at 4 1-4 per cent., and then dropped to four, with a plentiful supply of funds available. Time money and commercial paper rates were unchanged.

Foreign exchanges displayed market improvement. French francs rallied over six points to 3.66 1-2 cents on the announcement that Briand had again consented to form a new cabinet. Demand sterling ruled about 5-16 of one cent higher around $4.85 3-4. Norwegian krone rallied 23 points to 21.52 cents and moderate advances took place in most of the other European currencies.

For Head Colds

THERE are many ways to treat a cold in the head, but only one DIRECT way, and that is with vapors that can be inhaled.

The easiest and most satisfying way to get these vapors is to snuff a little Vicks VapoRub well up the nose, or melt a little in a spoon or tin cup and inhale.

The medicated vapors reach immediately into every corner of the air passages, soothing and healing with every breath.

For other forms of cold troubles just rub Vicks over the throat and chest at bedtime. It is then the body heat which releases these vapors.

BLAZING DUSTER IN CUPBOARD SETS FIRE TO YANTIC RESIDENCE

Quick work by Mrs. John Lamphere and Mrs. Charlotte MacGongeal with wet cloths and water probably saved the residence of John Lamphere of Fitchville road, Yantic from destruction Tuesday morning at 10 o'clock. Mrs. Lamphere had been engaged in wiping the surface of the stove in her home with a duster and after the work had been completed she placed the duster in a cupboard behind the stove, not knowing that it had caught fire.

Shortly afterwards smoke was noticed issuing from the cupboard and when opened a lively blaze was in action, quickly filling the house with smoke. Mrs. Lamphere with the assistance of Mrs. MacGongeal a boarder, secured some wet cloths and water, which were used to extinguish the flames, which by that time had gained great proportions. The only damage was to the paint, plaster and shelves.

The Norwich meeting will be held Friday evening of this week at the state armory and the Norwalk meeting will occur Saturday evening.

There are to be two divisions known as the eastern and the western divisions. The eastern division will include Headquarters Battery, Service Battery, 1st Bn. Hq. BOY SCOUT CAMPAIGN FOR FUNDS MEETS SUCCESS

The annual call for funds for the Norwich Boy Scouts is meeting with a ready response. The funds are being raised to take care of the 1926 scout budget for local activities. Recently the finance committee, headed by Secretary John J. Cullourne of the Norwich Chamber of Commerce, sent out to contributors a letter briefly outlining the aims of the Norwich council and asking for a continuance of financial assistance. The replies began coming in immediately. In the meantime the Rotary and the Lions clubs have gotten solidly behind the Scouts and within the next few days will communicate with all those who have to date not responded to the letter. In this manner much time will be saved and the expense of carrying on a campaign minimized. Vice President Harris, under whose direction the finance committee functions, is very much pleased to learn that several organizations have voluntarily increased their contributions for 1926.

SUIT BY CONTRACTOR'S SECRETARY IS WITHDRAWN

Withdrawal without costs from the superior court docket was filed Tuesday with Clerk George E. Parsons in the $17,000 damage suit brought in June, 1927, by Alice L. Hewitt of Waterford, against Charles A. Gallup, administrator of the estate of George W. Hewitt, late of Waterford.

According to the complaint, on March 15, 1915, George Hewitt was for many years a contractor and builder, and hired the plaintiff as his clerk and secretary and also entered into a oral agreement that she would continue as such and nurse and attend him in all illness. Hewitt, it is allered, agreed to secure and provide at his death, $10,000 as compensation for her services.

On May 25, 1924, it is further alleged, a new agreement was formed whereby $7,000 was agreed upon to be paid by Hewitt instead of and all other compensation.

INSPECTION FOR NORWICH FIELD ARTILLERY UNITS

Battery B and the 192nd field artillery will be given its federal and state inspection next Monday evening at the Norwich armories. The inspecting officer will be Capt. Yarrow B. Vesely, field artillery, (D. O. L.), regular army instructor with the New Hampshire National Guard. Captain Vesely was the inspecting officer last year and this year will notice a great improvement in the state of training and general efficiency of the local batteries. Other batteries of the 192nd field artillery, located in other cities in this state will also be inspected by Captain Vesely during his stay in Connecticut.

Next Tuesday night he will inspect the combat train.

KNIGHTS OF PYTHIAS CONFER TWO DEGREES

Wauregan lodge, No. 6, Knights of Pythias, held its regular convention Monday evening in steiner hall. The meeting was well attended, and the first and second rank was conferred on brother Casper Graff's son, Milton, and the degrees work as usual was enjoyed by all. A committee was also appointed to make preparations for the annual banquet and ball to be given next month. An appeal was made by the Norwich United Jewish Relief for a contribution for the suffering on the other side, which was met with a generous donation of $25 by the lodge.

SCHOOL BOARD VOTES TO RE-ENGAGE TEACHERS

The regular monthly business meeting of the town school board was held Tuesday evening in the office of the school superintendent in the court house. The usual bills were received and approved. The board voted to re-engage all the teachers on the present list. They will be notified to this effect and will in turn notify the school board of their acceptance.

PLANNING FOR RIFLE MATCH FOR 192nd ARTILLERY

Plans are being made for a rifle match to be held by the various units of the 192nd Field Artillery. Captain William R. Denslon of Battery B., this city, has been appointed assistant range officer. All units of the 192nd will participate.

Horses' Carcasses Recovered

The carcasses of a pair of horses, owned by Scott Brothers of Niantic and drowned on Monday last, at Flanders, were recovered from Reservoir pond Saturday. The heavy wagon also was recovered and proved a much harder proposition to salvage, as the tongue was deeply imbedded in the mud of the pond.

The cottony scale of the peach, said to be new and to have caused considerable injury in peach plantings generally, is disturbing orchard owners across the New York state line.

PROPOSE STORAGE CHARGES FOR HELD EXPRESS PACKAGES

Agent F. G. Ross of the American Railway Express company, announced that the express companies plan to establish a system of charges for the storing of express shipments refused when tendered for delivery or uncalled for.

A docket outlining the proposal has been issued for the information of the public, and, in due course it will be filed with the interstate commerce commission as an addition to the express classification to become effective on or about May 1.

The rules and charges will apply to business of this character which the local office has to store owing to the refusal of the consignee to accept it when a tender of delivery is made or which for any other reason not the fault of the express company cannot be delivered. Three days "free time" will be allowed after which the storage charge will be 10 cents the first day, five cents for each of the next eight days with a maximum of 50 cents a month for each shipment weighing 100 pounds or less. There will be a regular monthly charge thereafter of 50 cents per month or fraction thereof.

On shipments weighing more than 100 pounds this storage charge will be assessed proportionally, any fraction part of 100 pounds to be computed as 100 pounds, i. e., on shipments weighing more than 100 pounds and not more than 200 pounds the storage charge will be twice that on a 100 pound shipment. The carrier is required to give proper arrival notice to the consignee, such notice to bear the same address as appears on the shipment and to retain in its files a duplicate copy of such notice.

In the course of business, many controversies arise during which a consignee may prefer to refuse shipments sent to him. The carrier has no alternative but to store the goods and cannot relieve itself of the shipment or of all responsibility for it until the parties involved adjust their differences. This may take several months in which the carrier is an innocent bystander having been in no-wise responsible for the non-delivery.

The express companies have not heretofore made it a practice to assess storage charges on unclaimed shipments, although it has long been a practice with freight and baggage They contend that the expense and extra labor involved should be borne, not by express patrons generally, but by the owner of the goods so stored.

MABREY'S HOTEL IS SOLD BY FRANK L. ARNOLD, EXEC.

Frank L. Arnold, of Cliff street, Norwich, executor of the estate of Louis Mabrey, formerly of Norwich, has sold Mabrey's hotel at Ocean Beach to Joseph Sigal. Mr. Sigal owns the large apartment house at the beach, also is owner of other valuable property there. His summer home is 52 Boardwalk, at the beach.

The house was erected by Mr. Mabrey and his first wife, the late Elizabeth Dill Mabrey, of Norwich, and in its present condition has rooms for about 80 guests. It is the intention of the new owner to add to and greatly enlarge the house, which will be completely renovated. There is a garage of three spaces, also there are five bathhouses at the rear of the hotel. Important changes will be made in all the buildings on the property.

Mr. Arnold has managed the estate in a way very satisfactory to the heirs —who are Mr. Mabrey's second wife, Mrs. Jessie Mabrey, now of Wisconsin, his three children, Fred D. Mabrey, of Englewood, N. J., Mrs. Ernest G. Champlin, of Renton, State of Washington, and Nelson Lee Mabrey, of Milton, Penn. Last season Mr. Arnold leased the hotel to Mrs. Chas. E. Foley of New London. Whether or not Mrs. Foley is to manage the place for the new owner the coming season is not given out yet.

CAMP DEVENS IN FINE CONDITION FOR SUMMER

Brigadier General Malvern-Hill Barnum, in temporary command of the first corps area in a recent inspection at Camp Devens, found the camp in excellent condition. General Barnum will command the citizens' military training camp which will be held at Devens during the month of August. General Barnum expects to have 1,600 C. M. T. C. students in this camp, while at the same time there will be over 600 at Fort McKinley, Portland, Maine, over 200 at Fort Ethan Allen, Vermont, and 500 each at Fort Terry, near New London, Conn., and Fort Adams at Newport, Rhode Island. General Barnum has had a wide experience in handling young men, having been in command of three previous citizens' military training camps in this corps area. He stated that already 1,000 young men had been accepted for the camps. It is hoped within the next few months that the total 3,500, which is the number allotted to New England, will be enrolled.

Inquiry as to C. M. T. C. camps may be made of Lt. Colonel Ode C. Nichols, U. S. Army, at the army recruiting office at Room 306, Post Office building, New Haven, or of any army recruiting sergeant in Connecticut.

PROHIBITION IS BECOMING A LIVE TOPIC IN CONGRESS

Was Discussed For Hours in Senate and House—A Resolution Was Introduced in the House Calling For a Referendum on Modification of the Volstead Act—In the Senate the Debate Led to Personalities Between Senators Bruce and Glass—In Both Branches Bitterness Was at Times Softened by Mirth.

WASHINGTON, March 10—(AP)—The prohibition question agitated congress again today, with discussions in both the senate and house punctuated by bitterness and laughter.

Centering on the value of a newspaper poll in congress on the question of modification, the day brought forth introduction of a resolution calling for a nation-wide referendum on modification, scriptural quotations, references to George Washington's beer recipe, a recipe for a Manhattan cocktail, a lengthy poem entitled "Ode to a Cherry", criticisms of the activities of enforcement agents, personal exchange between Senator Bruce, democrat, Maryland and Senator Glass, democrat, Virginia, another difference over senate rules between Vice President Dawes and Senator Reed, democrat, Missouri, and mention of the cost of the congressional record.

The house expended approximately three and one half hours on prohibition discussion with most of those present participating at various stages in the attack on and defense of the eighteenth amendment and the Volstead act.

It was during this discussion that Representative Somers, democrat, of New York, introduced the resolution calling for a referendum on modification of the Volstead act, which would be effected through a poll of registered voters in each congressional district by its representative in the house Ballots and franked envelopes for the purpose would be furnished each house member.

Fire works in the senate started when Senator Bruce offered for the record, for the second successive day, a clipping giving the latest results in the newspaper poll on prohibition. A wave of laughter swept floor and gallery.

Senator Willis, republican, Ohio, dry leader, thereupon fulfilled a threat made yesterday and countered with a request to insert in the record exhibits intended to show that prohibition was successful, including an editorial headed, "Lincoln, the Prohibitionist."

This brought objection from Senator Reed, who asked the nature of the article, explaining he did "not want history falsified."

After an argument Senator Willis shouted, "All right, hand the editorial back here and I'll read it myself."

Senator Reed objected to that procedure and an argument started. Vice President Dawes cut it short with announcement that the rule called for a vote on the Willis request without debate, and, over the protest of the Missouri senator, he invoked this rule. The senate decided that the Ohio senator should read the editorial.

Senator Smoot, republican, Utah, pointed out that every page of the Congressional Record costs about $48, and Senator Bruce retorted that "correct information on this subject" would save the government $25,000,000 a year which "is being expended in its vain and futile effort to enforce prohibition."

Senator Glass challenged the correctness of Senator Bruce's information, and the latter remarked that the Virginia member's opinion "does not give absolute finality to an opinion on any subject."

"If the senator charges me with foisting incorrect information on the Congressional Record, he is out of order," Senator Bruce added.

Senator Glass asked whether Senator Bruce knew "anything more about the correctness of the figures than I know?"

"I should be sorry to have the extent of my information on any subject measured by the extent of that of the senator from Virginia," replied Bruce.

In the house, Rep. Blanton, democrat, Texas, insisted that newspaper polls were "misleading" and declared that "members who continue to drink in violation of the laws should be banished from congress and from the country."

"Then we wouldn't even have a quorum here," retorted Rep. La Guardia, progressive-socialist, New York.

HOLD-UP IN JEWELRY STORE IN HARTFORD

HARTFORD, March 10—(AP)—Saro Jure Mellamed, jeweler, was held up in his store at 359 Front street as he was closing shop at 9:20 o'clock tonight and robbed of 20 gold watches valued in excess of $300. The robber, a man about 23 years old, walked into the store a few minutes after Mellamed had locked his stock in the safe. He persuaded Mellamed to open the safe after which he thrust na automatic pistol in his face and pocke[ted] the contents of a tray taken out by Mellamed. The man disappeared in the direction of State street.

Mellamed told the police that the robber asked him to sell a watch which he wanted for his brother whose birthday was tomorrow." Mellamed refused at first but the man pleaded with him. Mellamed finally opened his safe and took out a tray of watches, slamming the safe door behind him.

Mellamed said that his suspicions were aroused by the frequent glances which the man threw towards the outer door as he fingered the stock. Suddenly the robber produced the pistol, Mellamed said, and ordered him to put up his hands. Mellamed complied and watched the contents of the tray of watches disappear into the man's pockets. The robber in his haste, dropped one of the watches.

The robbery took place while a butcher store next door was open and doing business. There were few people on the street, Mellamed said.

$7,500 BOND FORFEITED BY A BANK ROBBER

NEW HAVEN, March 10—(AP)—A draft calling for $7,500, the forfeited bond of Charles Staunton, implicated in the daylight robbery of $1,800 from the First National bank here, early last December, was received by City Attorney Charles M. Robinson today. The bond was furnished by the Commercial Casualty Insurance company, of Newark, N. J., after suit for its recovery had been instituted by Mr. Robinson.

Staunton, together with another, is alleged to have stolen $1,800 in bills in the absence of the bank clerk during the noon hour by first opening the cage and then drawing the money out by means of a stick. Staunton was arrested outside the bank, but the other man made his escape.

Staunton's case was continued under $7,500 bond. The bond was furnished through a New York agent of the insurance company, it was stated, who accepted a plot of real estate as security. The agent, it was claimed, later discovered that Staunton had only $5,000 in the property.

STEAMSHIP AMERICA BADLY DAMAGED BY FIRE

NEWPORT NEWS, Va., March 10—(AP)—Fire on the United States Line's steamship America at the Newport News Shipbuilding and Drydock company here, was gotten under control at 3 o'clock this afternoon after it had swept the vessel from stem to stern for more than seven hour. The loss probably will reach the two million dollar mark.

NEW YORK, March 10.—(AP)—The steamship Republic will sail on March 24 for Europe in place of the steamship America, which was swept by fire at Newport News today. Upon learning of the fire on the America, the officials of the United States Lines, which owns both vessels, prepared to have the Republic, due here Friday after a 50 days cruise through the Mediterranean, take over the America's sailing list.

The America, being voorhauled at Newport News, was expected to reach her Hoboken pier in four or five days to begin the season. Passage on it for March had been practically sold out officials said.

CONNECTICUT MAN FOUND WANDERING IN HARLEM

NEW YORK, March 10—(AP)—An aged man believed to be John S. Seymour, former state senator of Connecticut, was found wandering in Harlem tonight, unable to speak coherently, and was taken to the psychopathic ward of Bellevue hospital.

Mr. Seymour is a noted patent attorney and former United States commissioner of patents.

Detectives found in his pockets letters addressed to Mr. Seymour from United States Senator Wadsworth and Governor Pinchot of Pennsylvania, declining invitations to an affair in which Mr. Seymour was interested. They also found other papers indicating that the man was Mr. Seymour.

Police got in touch with Thomas Hyland, who shares offices with Mr. Seymour. He will attempt to identify the man tomorrow.

Mr. Seymour, who is 77 years old, was graduated from Yale and was insurance commissioner of Connecticut.

WAS STATE INSURANCE COMMISSIONER ONE MONTH

HARTFORD, March 10.—(AP)—John Sammis Seymour, was state insurance commissioner for one month in 1893, his appointment by Governor Luzon Morris being confirmed by the senate on March 4 of that year and he resigned on April 5, when Burton K. Mansfield was appointed to the position.

Mr. Seymour represented the then thirteenth district in the senate in 1891. At that time he lived in Norwalk, where he carried on a law practice, in addition to his law business in New York city where he was in partnership with his brother, Frederick Seymour.

Mr. Seymour was born at Whitney's Point, N. Y., September 28, 1848. He was graduated from Yale in 1875 and received L. L. B degree in 1878. He married Clara E. Olmstead, daughter of General Charles Olmstead of Norwalk in 1879.

RUSSIAN CHILDREN ARE EDUCATED BY DRAMATICS

WELLESLEY, Mass., March 10—(AP)—Russian children, unable to read or write, have resorted to dramatics for this education in current events, Dr. Anna Louise Strong newspaper correspondent and Russian relief worker, told Wellesley college students in a lecture on Education in Russia here today.

"They act out everything in the newspapers from communist editorials to Mussolini's foreign policy," she said. After the topic for discussion has been chosen and explained the children choose their parts and act out their knowledge of the subject in their own manner, making up their 'lines' as they go along."

Dr. Strong declared that Russian children are "organized" almost from infancy. She pointed out that "many a communist school has several children on the board of trustees."

INVENTOR MARCONI HAS UNDERGONE OPERATION

LONDON, March 10.—(AP)—William Marconi, having entered a London hospital last week end suffering from overwork and nervousness, underwent a minor operation today for an internal disorder. At first it was feared that the inventor of wireless telegraphy was suffering from appendicitis, but this was found not to be the case.

A bulletin this evening stated that he was making satisfactory progress, and early recovery is expected if no complications develop. As soon as he is able to travel Signor Marconi expects to board his yacht at Naples for a cruise.

Hard Task Ahead For Premier Briand

Strong Opposition is Developing to M. Malvy as Minister of the Interior.

PARIS, March 10—(AP)—Aristide Briand's ninth cabinet has only been formed for a few hours and the formal ministerial declaration is still a week away, yet manoeuvres have already started to make its life short, one with the attack centering on Louis Malvy, who holds the portfolio of minister of the interior.

Deputy Barnegaray served notice on M. Briand that he would interpellate the premier "upon the presence of M. Malvy in the cabinet."

It will likely be a hard task for the premier to attain a stable working majority, since the nucleus of the left center deputies forming the backbone of his supporters is insufficient and must be reinforced either from the right or the left.

M. Malvy had been minister of the interior under three different cabinets during the war, and was called "the irremovable minister of the interior." His name is coupled in the mind of the people with M. Caillaux, as the two statesmen were convicted of defeatism in wartime and banished. He was reinstated by M. Herriot in 1924 and has once more become one of the ruling powers in French politics.

Having completed for the time being his cabinet work, Mr. Briand left for Geneva tonight.

The "Geneva ministry" is the manner in which M. Briand's cabinet is described by the right and center groups, which prophesy a short term of life for the ministry, hinting that it may fall immediately after M. Briand's return to Paris.

"The cabinet's pr'e object is to go to Geneva with full authority," says the Figaro, "another probably will be formed shortly to deal with the financial problem."

The Temps and Journal Des Debats bitterly attack M. Malvy, declaring that he will be the cause of Briand's early downfall.

DIRIGIBLE TA-5 DROPPED INTO HAMPTON ROADS

NORFOLK, Va., March 10.—(AP)—Escaping gas and failure of her motors caused the army dirigible TA-5 to drop nose first late today into Lower Hampton Roads, near Thimble shoal light.

The three men aboard had narrow escapes but were rescued without serious injury by the coast guard patrol boat 2314.

The crew was composed of Lieutenant Roland Kietburtz, pilot; Technical Sergeant B. J. Johnson and Mechanic Joseph Winter. Lieut. Kietburtz was first reported badly injured but was found to have been only slightly hurt, after the TA-5 had been towed to Langley Field where the craft is stationed by army tug Reno from Old Point.

The TA-5 was observed to be in trouble 20 minutes before she fell, and four planes from the naval base here went up to offer assistance but could do nothing. When the ship struck the water, her stern was left high in the air and the gas bag was damaged to some extent.

The ship was 1,200 feet in the air when trouble developed but Lieut. Kietburtz maneuvered her to within 500 feet of the surface before she went down out of control. She was towed to Langley Field, where she has been used for training purposes, by an army tug after the accident.

OBITUARY

Congressman Harry I. Thayer

WAKEFIELD, Mass., March 10—(AP)—Congressman Harry I. Thayer, of the eighth district, for many years a prominent figure in the shoe and leather industry of New England, died at his home here tonight. He was 56 years old.

Congressman Thayer was elected a year ago last fall after a spirited five cornered fight for the seat of Frederick W. Ballinger of Cambridge, who retired to run for the senate. He suffered a mild shock last spring while in Washington and was forced to go south to recuperate. Apparently fully recovered, he returned to Washington this fall, but a threatened nervous breakdown brought him back from the capital three weeks ago. He had been confined to his home since.

Born in Pembroke, Congressman Thayer entered the leather industry as a commission salesman after graduating from high school. After several years in Haverhill he established a small tanning company in North Leominster and followed it with the Thayer-Foss Leather company of Boston, Woburn and Peabody, of which he was president at his death.

Arthur C. Rich, Son of a Wealthy Manufacturer, Convicted at Mason, Mich.

MASON, Mich., March 10.—(AP)—Arthur C. Rich, son of wealthy Battle Creek manufacturer, was found guilty by a jury in circuit court today of criminally assaulting Louise King, student nurse, on May 25, last. Judge Charles Collingwood immediately sentenced Rich to life imprisonment at Jackson state prison. The jury deliberated 28 minutes.

Defense counsel requested stay of sentence pending appeal to the state supreme court, but the motion was denied.

Young Rich, with his parents, waited in the court room while the jury was out. He reeled when the verdict was read.

Together with Miss King and another couple, Rich went in an automobile to the Battle Creek Country club, where, the state charged, he attacked her. Several bruises about the face and a broken jaw which Miss King suffered were declared by the prosecution to have been inflicted by Rich. Testimony during the trial revealed that party had been drinking, and Rich testified he was too drunk to remember if he had struck Miss King.

A crowded court room today bore out the general interest which the case has drawn in Michigan. At a previous trial in Calhoun county, Battle Creek, last fall, disagreement of the jury resulted in declaration of mistrial. When the case came up again for trial, a change of venue to Ingham county was secured. Drawing of a jury for the trial here was begun February 16, and taking of testimony followed shortly.

FAVORS REFERENDUM ON PROHIBITION IN N. Y. STATE

WASHINGTON, March 10—(AP)—The plan of District Attorney Buckner of New York city for a referendum vote in New York on prohibition question was endorsed in a telegram to Mr. Buckner today by William H. Stayton, chairman of the association against the prohibition amendment.

"The great majority of the people," Mr. Stayton said in a statement, "have never had an opportunity to express their views on even statewide prohibition at the polls. * * * Therefore we are strongly in favor of giving not only the people of New York, but of all other states the right to express themselves as to whether they favor or oppose prohibition in its present form."

EULOGY DELIVERED BY BISHOP WILLIAM LAWRENCE

NEWTON, Mass., March 10.—(AP)—Bishop William Lawrence of the Episcopal diocese of Massachusetts today departed from a custom of 35 years to deliver a eulogy at funeral services for Rev Richard Tutle Loring, who was rector of St. John's parish, Newtonville, since its formation 127 years ago.

Because the auditorium of the church was too small to accommodate the throng that gathered for the services, the vestrymen called in radio to their assistance. Microphones were installed in the church, a power amplifier was used and by means of reproducing devices hundreds who assembled in the parish house were able to follow the service.

SEES POSSIBILITY OF WAR BETWEEN CHILE AND PERU

LIMA, Peru, March 10.—(AP)—The possibility of another war between Chile and Peru was predicted in the senate today by Laurito Curletti during a speech on the Tacnazzarica Plebeiscite problem.

"Unless complete equality prevails in the coming plebiscite which is to decide definitely the suzerainty of the provinces of Tacna and Arica, now under Chilean rule, it will involve a fight for sovereignty which some day will terminate in war," the senator declared.

After tracing the history of the problem, Senator Curletti said that only by rigid adherence to the award handed down by President Coolidge as arbitrator could a peaceful solution of the problem be arrived at.

SEATTLE HAS ELECTED A WOMAN FOR MAYOR

SEATTLE, March 10.—(AP)—Seattle voters apparently have rejected a proposal to adopt the city manager form of government and have elected a woman for mayor.

This was indicated today when a complete unofficial tabulation of ballots in yesterday's city election was made, and upset earlier calculations that the city manager proposal had carried by a narrow margin. As announced, the vote showed 48,700 for Mrs. Henry Landes, for mayor, as against 42,803 for Dr. Edwin J. Brown, incumbent.

The vote on the city manager plan was 36,606 for and 36,709 against.

HELD IN CONNECTION WITH STABBING WOMEN

BOSTON, March 10.—(AP)—An unidentified man of Somerville, was arrested tonight on suspicion in connection with the stabbing of two women in the Public Garden and attacks upon two others. In his pockets were found an icepick and a small pair of sharp pointed scissors. Victims of the attacks will attempt to identify him tomorrow.

PIANO PLAYER HELPED AVERT PANIC IN THEATRE

BOSTON, March 10—(AP)—A lively march on the piano helped to avert a panic in the Orient Gardens theater in East Boston late tonight when fire from a cigarette butt filled the auditorium with smoke. The flames worked upward through a partition near the main entrance and caused $1,000 damage. Four hundred patrons watching the movies were directed through a rear exit and suffered nothing worse than fright.

Merger of Steamship Lines.

MONTREAL, March 10.—(AP)—The Montreal Gazette today publishes an interview with W. H. Coverdale, president of the Canada Steamship company, in which Mr. Coverdale is quoted as announcing a merger of the Canada Steamship lines with the Great Lakes Navigation company and the George Hall Coal company.

OUTLOOK MORE OPTIMISTIC IN CIRCLES OF THE L. OF N.

Indications Are That Germany Will Be Permitted to Enter the Council Alone—An Agreement is Forecast For Today Upon the Arrival at Genoa of Premier Briand of France—British Dominions Favor Contention of Germany.

GENEVA, March 10—(AP)—"M. Briand will push us over the line to an accord," declared M. Paul Boncour tonight at the end of a tense private session of the league of nations council, which lasted nearly four hours, and which served as a climax to the most hectic of Geneva's thrilling days since the beginning of the present crisis over the reorganization of the council raised by the entry of Germany.

The pinnacle of the crisis was attained today because Chancellor Luther and Dr. Stresemann courageously but none the less decisively informed the allied representatives, who, with the Germans constitute the so-called the Locarnist-Rhine pact group, that their mandate from the government and people of Germany did not permit German acquiescence in the creation of other permanent seats in the council simultaneously with the election of Germany.

With the knowledge of the German statement the entire problem was thrashed out this afternoon at an unofficial session of the members of the council. It is understood that the increasing movement to have Germany enter alone was considerably strengthened today by the attitude of the British dominions, representatives of which conferred again with Lord Cecil. In this connection it is learned that the Irish Free State strongly denounced the existing contentious atmosphere as bad for the welfare and usefulness of the league of nations.

Ireland favored fulfilling the programme for which the assembly had been convoked, namely, the election of Germany, and putting off the question of the reorganization of the council for later study.

As he emerged from the council chamber on the arm of M. Loucheur, Paul Boncour said that it would only be deception to the people of the world to declare that matters had been arranged. "The situation can best be described," he added, "by saying that it is ripening. I expect that M. Briand will return to Geneva tomorrow, and I feel convinced that this will be the intervention which will lead us to an agreement, and thus permit another meeting of the assembly and the election of Germany. The ground has been well prepared for concord."

Afranio Mello Franco made a brilliant argument for the election of Brazil as a permanent member of the council, while Count Quinones de Leon set forth the justice of the Spanish claim.

The indications are that Germany will enter the council unaccompanied, with the probable appointment later of either a sub-committee of the council or a commission of international jurists to study the problem of council reconstruction. Germany has vaguely given it to be understood that she would not be unfavorable to Spain if the council were enlarged.

The promotion of Spain would mean a vacancy in the non-permanent ranks for which Poland would undoubtedly be a strong candidate. A diplomat said tonight:

"It is erroneous to imagine that we are necessarily hostile to the appearance of Poland in the council, but we do not want Poland or any other country thrust on us at this moment."

GEN. BUTLER FILES CHARGES AGAINST A SUBORDINATE

SAN DIEGO, Cal., March 10.—(AP)—Brigadier General Smedley D. Butler, who topped off his war record as a "devil dog" to fight vice and liquor in Philadelphia as head of the police there for two years, continued his crusade against drink here today when he filed charges of drunkenness and conduct unbecoming an officer against Colonel Alexander Williams, of the San Diego marine base.

General Butler's action followed a dinner given Saturday evening to Colonel Williams' home in Coronado in General Butler's honor. Cocktails, it is said, were served at the dinner, which was attended by a number of officers of the marine corps and their wives. It is said that General Butler made some comment regarding the cocktails. The charges against Colonel Williams, however, were based on a party which was held later at a hotel in Carcnado, all of those at the dinner having been invited.

General Butler's charge was sent today to Rear Admiral Ashley D. Robertson, commanding the eleventh naval district here. Admiral Robertson said he would send the charges to Washington for final action by the navy department.

OPPONENTS OF HUNT DEFEATED IN SENATE

WASHINGTON, March 10.—(AP)—Opponents of the confirmation of Charles W. Hunt, of Iowa for another term as a member of the federal trade commission, lost their fight today in the senate, 43 to 20.

Six republican insurgents jointed with 13 democrats and the one farmer-labor in voting against confirmation while 12 democrats added their votes to those of 26 republicans for favorable action.

Senator Brookhart, of Iowa, one of the republican insurgent group, supported Hunt, who is from his home state. Senator Norris, republican, Nebraska, opposed the nomination in the debate that preceded action in executive session. They based their arguments chiefly on the ground that Mr. Hunt was one of the commissioners appointed under the Harding-Coolidge administrations who had undertaken to destroy the usefulness of the commission by adopting practices in conflict with the purposes congress had in mind in creating that body.

IMPROVEMENT IN CONDITION OF COL. JOHN C. COOLIDGE

PLYMOUTH, VT., March 10.—(AP)—Improvement in the condition of Col. John C. Coolidge, father of the president, was reported tonight. Dr. Albert W. Cram, the colonel's physician, said that pain felt in the lower abdomen had subsided, the patient was "very comfortable" and there was no immediate cause for alarm. The doctor did not come to Plymouth today, confining his watch over Col. Coolidge to frequent telephone calls. He will visit him tomorrow morning.

In the last four days, Col. Coolidge, ill for several months and with his legs paralyzed by a heart affection, has had considerably more pain, Dr. Cram reported and his appetite had not been up to the usual standard. But sedatives helped to remove his discomfort, and today the appetite improved. Dr. Cram felt that there was no radical change in his patient's condition, but said he would continue his close observation.

EXCITEMENT IN FINANCIAL CIRCLES IN BELGIUM

BRUSSELS, March 10.—(AP)—Excitement was caused in political and financial circles today by a report that a loan of $100,000,000 to Belgium had been made by American bankers on the essential condition that their agents take over control of the finances of the Belgian Congo.

The incident has necessitated postponement of Finance Minister Janssen's trip to London, England. He will appear before the cabinet tomorrow and explain the status of the loan negotiations as far as they have progressed.

The Belgian parliament recently authorized the government to arrange for a $$150,000,000 loan. This loan was to be divided among New York and several European financial centers.

CLERGY TO INTERVENE IN THE PASSAIC STRIKE

PASSAIC, N. J., March 10.—(AP)—Action by the clergy of the Passaic district in the woolen mill workers' strike was assured tonight after a conference between the Rev. George H. Talbott, president of the Pastors' association of Passaic, and Albert Weisbourd, chairman of the strikers' united front committee.

A conference of all ministers in the district was called for 10:30 o'clock Friday morning, to hear the strikers' side of the wage dispute. The meeting will be held at strike headquarters.

The Rev. Mr. Talbott said he would attempt to follow this meeting by another with employers of the Botany Woolen mills, who would be asked to present their side of the question.

The Rev. Mr. Talbott is pastor of the First Presbyterian church in Passaic, and president of the Pastors' association which includes pastors of the thirty-five Protestant churches in the district.

The meeting Friday morning will not be confined to pastors of Protestant churches, however. All denominations will be invited to participate.

FURORE ABOUT FEDERAL PATRONAGE IN THE SOUTH

WASHINGTON, March 10—(AP)—An attack begun a week ago by Representative Wurzbach, republican, Texas, on the methods of dispensing federal patronage in the south, was widened today to a point where southern democrats in the house flatly charged the barter and sale of offices.

Coincident with the resumption of the agitation in congress, R. B. Creager, republican national committeeman for Texas, called at the white house to advise President Coolidge to take no notice of complaints against distribution of patronage in Texas.

Representative Busby, democrat, Mississippi, who has pending a resolution dealing with the subject, opened the discussion in the house, and he was quickly reinforced by Representatives Wilson, Mississippi, and Stevenson, South Carolina, democrats, who wanted information furnished to the house on a situation described by Mr. Wilson as a "disgrace to decent government."

WOULD RESTORE CITIZENSHIP RIGHTS TO EUGENE V. DEBS

WASHINGTON, March 10.—(AP)—A movement has been started to have citizenship rights restored to Eugene V. Debs, socialist leader, who served more than two years in the Atlanta penitentiary for opposing American participation in the World war.

Representative Berger, socialist, Wisconsin, after a conference today at the white house, said President Coolidge had shown sympathetic interest in an appeal for Debs. Tomorrow Berger plans to discuss the question of amnesty with department of justice officials.

One of the stumbling blocks to the restoration of citizenship rights is Debs' refusal to make a personal application for a full pardon. He adheres to the belief, expressed during his trial when he refused to employ counsel, that he committed no crime in voicing his opposition to war in his famous Canton, Ohio, speech.

KING BORIS AT DINNER AT AMERICAN LEGATION

He was accompanied by his sister, Princess Eudoxie. The king conversed with the American minister, Charles S. Wilson, in French, while his sister proved herself fluent in English.

The sealing fleet was expected to reach this area tomorrow.

"I will accept your challenge for $10,000," was the reply which Eugene Maynard of Lebanon, wrote in answer to a challenge recently issued by Michael Chalifoux of this city to play against the state champion old time fiddler. There is general disappointment here in Champion Maynard's reply which is considered as a sarcastic refusal to come out and defend his title. Mr. Maynard who was adjudged state champion fiddler at a contest held in Hartford in January has apparantly made up his mind to carry his laurels to his grave. Those who have been influencial in promoting a match hold much respect for Mr. Maynard's ability to play the old tunes but feel that Mr. Chalifoux has all the qualifications which entitle him to contest for the championship crown. Unbiased old time musicians coming from towns other than Lebanon or this city were to act as judges.

Rood pleaded guilty and was fined $10 and costs, amounting to $18.50 which he paid. Rood is the driver of a motor bus used to convey children from the outlying sections to the Windham Center grammar school. On Tuesday State Policeman Willis of the Stafford Springs barracks happened to meet the Ford bus operated by Rood and he saw that the registration markers were attached in a faulty manner. His talk with Rood led to the discovery that the man did not have a license. Rood said that he had overlooked the matter until Monday when he had sent for his license. He said he had been doing his work with a horse drawn vehicle for several weeks, driving the auto only during the past week.

At 11:06 o'clock Tuesday night Engine company No. 1 was called to extinguish a grass fire on the American Thread company property in the rear of 100 Windham road. Sparks from a passing locomotive had started the blaze. Three gallons of chemicals were used.

BIDS RECEIVED FOR KILLINGLY HIGH ADDITION

(Special to The Bulletin.)

DANIELSON, March 10—Bids for the construction of the additions to Killingly high school and for the installing of heating, lighting and plumbing were opened this afternoon at the office of Supt. William E. Parker of Killingly's schools at his office in the town hall building. F. E. Bitgood, chairman of the building committee of the town presided.

Some of the bids submitted being for the general building contract only, others for plumbing or lighting or heating, some for all the work, it was quite impossible to determine merely upon the readings which bid or combination of bids will, upon study by the committee, prove most advantageous, from every standpoint, for the town. All of the bids were accompanied by certified checks or by surety bonds.

Immediately after the opening of the bids in the presence of representatives of various competing concerns for the contracts, members of the committee and others, the gathering was dissolved and the committe went into executive session to give consideration in more detail to the proposals at hand.

There was but one local bidder—Damase Boulais, whose bid was $153,-461.85, for the entire contract—building, heating, plumbing, electrical, etc.

A base bid of the A. F. Smiley Construction company of Pawtucket for the building contract only was $105,-195, and was the lowest in that group. The bid of Emil J. Dumont of Webster was $109,405, construction only. The Lawrence and Coe Construction company of Hartford bid $118,800, with further bids for heating, plumbing, etc. The base bid of the Rawley Construction company of Pawtucket was $116,000. I. N. LaLiberte and Sons Southbridge, submitted a bid for construction and certain other contracts for $140,956. The Peck-McWilliams company of Norwich submitted a bid of $139,250. The base bid of Thomas A. Cassidy, Fitchburg, construction, was $128,700. These were the only contractors bidding for the construction work.

Bids for the heating, plumbing and lighting contracts came from the Holyoke Supply company, J. A. Fitzgerald, Norwich, Liddy and Blinn, Hartford, M. J. Daly and Sons, Waterbury, James J. Murphy and Sons, Otto Epstein, Inc., Hartford, O'Neil Electric Co. and Griffin-Seofield Electric Co. As indicating what the plumbing and heating contracts will amount to in considering the entire work to be done, it is of interest to note that J. A. Fitzgerald's bid for this part of the work was $25,600. This will suggest that all base bids will have the serious consideration of the committee, for these bids vary as to what they are intended for, and must be studied in relation to other bids that are on hand. The committee is limited to $150,000 for all the work to be done, as well as providing equipment for the remodeled school out of this sum.

WARDEN ANDERSON TO REFUSE A NOMINATION

(Special to The Bulletin.)

DANIELSON, March 10—Warden Walter Anderson made known today that he will not be a candidate for the nomination to succeed himself when the annual borough caucus is held on March 23. This announcement will come as a surprise to the majority of the residents of the borough, though Warden Anderson has mentioned recently in private conversations that he would not stand for re-election.

Warden Anderson has been in office a little less than a year. Priorly he has served as a member of the court of burgesses. He has been a valuable official, attentive to his duties, efficient, and alert to guard all of the borough's interests and to promote its welfare. He has done well.

Indolent to the talk that is now going on about borough officials and as to selections for the officials for the ensuing year, it was learned Wednesday that Chief John McFarland will be a candidate to succeed himself. He has shown himself an exceptionally able and faithful officer in all his years in the police service, and it will be good news to all of those to appreciate his position near he will again stand for nomination and election.

Little has been heard as yet as to how the members of the board of burgesses feel about serving another term.

In the year now closing Danielson has had an exceptionally good administration. It has been careful, economical and reasonable, three very excellent qualifications, and three very good reasons for continuing all of the personnel that will agree to serve another year.

Suffered with rheumatism for years

GOT RELIEF FROM RHEUMATISM AT LAST

Spent more than $100 for remedies before help was found

How an obstinate case of rheumatism was given relief by a simple home treatment is told by a man in Los Angeles, California, who suffered for years with rheumatic pain in the feet and back.

"I spent more than $100 for liniments and medicines in twenty-four years," he writes. "Then I used Sloan's Liniment and it gave me complete relief."

And it is amazing—the quick, genuine comfort that Sloan's gives to even the most long-standing rheumatic aches. Sloan's doesn't just deaden pain—it helps your body to throw off the cause.

No need to rub even. A little Sloan's patted lightly on—and a healing tide of fresh, germ-destroying blood begins tingling through the aching place. Before you can believe it, the pain, swelling and stiffness are relieved. Try it! All druggists—35 cents.

DANIELSON, March 10—The budget of the town of Killingly as completed and as it will be presented to the adjourned annual town meeting in the town hall on Wednesday evening of next week, March 17, calls for $125,540 to be raised by taxation during the current fiscal year. The budget shows that the net needs of the selectmen to meet the expenses of the departments of the town which they administer is $55,780, and that the net budget of the town school committee (as printed in the town report) is $69,760. The grand total is slightly larger than a year ago, but immaterially so. The net grand list as recently completed is $6,986,978. The selectmen recommend a rate of 18 mills, which will produce $125,765, just over what will be required to meet the expenditures of the town in the twelve months ending on July 31 next. This is the same tax rate as was voted last year.

The carefully prepared budget shows the following important items of expenses: Town farm, $7,500; outside poor, $9,500; state hospitals, $3,700; Mansfield Training school, $400; grading L'Homme street, $1,600; repairing town roads, $14,000; oiling streets and roads, $4,000; bridges, $800; culverts, $800; cutting brush, $1,000; snow removal, $5,500; town clerk and treasurer, $600; selectmen and transportation, $1,700; assessors, $6,000; selectmen's office (clerk, all expenses), $1,000; tax collecting (property) $700; tax collecting (personal) $200; record and office equipment, $300; printing, $700; Danielson public library, $400; Day Kimball hospital, $500; tools, $2,000; health officer and supplies, $650; town hall building and comfort station, $2,500; state tax, 5,123; military tax, $1,038; interest on bonds and current use money, $11,500; payment on bonds, $7,000; town court expense, $1,000, contingent allowance, $500; reserve, $3,000.

The detail of the school committee's budget is set forth in the annual town reports distributed last October.

Something has gone wrong under the paved surface of Main street, just north of the railroad crossing. For the past two or three days water has been bubbling up or flowing through such outlets as have presented themselves and is running off through drains or down along the trolley line leading into Furnace street. Opposite the southerly end of the Winkleman building the pavement is sagging. Water company officials and borough officials have been inspecting the locality with a view to establishing the cause of the overflow, but it is not likely to be revealed until a more complete investigation is made.

There are two outstanding possibilities—that a water main has cracked or that a sewer pipe has been crushed in, possibly by the constant pounding of the heavy traffic that moves over this stretch of street at all times of the year.

Those who recall when the sewers were put in through this section have a vivid memory of the active springs that forced water into the sewer excavations in such quantities that pumps had to be used while the pipe line was being laid. The sewers are far under the surface at this point, something like twenty feet. They may or may not be involved in the present surface flow that is coming from somewhere. There is an equal chance it was held Wednesday, that a water main, on the opposite side of the street, has gone wrong. In any event no such surface flow has occurred there since underground installations were made, so it is assumed that something has gone wrong with someone of the pipe lines.

The street section in question is part of the two trunk line highway systems—the Norwich-Worcester route and the Providence Hartford route. In view of the fact that the pavement is sagging, it is likely the state will have some interest in the matter, as has the borough and the water company.

Grades recently given out at the Massachusetts State Normal school at Salem reveal the fact that Miss Lucile E. Downs, graduate of Killingly high school, 1922, is the high honor pupil of her class up to February 1, of this year, having had the highest average marks of any in the class for the three and one-half years already covered. There appears to be little doubt that she will hold the record for the balance of the year up to graduation.

Miss Downs, daughter of Rev. and Mrs. Charles A. Downs of Goodyear, is at present filling a vacancy teaching in the commercial department of the High school at Dedham, Mass., where she will remain until the first of May, when she returns to Salem

TWO HOMES MADE HAPPY

By Women Who Used Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

"I have taken Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and I think it is the most wonderful medicine I ever tried," is the statement made by Mrs. Goldie Shoup of May View, Illinois. She declares that after taking the Compound she is in better health than before.

Mrs. J. Storms of 29 Lane Street, Paterson, N. J., writes: "I can not speak too highly of your medicine and I recommend it to all my friends."

These statements were taken from two enthusiastic letters which tell of the help that has been received from using the Vegetable Compound. Both Mrs. Shoup and Mrs. Storms were in a run-down condition which caused them much unhappiness. When women are suffering from lack of strength and from weakness, their own life and that of their family is affected. When they feel well and strong and are able to do their housework easily, happy homes are the result.

Are you on the Sunlit Road to Better Health?

PUTNAM

RECEIVER COFFIN CLAIMS EXAMINATION WAS LEGAL

(Special to The Bulletin)

PUTNAM, March 10—In a letter given out for publication today, George M. Coffin, receiver of the First National bank, gives his view of the examination of G. Harold Gilpatric as to some of the tangled up accounts of the bank, says that his testimony was invaluable in straightening them out, that it was entirely legal in every way and that Gilpatric's veracity was verified by the records of the bank, which had, as he describes it, a most excellent system of bookkeeping.

In response to a question of why the bank's system of accounting had been referred to as having been "very loose," he said that that referred to keeping a record of the Liberty loan bonds, which had injected a new problem into bank transactions, and that there were very few banks that had not suffered some loss in the handling of these bonds. His letter is as follows:

To the Press:

Now that Mr. Gilpatric has been taken back to Atlanta I think that the creditors of the First National bank of Putnam are entitled to know how and why he was brought north, and what has been accomplished by his visit here. By agreement between the trustee of his bankrupt estate and the state he was brought north for a double purpose: one to find out from him what disposition had been made by him of bank funds misappropriated, and the other what disposition had been made of Liberty bonds bought for the state but not delivered to it.

At the first meeting of the creditors he was questioned by Mr. Howard, attorney for Trustee Howard. As my trust is a creditor to the amount of $641,000 representing 75 per cent of all claims against his estate I requested Referee Berman to let him come to Putnam where the books and records could be used to refresh his memory. The referee permitted this provided that the newspaper reporters were present at my questioning of Mr. Gilpatric in Putnam. For two days I questioned him before them to bring out the information desired. After that books and records were read to him. On Saturday, February 20th, about 1 o'clock, I left for New York, returning at 12 o'clock, night of February 22nd. Mr. Gilpatric volunteered to work on Saturday and on Washington's birthday, so I arranged to have my chief clerk and bookkeeper, Miss Sharpe, continue the work with him, reporting results to me on my return.

With the approval of the referee I was permitted to continue this work with Mr. Gilpatric until Saturday afternoon, March 6th, with the result that I have been able to discover what disposition was made by him of the entire amount of $353,000 claims admitted and pending against my trust for funds misapplied. The details of this have been furnished to the referee.

While I entertained no expectation of any salvage resulting from the inquiry, as a matter of fact a recovery of some $2,500 seems reasonably certain, and all this has been accomplished at a probable cost to my trust of about $150.

The inquiry also resulted in discovering what disposition was made of some $37,000 of state bonds misapplied.

It is scarcely necessary to add, of course, that Mr. Hughes, Mr. Gilpatric's guard, was constantly present during the examination of Mr. Gilpatric.

There was nothing illegal in my examination of Mr. Gilpatric, which was undertaken with the permission of the referee simply as a fact-finding expedition, and with the willing assistance of Mr. Gilpatric the facts were found.

As to his veracity there can be no question for his statements were verified by vouchers, cancelled checks, deposit tickets, etc., which as part of an excellent system of bookkeeping, are on hand covering a period of over ten years.

SAYS WATER MAY BE HAD AT SMALL COST

(Special to The Bulletin)

PUTNAM, March 10—A special meeting of the city council was held last evening to discuss the report and recommendations of the water commissioners for a storage system and new and larger mains, and to consider a new proposition advanced by City Engineer George W. Perry, which he thinks would provide the necessary service and increased water pressure at a third of the cost of the water board's plan, which calls for the expenditure of $150,000. This is in accordance with the recommendations of Henry A. Symonds of Boston, noted hydraulic engineer.

The new plan would be to lay the mains on School street instead of Main street, the strengthening and enlargement of the standpipe on Oak Hill by a wall of reinforced concrete, and then increasing the height of the standpipe, and if found necessary the building of a second standpipe at the same place. This would give a storage capacity, he asserts, of 400,000 gallons, and would cost about $12,000.

C. D. Sharpe, superintendent of the water works department, said that the carrying capacity of the mains had been reduced by incrustation and sediment. In reply to a question he said that these pipes had never been cleaned, a process, he added, which had proved satisfactory in other places.

A committee was appointed by the mayor consisting of A. Iermon Rogers, Richard, Ames and Dubois, to consider the new project and was authorized to secure the opinion of another hydraulic engineer, and report back to the council at a special meeting to be held March 30th.

It was stated that the members of the council agree with the water commissioners that the service must be improved, that the present action was not to antagonize the plan of the commissioners, but to find out everything possible about the situation and to see if the new proposal is practicable, solely on the grounds of economy. It is understood that a Norwich engineer has been communicated with and he may come here and investigate conditions.

Those present at the meeting were Mayor Chapdelaine, Aldermen Richard, Rogers, Ames, Dennis, Lahey and Dubois, City Engineer George W. Perry, Superintendent of the Water Dept. C. D. Sharpe, and Superintendent of Streets Frank Dumas.

Coventry's grand list for 1926 is now being prepared in abstract form by Louis W. Daniels, town clerk. There are two notable items of record. There are three hundred motor vehicles listed, one for every five residents of Coventry and 32 per cent of the owners of property listed are non-residents. This is mainly due to the large number of summer cottages around the lake. The list shows a gain of about $95,000 over the 1924 list. The gross amount is $1,640,154 and the net $1,615,128. By the tax rate of 20 mills voted at the annual town meeting $32,302 will be raised. There are 683 names on the grand list, 447 residents and 217 non resident.

WATERWAY DEVELOPMENTS

Secretary Hoover's talk concerning the development of waterways that would benefit the states of the middlewest came at a time when the idea of making a ship canal of the Erie barge canal was being advanced. His talk did not involve that project, but his reference to the betterment of waterway transportation for that section of the country was in keeping with sentiment of the administration which had been previously expressed. Likewise his statement makes it evident that no little discussion can be anticipated before a final decision is reached as to what course will be pursued.

In behalf of the Mississippi river development so that barge service could be furnished, the deepening of the river to nine feet over a third of its length would be required. For two thirds of the distance the river is able to take care of all business of that character, but this condition exists over disconnected sections. He sees where it would probably be possible to get a sizable sum for this undertaking and whatever would be done in this direction would likewise be providing an all-American waterway.

His reference to the St. Lawrence project was favorable. He was also confident that amicable arrangements could be made with the Canadians regarding the waters of the Great Lakes. Just what he might have said concerning the alternate proposition of using the Erie canal instead of the St. Lawrence river for giving ocean service to the lake ports is not known.

The apparent desire and intent of the administration is to see that the middle west gets the benefit of added transportation service. There are advantages which lie in the use of the Mississippi and there are others in connection with the St. Lawrence. If the development of the barge canal is feasible from an engineering standpoint there are good reasons why this country should lend its encouragement to it and permit Canada, if it so desires, to develop the St. Lawrence by itself and make its waterway an all-Canadian affair. Canada, however, has indicated far less interest in any such move than this country has.

NEEDED PROTECTION

At the present time New York is having its attention called to the fires in the tenement house district and emphasis is being laid upon the fact that conditions therein are extremely bad. These buildings are fire traps and in the opinion of the chief of the New York fire department there are 30,000 tenement "firetraps" in that city.

The demand is for the surrounding of these buildings with better protection. It isn't expected that they will be torn down and new fireproof structures erected in their place and it isn't demanded that extensive changes be made, but it is pointed out that much needed protection could be provided through the building of fire doors and the fireproofing of stairways, changes which could be made in the various buildings for a reasonable sum that would involve no great increase in the rent but would give important protection to the tenants and to the surrounding property.

Invariably it is the case in tenement house fires that the escape of the residents is cut off because the fire has followed the stairway quickly from cellar to garret, mushrooming through the hallways. Too often it is the case that the fires are actually started under the stairs in the rubbish that is permitted to accumulate there. Through the erection of fireproof stairways and firedoors a serious menace would be eliminated and in addition thereto the adequate equipment of the tenement buildings with fire escapes would be no more than the law ought to require

For the most part the fires which occur in tenement houses are preventable. And yet even though they ought not to occur it is a well known fact that they do. Those who could do the bit that would prevent them are either not interested or not on the job. It is therefore necessary to do the next best thing and anticipate trouble. As a safeguard to life and property the protection called for is by no means unreasonable, especially when New York conditions are considered.

MADE HIS OWN TROUBLE

Roald Amundsen appears to have been hurt by the cancellation of the invitation which had been extended to him to appear before the National Geographic society, but if that was the case he has no one to blame but himself. He knows, of course, where the trouble lies

Amundsen is a well known and daring explorer. His efforts have been highly valuable and will doubtless continue to be regardless of where he centers his attention. He is a friend of Dr. Cook, whose claim to being the discoverer of the north pole was disproved. On his recent lecture tour Captain Amundsen was in the same town in Texas where Cook was serving a prison sentence for fraud. There was nothing unreasonable about the fact that he should call upon the repudiated explorer, but when following a call he permitted an interview in which he declared that Cook's claim to the discovery of the north pole was as plausible as that of Peary he must have known that he was making needless trouble for himself.

It is true that Amundsen has since claimed that he was misquoted, but the explanation which he has made concerning the statement given out after his visit to Dr. Cook has proved entirely unsatisfactory. The National Geographic society has failed to accept it and it was inevitable under the circumstances that it would recall its invitation.

Certain it could not think of entertaining Captain Amundsen following his apparent effort to discredit Admiral Peary, whose claim to the discovery of the pole is thoroughly endorsed by the society.

Amundsen's action is made all the worse from the fact that Dr. Cook is now serving time as a fakir, and that certainly does not add any credit to his story in which he undertook to prove that he had actually discovered the pole. Whatever sympathy Amundsen may have had for Dr. Cook it would have been better for him to have displayed it in some other way He only hurt himself when he sought to exalt Dr. Cook by trying to discredit Peary.

STEADILY PUSHING AHEAD

That we are not standing still in the scientific field is evidenced in many ways. Of particular interest in this direction is the recent communication by means of radiophone from New York to London. This long distance conversation through the air was quite as easy when everything had been made ready for it as was the first talk over the telephone just 50 years ago, but it is well understood that there has been much preparation for both.

It was marvelous a half century ago when it was shown that it was possible to talk over a wire, and even after it was a long time before the telephone came into what might be called general use. It is in the last quarter of a century that it has gone ahead with leaps and bounds until telephone is to be found in most homes and places of business.

Science is constantly moving ahead. The wireless telegraph and the radio have long since been cutting down distance. It is possible to communicate without wires between the points of communication but conversations over long distance have been obliged to submit to such restrictions until the test from one side of the Atlantic to the other. Henceforth we must consider that Europe is in our backyard and we can shout back and forth as occasion demands. Passing the time of day or finding out whether it's raining in London should brook no delay.

As we move ahead in the field of science no one knows what the next step will be but experience makes it certain that it will be a steady march forward. No matter how much progress has been made someone is always devoting their efforts to outdoing it.

BRIAND AGAIN

That Briand should be asked to form a new French cabinet occasions no surprise since it is believed that he is one of France's strongest men today. Without great delay he has obtained a new cabinet but that gives no assurance that its efforts to straighten out the financial problems of France will meet with any greater success than previous ones. A new cabinet doesn't necessarily mean a reform on the part of those deputies who have been standing in the way of needed action.

Whether the new cabinet serves any other purpose than the mere covering of the period while Briand is doing duty at Geneva in connection with the carrying out of the provisions of the Locarno pacts.

There is always the possibility that parliament will have come to a recognition of its responsibilities and realize that it has been preventing a much needed service to France, but there is no assurance that such a situation is at hand. For the time being that country has the benefit of a premier and his cabinet but what really seems to be more important, the abolition of the politics that parliament has been playing and a disposition to knuckle down to a real solution of the country's financial problems, is by no means indicated

Just how many more cabinets must fall before France is relieved of the present farce is problematical. It is deplorable that parliament should be able to continue such a muddled situation which may yet have to be submitted to the people. If that course is adopted, however, there ought to be no question about a quick and emphatic solution.

ALTERED ANGLES

She who had been Miss Pearlie Fatterhall was paying a noontime visit to the office of the stenographer from across the hall, who had not seen her old friend for some time. There was an air of gracious condescension about Mrs. Jim Davis that Miss Fatterhall had never displayed and the girl from across the hall sensed it.

"It isn't your clothes," she said, "but somehow you're different—I guess I'll have my new dance dress made with that sort of circular flounce you have——"

"I can't stay long," Pearlie mentioned dreamily. "You see, I have to get back to the baby—my goodness, didn't you know we had a baby? Four months old now and he raises the greatest fuss if he sees me getting ready to go out and leave him!"

"Well, I never!" gasped the other girl. "I can't imagine it! How—how funny! Who does he look like?"

"Why funny?" tartly queried Pearlie. "It must sort of cramp your style," persisted her amazed friend. "Going out to theatres and dances and restaurants and things! However do you manage? I'm going out tonight with the grandest beau you ever saw and you ought to glimpse my jade-green chiffon dress! Your favorite color!"

"How nice!" Pearlie said absently. "When I left this morning mother held him up to the window and he actually waved his hand himself! Think of it, at only 4 months! He's the sweetest thing! His hair——"

"I'll bet it's cute," said the other girl politely. "Fancy you dressing a baby and putting it to sleep—I never heard of anything so funny! Listen Pearlie—this new man is terribly particular and notices everything and I want you to tell me honestly if you think this rouge I have on is the exact shade—remember how you tried ten different kinds once to get the precise match for your complexion? What have you got on now—or haven't you on any——?"

"Why," said Pearlie a bit blankly "do you know I believe I forgot all about making up this morning! I was so interested in what the baby was doing! Why, I think that rouge is all right for you—I don't think people notice those things as much as you think they do! As for noticing, I tell you there isn't much gets away from little Jim and——"

"I've taken six lessons in dancing the Charleston," her friend interrupted eagerly. "You know it, don't you? It's grand and this Howard Millwell is crazy about the way I do it! Would you go in for one of the straight, varnished bobs if you were I or stick to a wave? Truly, Pearlie, I'm dippy about Howard and——"

"How nice!" Mrs. Davis said with a beautiful smile. "I am sure he must like you, too—say, the only time Jim and I have ever come near quarreling is when we try to decide which of us little Jim likes best! I wouldn't hurt Jim's feeling for the world and I will admit you have to humor a man if you have any sense, but honestly the baby doesn't pay half the attention to Jim that he does to me! He laughs all over if I just so much as look at him."

"The idea!" commented her friend. "I can't get over you and your baby! I'm wild to see it! Say, last week when Howard took me to the theatre on the way home my heart almost stood still for I know he was on the very point of proposing. I was so excited! And then the taxi driver nearly ran us into a street car and knocked everything wild! I could have cried! Do you think a man really cares for you when he sort of stammers and bites a cigarette in two and coughs—nervous-like——?"

"H'm!" inquired Pearlie very sweetly. "I am so glad you are going to the card party tonight with this Mr.—Mr Hardstone did you say? Well, I must be getting back to the baby."

"I'm wild to see her," said the girl from across the hall politely. "What have you named her? I hope I can get away early tonight so's to have a facial before I meet Howard—g-by! Ged, why, she positively acts loony! Called him 'Hardstone' instead of Millwell——"

"Something certainly is wrong with that girl!" Pearlie said to herself as she rang for the elevator. "Not at all like herself! I don't believe she heard half I said. What have I named 'her'—my good gracious, I believe she's losing her mind!"—Chicago News.

From Small Beginnings

William Cobbett, the Farm Boy, the People's Advocate.

About a hundred years ago there was living on Long Island a farmer whose name was William Cobbett. He was then 55 years of age. He went about his farm work with the utmost regularity, and was successful in it. Unlike other farmers, however, his thoughts were not entirely centered around beets and potatoes, fertilizers and cabbages, but he took a deep interest in what was being done in the great world at large. Every day as he worked he was trying to find solutions to the problems of human society, and every evening when he returned to his little house after the labors of the day, he took out his pen and ink and sat down to write articles that he sent to England to a paper that he had established there, "the Weekly Political Register."

William Cobbett was born on an English farm, and had been trained from childhood to the hard work of a farmer. He had run away to London and supported himself by working as an indoor helper, but he had found the restraints of business life even more irksome than the necessities of farm life, so he had enlisted in the British army, and had remained in it until he was 29. In his army life he had used his free hours for reading and thus had accumulated a store of knowledge that gave him an air of wisdom that was most impressive. Perhaps, too, from his army life he had gained a directness and power in writing and speech that made him a most effective controversialist. When he left the army he drifted, after a time, into writing, and became a champion of all that was opposed to the cold conservatism of his time Finally he established the Weekly Political Register, and wrote in it with such utter lack of restraint that he found it best to leave England and to become a Long Island farmer. Nevertheless, he kept up writing for his paper and finally went back to England. His boldness in speaking in behalf of the working people sent him to parliament.

William Cobbett lived until the age of 73, always active and energetic, every now and then taking up some farm work, and always writing and speaking boldly for the poor. He wrote a number of books that show his breadth of interest and his astonishing personal power. Often reviled, and even severely punished for too great boldness in attack, William Cobbett, nevertheless, left a name that is worthy of respect. He was, in effect, a bold, vigorous, blunt farmer, with the courage of a soldier.

IN THE PUBLIC EYE

Sir Henry Lunn, who has established an enormous trust fund the income of which is to be devoted to religious and peace work, is an outstanding example of a successful business man who, while amassing a fortune, has found time to give a large part of his attention and efforts to the promotion of various movements for world peace and the welfare of humanity. After receiving his medical degree at Dublin university some forty years ago he went out to India as a medical missionary, but after a year in the east was obliged to return home on account of his health. Some years later he founded a tourist agency which developed into an organization of world-wide scope and from which he has made a fortune of many millions of dollars. At the same time he carried on religious work as a layman. He also has been an active worker in behalf of the world peace and international friendship.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Mail Service Better.

Mr. Editor: Permit me to correct a mistake in letter attacking Willimantic and Baltic mail service. My carrier informs me there is no mail between Baltic and Willimantic, and Baltic post office gets mail the best way it can. But let me thank you, Lions, Rotarians and chamber of commerce for the good work done to better the mail service for the very day my letter was printed I got a letter from Norwich Town post office dated Feb. 24, 1 p. m., and received in my home Feb. 25, just after the clock struck 12 noon. The postmaster at Baltic was as surprised and pleased to see a change in the mail service for the better and quicker delivery to his office that he wrote me a note, calling my attention to the better mail service from Norwich Town to Baltic with all the deep snow. But as the snow melts away it delays mail again. I beg Willimantic's pardon for calling it slow as long as it has nothing to do with Baltic mail, but this very same delay of three and four and even five days, has happened for the last four years, and in hot weather when trains did take mail to and from Baltic and Hanover post offices. I have tried to locate the delay before. It was alright a few times, then right back bad again. So like, Postum, there must be a reason for no mail can be delivered from the post office or on R. D. routes until it reaches the office, and in Hanover and Baltic it seems as if mill owners and store keepers would get disgusted with such delays in the mail service, and see it was made better some way. If it comes by truck see that they make better time getting it along. But as I do not know where the mail goes from Norwich to get to Baltic I won't blame any one until it is known how mail reaches Baltic for it is a sin to blame an innocent person. Hope there will be no more delayed mail for any one. If there is will call again. Thanks to all who helped to make it better.

Deplorable and Dangerous Boswell Avenue.

Mr. Editor: I was very much interested in an article printed in your worthy paper from the pen of Mr. Golkowske on the condition of Boswell avenue, and, with your indulgence, I wish to say a few words in support of this article.

Anyone traveling over Boswell avenue knows it to be in a deplorable and dangerous condition now, and it is always about the same. The time has come when this street is not to be considered a back road as of years gone by Tax payers and citizens of this street have been ignored long enough and are unanimous in demanding that something be done. If we have any civic pride left, it is time to apply some of it to Boswell avenue.

Our chamber of commerce has stated recently "Boswell avenue is the one and only street available for diverting traffic to the city from North Main street." North Main street has more accidents by automobile than any other one street in our city which could be reduced if Boswell avenue was put in a condition it should be. At present this street is a disgrace to our fair city.

POETRY

O Little Green Things Growing

O little green things growing, how rare rest the eye that's weary
Of the snow that's on the meadow and almost hides the hill,
The wide, wild waste of whiteness seems
O, so cold and dreary,
But here's a bit of summer upon my window sill.

O little green things growing, I hear the first faint stirring
Of roots beneath the dark mold that hides the plants from sight;
They know that spring is coming; they heard the bird-wings whirring,
And every one yearn upward toward the sweet, warm light.

O little green things growing, I fancy that the thrushes
Are singing, low and softly, the roundelay of spring,
And where the swollen river past hill and meadow rushes
The robin and the blue bird are float upon the wing.

O little green things growing, you whisper me of summer,
Of sunshine and warm winds, and song of bird and brook,
And roses in the hedgerows where every happy comer
May find a world of beauty if he will only look.

O little green things growing, I care for you and love you;
Through all the long, cold winter your beauty makes me glad,
And if, in lonesome moments, I come and bend above you,
I quite forget the worries that come to make me sad.

O little green things growing, I bend and whisper to you:
May I in life's gray winter still keep something to grow,
Some hint of sun and summer, like that which trembles through you,
In my heart for cheer and brightness amid the frost and snow.

—E. E. Rexford.

New England's Tree

By the lichened walls of our side hills,
And on our meadows' sloping brims,
There grows a tree with shagged trunk
Supporting gnarled and twisted limbs.

And here before my door it grows,
Where 'gainst spring skies its blooms suggest
The hidden softness of our hearts,
Which for one moment is confessed.

And more—in tawny autumn's day,
Its ruby, racy fruit exhales
Such fragrance as the common life
Still holds in our New England dales.

Oh, well I love the spreading elms
On lawns, the sighing pines by the sea,
But nearer, dearer to my heart
Is this crooked, low-branched apple tree.

—By Mercy Eldredge.

Straw compressed into briquettes under 733 pounds pressure a square inch, in labroatory experiments at the Kansas State Agricultural college, has proved to have about one half the heating value of coal and may partly supplant it as a fuel in middle-western homes, according to W. Professor Sanders has invented a machine, entailing little cost, operated on the same principles of a hay baler, which has proved fairly successful in this undertaking. Professor Sanders says that under tests at the engineering department it was found, 70 per cent of the heat content of the straw was utilized.

ARRESTED FOR TRADING AUTO HE HAD UNDER CONDITIONAL BILL OF SALE

Buying an automobile on the installment plan, making only the initial payment on it but having the use of the car for six months, then traded it for another car for which he agreed to pay more money and finally abandoning both machines were details in a confession by Frank K. Finley, 32, who was brought here Wednesday afternoon after he had been arrested in Putnam by State Policeman S. P. Streaman. Finley, who was boss farmer a year ago at the Backus hospital, will be presented in the city court this (Thursday) morning on the charge of disposing of an automobile held under a conditional bill of sale. In default of bail he was held at police headquarters Wednesday night.

The state police have been on the man's trail for a long time and had reason to think that he would be in Putnam Wednesday. When he arrived Officer Streaman was on the watch and made the arrest. He brought his prisoner to Norwich police headquarters where Finley signed a written confession.

In his confession, Finley stated that about a year ago he contracted with the Norwich Used Car Exchange to buy a Chandler coupe for $435 on which he made an initial payment of $175 and agreed to pay off the balance in monthly installments. The car was delivered to his possession and he took it into Rhode Island, then to Barre, Mass., where he lived for a time and later went to Palermo, Me. In September of last year he came to Worcester with the car and there traded it with a Worcester garage for a Maxwell machine for which he was to give $200 to boot. this to be paid in monthly installments. After using the Maxwell for a short time, he returned it to the Worcester garage and left both cars there. He does not know where either car is now, his confession states. In all this time he did not notify the L. A. W. Acceptance corporation where the car was, nor did he pay any of the installments which were due them for financing the deal with the Norwich Used Car Exchange.

Finley is now living at Cherry Valley, Mass., which is where his wife's people live, according to what he says in his confession.

SETTLEMENT OUT OF COURT IN LYONS $10,000 SUIT

After a morning of conferences between attorneys in the $10,000 damage suit brought by Jeremiah J. Lyons of New London, administrator of the estate of his daughter, Alice, 18, against Mrs. Mary E. Crawford and her son, James, of this city, a settlement of the case was effected shortly before noon Wednesday at New London. Many witnesses were in the court room to testify in the case had it come to trial before Judge Allyn L. Brown and a jury. Attorneys Warren B. Burrows and Russell H. Corcoran, appeared for the plaintiff; Attorneys Arthur M. Brown and C. W. Lyons for the defendants, and Attorney Earle Matthewson for William Riordan of this city.

The suit was the result of fatal injuries to Alice Lyons when she and Laura Battinelli, also of New London, were riding with James Crawford and William Riordan in an automobile owned by Mrs. Crawford. The four young people were returning from a dance in Hartford in the early morning hours of Thanksgiving day, 1924, when the machine struck a rock by the side of the road on the Ten Curves on the Hartford-New London turnpike, splitting the rock and hurling out all the occupants of the car except Miss Lyons who was found crumpled up in the front seat.

Judge Allyn L. Brown, in a decision handed down Tuesday, denied the motion made by William Riordan, party defendant in the suit, that the default be opened. Also the judge had refused Riordan the right to file an answer. Judgment of default had previously been entered against Riordan.

GANG DWOJAKOWSKI LED GIVEN THEIR SENTENCES

Four New Britain boys, who were designated by Assistant State's Attorney R. L. Gideon as members of a gang of automobile thieves, were presented to Judge L. P. Waldo Marvin in the superior criminal court in Hartford Wednesday for sentence for several auto thefts in the neighborhood of Hartford. The boys are Joseph Matulis, Joseph Smiadick, Edward Smelter and Gasimer Smulski and their escapes were narrated to the court by Mr. Gideon. The boys, with their leader, William Dwojakowski, alias Anderson, of Norwich—who is now in New Haven jail for shooting a policeman—have been engaged in hold-ups of store proprietors and thefts of automobiles in Hartford since last December. Smulski, Mr. Gideon said, might be entitled to some consideration as he was merely a passenger on a trip to Florida with Smelter in a stolen car. Pleas for the boys were made by attorneys.

A curious thing about the thefts of cars from Hartford was that they were ultimately abandoned in the vicinity of Hartford and the owners recovered them. Lawyers for the defense and the state's attorney were agreed that the man in New Haven jail—known to the boys as "Wild Bill" Anderson—was the organizer and leader of the gang. Matulis, 17 years old, has been in high school a year and a half. Smelter, 19, Smiadick is 17, and Smulski is 18. They were all committed to the state reformatory by Judge Marvin, who suspended the sentence on Smiadick and Smulski and put them on probation for a year.

ADVOCATES TIME LIMIT FOR WILLIMANTIC TAX COLLECTOR

(Special to The Bulletin)

WILLIMANTIC, March 10—William H. Blodgett, state tax commissioner, delivered an interesting talk on Taxation at the weekly meeting of the Willimantic Exchange club tonight with a supper at 6:30 o'clock. President Egbert A. Case was in charge of the session. Other guests were ex-Mayor Charles A. Gates, Walter R. King of this city, former postmaster and member of the state treasury department, Raymond A. Gates, state commissioner and deputy tax commissioner of Hartford, in a report on the big Exchange Night, which will be held in Hartford, April 20, with the Capitol city club as hosts, it was stated that St. Joseph's Boy Scout band would represent the local club, broadcasting the evening program from Station WTIC. In his talk Commissioner Blodgett stressed the necessity of a careful study of the taxation situation so that the valuations will be proportionate and fair. He strongly favored the one assessor plan of valuation adopted by Bridgeport through the Ripper bill. The practice of giving exemptions to new industries he termed as being very unwise and confusing. Commissioner Blodgett made a constructive criticism of the local charter in that a tax collector continues to hold office until his duty is performed. It so happens at times that as many as four tax collectors are in office simultaneously. He advocated that a tax collector be given a stipulated time limit within which to file a concluding report of his work. He further pointed out that under a new state law which assesses a town for the amount it expends, it costs no more to have a full valuation than a low one. The speaker was given a rising vote of thanks. Adjournment was taken at 8 o'clock.

C., and Harold Florence of the New York Boys' club. On the way to the full distance Rademacher passed 100 yards in 1:08 3-5, beating the listed mark of 1.09 2-5 made by Walter Spence of the Brooklyn Y. M. C. A., but failing to equal the latter's newly claimed record of 1.08 2-5. Then the Teuton won the event in 1.15 4-5, clipping one-tenth of a second from his own international standard of 1.15 9-10.

Experts present were of the opinion that Rademacher's kick did not comply strictly with requirements but the judges passed his stroke.

Laufer scored first in a 150-yard free style race in which he defeated handily Harold Florence in 1.27 3-5. The bracketed world's record for the distance stands to the credit of Johnny Weismuller of the Illinois A. C. at 1.27 4-5 but he recently returned 1.26 3-5, a feat now awaiting official recognition.

Later Laufer defeated Gustav Froelich, German backstroke champion in a 100-yard race in 1.06 3-5 then continued to 150 yards, touching in 1.43 2-5. This time is under the accepted world's record of 1.44 held jointly by Weismuller and Warren Kealoha of Honolulu, but shy of Laufer's own new record of 1.43 2-5 not yet approved by the authorities.

Glancy won by a large margin in a 500-yard free style handicap in which Joseph Farley of the New York A. C. received a 15 second allowance Glancy was timed in 5.56 4-5, which dented the Metropolitan A. A. U. record of 6.12 3-5, held by Herbert Vollmer of the New York A. C.

NO PHENOMS REPORTED AMONG TRAINING CAMP ROOKIES

NEW YORK, March 10.—(AP)—If any newcomers to major league baseball ranks this spring have been showing symptoms of becoming second Cobbs, Speakers, Hornsbys or Johnsons, the reports thus far from correspondents on the southern battlefronts have failed to indicate it.

This is not because of any lack of rookie material, much of it promising. Glowing reports of the work of some of them have drifted northward this week, with the conditioning campaigns in full swing over the area from Catalina Island, Cal., to Tampa, Fla. On the whole, however, the critics with the various clubs have found little to startle them into telegraphing the rhapsodic sort of praise usual to this stage of the baseball season.

Brooklyn, which is doing as much if not more rebuilding than any other major league club, seems to have found a partial solution to its pitching problem in the form displayed by two newcomers. One of them, Douglas McWeeny, from the Pacific Coast League, is not in the rookie class, however. He was up with the White Sox for some time and is apparently ready for a come-back. Ray Moss, right-hander obtained from Memphis by Brooklyn, also is displaying ability.

The White Sox reports indicate, are placing high hopes on Alphonse Thomas, pitcher, who was a big factor in Baltimore's seventh straight pennant victory last season.

Other new faces prominent in the training picture so far include Joe Buskey, shortstop with the Philadelphia Nationals; Al Tyson, outfield product of the Louisville American Association, which is counted upon by the New York Giants to fill the center-field berth; and Clarkson, a Giant pitching prospect from the Virginia league.

HORWEEN APPOINTED HEAD FOOTBALL COACH AT HARVARD

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., March 10—(AP)—The committee on regulation of athletics sports at Harvard tonight announced the appointment of Arnold Horween, '21, as head coach of Harvard football.

Horween played fullback on the Harvard varsity in 1919, and captained the team from that position in 1920. In the Yale game of the latter year, he helped to defeat the Blue 9 to 0, by booting one of the three field goals. His address in the 1923 alumni directory was given as Chicago.

In the game with Oregon in January 1920, won by Harvard 7 to 6, Horween kicked a field goal, and at the end of the game when almost worn out burst through the center of the line for a 25 yard gain.

William J. Bingham, Harvard's newly appointed athletic director said that Horween had accepted the position, for which no contract or term of service had been fixed. Horween is connected with a tanners' business in Chicago Selection of Horween was made at a meeting of the athletic committee today. No salary has been agreed upon.

MISS WILLS WINS EASILY IN HER THREE MATCHES

NICE, France, March 10—(AP)—Helen Wills, America's tennis champion, continues to show that she stands far beyond the class of any player left in the Nice tournament. She won three matches today by one-sided scores, losing only two games out of thirty-eight.

In the singles she disposed of Miss Helen Shirley in two love sets and Miss Sally Maynard at 6-0, 6-1. In the mixed doubles she and her partner, Charles S. Kingsley of England, defeated Mr and Mrs. Deburvn Kops, 6-1, 6-0.

While the best of the French players and other visiting stars have been dropping out of Riviera competition through illness or staleness, the American champion has remained in good form Tomorrow in the singles she meets Miss Joan Ridley, a member of the British team which recently toured South Africa, who is expected to give more competition than she had today. On the Riviera Miss Ridley is considered the most beautiful girl playing tennis in competition.

CLOUD OF MYSTERY STILL SURROUNDS BRIDGEPORT CLUB

BRIDGEPORT, March 10—(AP)—The mist which clouds the situation of the Bridgeport Eastern league baseball club failed to clear up today as the prospective purchaser of the franchise from Timothy J. Sullivan, Jr., of Springfield, Mass., has asked for more time to consider the $10,000 cash proposition asked by the present club owner. The man said to be interested in the purchase of the club is claimed to be a prominent Bridgeport business man, who desires that his name be kept secret, until he either carries through the sale or drops the proposition.

If Sullivan fails to sell the franchise, it is understood that he will operate here himself and select Paddy O'Connor, former Hartford pilot, as manager. The $16,000 cash price sought by Sullivan means the complete transfer of the franchise, two year lease on the ball park here and the contracts of 14 players included on the Bridgeport club reserve list.

KILLINGLY HIGH QUINTET CLOSES SEASON WITH VICTORY OVER PUTNAM

(Special to the Bulletin)

DANIELSON, March 10. — Before one of the largest crowds to witness a basketball game here this season, Killingly high school closed a successful schedule with a 26 to 20 win over their closest rivals, Putnam in a thrilling game here tonight. With both teams out for blood the pace was fast and the game hard fought from the start.

Putnam was first to score with a shot from the foul line but Killingly soon retaliated with a basket and from that point the score see-sawed back and forth until the whistle at half time found Killingly on the larger end of an 11 to 9 score. Both teams returned to the court determined in the last half and unleashed a sterling brand of basketball which brought the spectators to their feet many times. Killingly got the jump on their foes and their grand total reached 13 before Putnam scored but by the time the third quarter was called they had evened the count at 16 all.

The score remained close until the last few minutes of play when Killingly went into a 26 to 20 lead which they held until the end. For Killingly Barrett was the outstanding scorer with 10 points while Fulton and Spencer played strong games at guard Bove was high scorer for Putnam with eight points while Weiss was a close second with seven.

In the preliminary game the Putnam girls defeated the Killingly sextette by a score of 35 to 23. The summary:

MELHORN AND SMITH WIN FOUR BALL TITLE

MIAMI, Fla., March 10.—(AP)—"Wild Bill" Melhorn, south central open golf champion and MacDonald Smith, western open champion, defeated Gene Sarazen, former national open titleholder and Leo Diegel, Canadian open champion, 3 and 1 here today for the international four-ball tournament championship over the Miami Country club course.

Play in the finals was even more spectacular than during the preceding days of the match and bye shots were frequent by both teams The exhibition of putting by both combinations at times was sensational and the uncanny performances of Smith on the green during the afternoon proved the winning factor in his team's triumph

Three times Smith executed successful putts to drop the ball in the pin from unusual distances and it was by this three hole margin that his team achieved success. But while Smith was blazing to the fore with his putts, Diegel was suffering miserably on the green. On 13 of the 16 holes played in the afternoon the Canadian champion was within inches of the cup on his second shot for birdies, but invariably missed close putts.

Westerly Lions club with President Willard H. Bacon as toastmaster and 24 members present met Wednesday noon at 12:15 o'clock for their weekly luncheon.

The luncheon speaker was Col. Everett E. Whipple, town clerk of Westerly, who took for his subject, Duties of a Town Clerk. The assembled Lions were given an idea of how the work of the town clerk's office has increased in the 19 years that he has occupied the office. He named among the activities the issuing of licenses and recording of deeds. Licenses are now issued for the keeping of dogs, fishing, marriages, peddlers and itinerant vendors, vitalizing and tavern and many more. The town clerk is also clerk of the town council and the probate court and for making up jury and voting lists. In the past 248 years, said Col. Whipple, the town of Westerly has had but 18 or 18 town clerks.

Work was practically completed on Wednesday in the drilling of holes in the sidewalks of the principle business streets of Westerly and Pawcatuck for the reception of sockets in which flag standards are placed for street decoration in the Shannandoah system of flag display. The small holes were placed about nine inches from the street edge of the curbing and the brass sockets have been set in cement. Streets on which this display will be made for the first time on the next holiday are Railroad avenue, Canal, High, Broad, Main and Coggsell and West Broad streets. In all over 110 of hte sockets have been placed in position and assurance has been given that when the Shenandoah flag display is presented for the first time many more will be added. The work has been done under the joint auspices of Harold W. Merrill post, American Legion of Westerly and Harley P. Chase post Veterans of Foreign Wars of Pawcatuck. The individual flag sets including the standards have been purchased by the abutting property owners. The claim is also made that this ornamental display will be a sufficient showing so that the use of additional flags and bunting used in decorating store fronts and buildings will not be called for.

Funeral services for Garret O'Neil, Jr., 20, who died on Saturday at Norwich, were held on Tuesday morning at 8:30 o'clock from his late home, 45 Mechanic street. He was the son of Garret and the late Mary Doyle O'Neil of Pawcatuck, her death having occurred but a few days ago. A requiem high mas was celebrated at St. Michael's church at 9 o'clock by Rev. Michael Keating.

Burial was made in St. Michael's new cemetery, where the committal service was conducted by Fr. Keating. The bearers were Alfred Buck, Gerald Shea, Joseph Tsakas, Albert Roffo, William Sylvia and John Walsh.

Besides his father the boy is survived by a sister, Mrs. Amos Seymour.

At the meeting of the training class of the Westerly District council of Religious Education, held in the church school rooms of Christ Episcopal church, on Monday night it was voted to make plans for another community training class. Action will come up at the annual meeting to be held in Westerly in May and it is planned to have the series of classes start earlier in the autumn months.

John R. Frazier, of the Rhode Island School of Design, a former Westerly boy, gave an informal talk on Tuesday evening in the picture gallery of the Westerly Memorial and Public library on Broad street.

There are times when one is strongly affected by a lovely face, a beautiful landscape or some other object and feels an urge to paint or draw this object, said Mr. Frazier in his talk. The layman and the artist both feel this urge, but the artist is affected in a much greater degree and actually puts his sensations on canvas. The artist, explained Mr. Frazier, must have the power to see beneath the surface, to dramatize what he is painting, to make it a living, breathing thing that will move an audience.

After his remarks on art in general, Mr. Frazier gave a delightful talk on the various oils, water colors and etchings displayed on the walls and in cases about him. He pointed out the best features of each picture or group of pictures and gave many valuable bits of information that would aid visitors to appreciate the works of art in the library.

Style and all that goes with it!

The New Twentieth Century 4-Door Sedan $1590
f. o. b. Cleveland

JUST to look at the new Chandler is to know it for a mighty fine motor car. It has the style that goes with quality.

Chandler makes its greatest appeal, and finds its warmest friends, among people who live and move in an atmosphere of culture—people who appreciate good architecture, good music, good books, good times . . .

But with all its style, and all its richness, what a striking difference there is between the new low Chandler prices and the existing prices of other fine cars!

Look at the new Twentieth Century Sedan—a magnificent 4-door Sedan priced less than a 2-door coach. See how far Chandler has carried modern body development. Observe the smartness of the car, its roominess—then ride. Let ten or twenty miles reveal the astonishing power of Chandler's Pikes Peak Motor and what that power means in sheer joy of driving.

What's more, Chandler keeps fit. It has the stamina and endurance you want in a car. And it has the great "One-Shot" Lubrication System. By simply pressing a plunger with your heel, you keep the entire chassis thoroughly lubricated. And that keeps the car in the pink of running condition!

Prickly Porky Loses Some Little Spears

When Prickly Porky shakes with fear.
The danger must be great, 'tis clear.
—Sammy Jay.

Of course, Sammy Jay was one who did a great deal of the spreading of the news that Puma the Panther had come to the Green Forest. Sammy rather likes to carry bad news. Some folk are that way. It was Sammy who told the news to Prickly the Porcupine.

Prickly the Porky was up in a hemlock tree, engaged in his favorite occupation of eating bark. "Have you heard the news!" cried Sammy Jay.

Prickly Porky didn't pay any attention. He didn't even look at Sammy Jay. He just went right on chewing bark. "I say, have you heard the news?" cried Sammy Jay again, screaming almost in Prickly Porky's face. Prickly Porky went right on chewing bark. Not so much as a flicker of interest appeared in his dull little eyes. It provoked Sammy Jay. Quite naturally it provoked Sammy Jay. So Sammy Jay blinked, to make sure that his eyes were not fooling him. Two or three of those little spears which Prickly Porky keeps hidden in his coat had fallen, and they had fallen because Prickly Porky was shaking. Do you wonder that Sammy Jay blinked? Prickly Porky might not be afraid of anybody, but right that very minute he was shaking so that he had shaken some of those little spears out of his coat, and all because he, Sammy Jay, had said that Puma the Panther was in the Green Forest.

Prickly Porky began to back down the tree. "Where are you going?" demanded Sammy Jay.

"It is no business of yours," retorted Prickly Porky, "where I'm going. And if it's all the same to you, I wish you would tell nobody that you have seen me this morning."

Sammy Jay watched Prickly Porky shuffle out of sight. "He is afraid," said Sammy Jay to himself. "Prickly Porky is afraid of Puma the Panther."

(Copyright, 1926, by T. W. Burgess)

The next story—Bobby Coon Goes Back to Bed.

"Have you heard the news?" cried Sammy Jay

Jay. "All right," said he, "if you don't want to know the news I'll not tell you. It's bad news. Anyway, that's what all the other people seemed to think. Perhaps if you knew what it was that bark wouldn't taste so good You might lose your appetite."

Prickly Porky stopped chewing bark long enough to grunt "There is nothing could take away my appetite."

"Bear could," declared Sammy.

"Huh!" grunted Prickly Porky. "I'm not afraid of anybody."

"Not even Puma the Panther?" demanded Sammy Jay.

The strip of park, one end of which Prickly Porky was chewing, dropped from his mouth. Yes, sir, it did so. He stared at Sammy Jay with his mouth wide open. "Puma the Panther isn't in the Green Forest," said he at last.

"Oh, isn't he?" cried Sammy Jay. "Much you know about it! Puma the Panther is in the Green Forest."

"Have you seen him?" demanded Prickly Porky.

Sammy nodded his head. "I certainly have," said he. "I saw him this very morning."

"Right here in this Green Forest?" demanded Prickly Porky, and it sounded to Sammy Jay as if Prickly Porky's teeth were chattering.

Again Sammy nodded. "Yes, sir," said he, "right here in this Green Forest. Everybody else is scared half to death that is, everybody but we birds. But, of course, we are not afraid of anybody."

"No-o-o-o," stammered Prickly Porky. "Nuss-uss. I-I'm not afraid of anybody."

And then a queer thing happened.

YOUTHFUL SISTERS ARE HELD FOR MANSLAUGHTER

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., March 10—(AP)—Two young girls, one of them little more than a child, faced the Middlesex superior court today on the grim charge of manslaughter. Unsupported by friends and without a lawyer to defend them Aileen O'Connor of Newton, 15 years old, and her sister Honora, aged 14, pleaded not guilty to neglecting their invalid mother and permitting her to be frozen to death in her home last December. In default of $1,000 bail each, the defendants were sent to jail to await trial.

Old court attaches accustomed to scenes of tragedy betrayed emotion as the unwonted sight side by side at the rail and firmly answered "not guilty" when the indictment was read charging "wanton and wilful" neglect. Newton police officials who investigated the case after the girls mother, Mrs. Nora O'Connor, was found frozen in her fireless home January 14, filled in the details of the story.

Patrolman Frank Low of Newton found the body afte rneighbors had noticed that the house appeared deserted and that there were no footprints in the deep snow outside. He found Aileen and Honora in another part of the town and they told him they had visited their mother within a day or two. Later they said that they had seen their mother daily until her death December 31 and told a pathetic tale of poverty and suffering.

The girls' father, an insurance broker in Newton, died two years ago and their mother carried on the business until May of last year when she suffered a stroke of paralysis. The daughters undertook to take care of the home and the office. The deep snows and intense cold of December found them without fuel or money so the girls formed the habit of sleeping in the steam-heated office and returning home in the morning to tend their mother. Before leaving each night they bundled Mrs. O'Connor up in blankets so that she might not suffer from the cold.

Aileen and Honora said they continued this practice for some time after they found their mother dead on the morning of December 31, one week after their barren and cheerless Christmas, when they returned home from the office as usual. They did not report her death until questioned January 14, after the body had been found.

The grand jury returned a secret indictment for manslaughter based on the charge that between December 1 and 31 the girls failed to care for their mother, such neglect being held responsible for her death.

$1,000,000 SESQUI-CENTENNIAL FUND FOR PHI BETA KAPPA

PROVIDENCE, R. I., March 10—(AP)—John D Rockefeller, Jr., in an address tonight before Phi Beta Kappa members, announced the launching of a nation-wide movement by the Phi Beta Kappa National Honorary Scholastic society, to raise a sesqui-centennial fund of $1,000,000 to aid in "restoring scholarship and teaching to their rightful place."

The campaign, Mr. Rockefeller said, would be divided into two phases, a canvass for special or large gifts in almost a score of leading cities of the United States and a nation-wide campaign among the membership generally. The canvass, he said, will begin at once and will extend to the close of the academic year. The second phase will begin in the autumn and end with the erection of a memorial building at William and Mary college in honor of the fifty founders of Phi Beta Kappa. The other will be for the establishing of annual rewards for merit in scholarship.

One of the latter will be a grant prize for distinction in teaching of attainment in scholarship, which will be open to all teachers and to college graduates of not more than 10 years' standing. Small prizes not exceeding $2,000 each, will be given to "chapters, or individuals in aid of scholarship, teaching, production or constructive experiment." There also will be awards for scholarship in secondary and preparatory schools.

Apathy and neglect have affected a large party of our college population, Mr. Rockefeller said, and colleges are overcrowded with students who consider study no publication. The result, he said, has been that faculties are overworked and standards of learning lowered.

He said it was the duty of Phi Beta Kappa, "which has furnished nearly half the nation's famous men," to revive interest in scholarship and reaching to offset this apathy and "make secure the future."

Co-operative Spring Opening
Of Combined Norwich Merchants
A Great Community Event
Presenting Every Line of Merchandise

THURSDAY, March 11th — FRIDAY, March 12th — SATURDAY, March 13th

More than 100 Norwich Merchants are cooperating in this movement, to establish, more firmly, in the minds of the people of Eastern Connecticut, that these associated merchants are in a position to give the utmost in value, quality and service.

Co-operative Opening a Public Convenience

These Opening days signalize the advent of the new Spring season of 1926. For weeks and months the stores have been preparing for this occasion—now it is here. The value of a co-operative opening is, that it renders a genuine public service, inasmuch as it enables the people of Eastern Connecticut to visit all the Norwich Stores on the same days, and see the merchandise which has been assembled for the new Spring season, with the least possible effort.

Featuring a Window Dressing Contest

The outstanding feature of the Co-operative Spring Opening is a window dressing contest and it is expected that every window in the city will be beautifully trimmed for the occasion. The associated Norwich stores have been grouped in sixteen classifications, and each group will be indicated by a letter of the alphabet, which letter will appear in the store window, so that every contestant may be placed in their proper classification.

The Public Will Select the Winners

Everybody is invited to view all the store windows during Opening days and to select the store, in each classification, which in their opinion has the best window display from the standpoint of originality, attractiveness and salesmanship. Coupons have been prepared for registering your choice and these Coupons may be secured from any of the merchants listed here.

CONTEST OPENS THURSDAY EVENING, MARCH 11th at 6 P. M.
AND CLOSES AT 12, NOON, SATURDAY, MARCH 13th.

How the Winners Will Be Selected

Everybody is entitled to register an opinion as to the best dressed window in each of the sixteen classifications. All that is necessary to do is to get a coupon from any of the merchants listed here, then view the store windows on Thursday or Friday evening, or during the day on Friday, and designate on the coupon, the store in each group, which according to their judgment has the best window display. Then mail or deposit your coupons at the Chamber of Commerce rooms, Thayer building on or before 12 noon, Saturday, March 13th. The store, in each classification, having the greatest number of votes will be declared the winner.

Prizes Will Be Awarded the Public

Nine prizes will be given to the public. These prizes are to be awarded on the basis of selection. Every person has the privilege of making a choice of the best dressed window in each of the sixteen classifications and the person naming the greatest number of winners will be awarded first prize, and so on until the nine prizes have been awarded. It is expected that this feature of the Cooperative Spring Opening will arouse considerable interest, as it is the first time that the public has had the privilege of selecting the winning windows.

INSTANTLY, EAGERLY WELCOMED - This new different Toilet Soap!

10¢

It is just as women wanted it—made by the method France uses for her finest toilet soaps . . .

"MAKE a toilet soap as delicious for personal use as French soap," women begged us, "but oh, not so terribly expensive."

At last they had it in their slim eager hands—this new different toilet soap they asked us to make for them!

Off came its old-time sampler wrapper—there it was, satin-smooth, fine-textured, firm—"like the finest French soap!"

One touch to water—oh, that rich caressing lather that makes you feel so exquisite! Makes you feel luxurious, "soignée," just as costly French soap used to!

They loved Lux Toilet Form—those exacting, fastidious women! They went right straight back and bought more . . . And more . . . And more.

"It's so smooth and delicious and fine! When I used Lux Toilet Form—why I felt just as though I had bought it in Paris," said one delighted woman.

"My family refuse to use anything else since I got Lux Toilet Form," another told her grocer—he has sold over a hundred cakes a day!

"This is great soap—it lathers so freely—it's not too fragrant, either," said one man who orders Lux Toilet Form regularly.

"The men are certainly buying it, too," say the stores.

Yes, its place was waiting for Lux Toilet Form in hundreds of particular bathrooms.

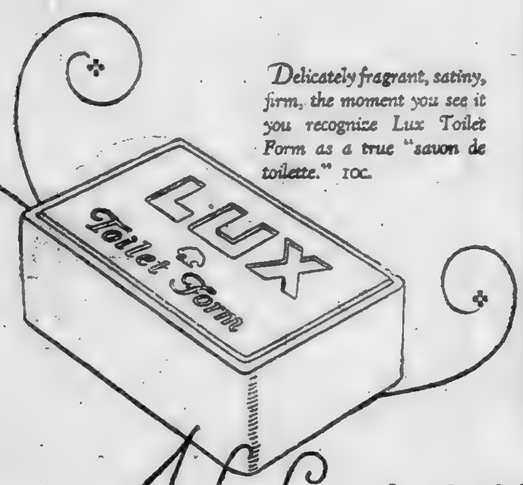
All over the country the same story—from druggists, from department stores, from grocers—they just can't keep Lux Toilet Form in stock. It sounds like a fairy-tale—but then it is a true "savon de toilette" at a reasonable price!

Without feeling extravagant the entire family can use it for both toilet and bath—Lux Toilet Form lasts and lasts—it's a real "savon condense." Druggists, department stores and grocers have it, ten cent stores, too. Lever Bros. Co., Cambridge, Massachusetts.

Instant ample lather the moment the cake is wet—men, those sternest of critics, like it

Satiny, exquisite—somehow you feel more charming, lovelier

Shimmering lovely hair—plenty and plenty of lather is the secret of easy waving



Delicately fragrant, satiny, firm, the moment you see it you recognize Lux Toilet Form as a true "savon de toilette." 10c.

In its wrapper like a cherished old-time sampler Lux Toilet Form is here to take its place as your personal soap. 10c.

OTHERS ARE IMPLICATED IN PATTERSON ROBBERY

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, March 10—The disclosures in connection with the robbery of S. Patterson, Inc., by the arrest of Frank Tudisco, Max Goldstein and George Athinious, the last named at Perth Amboy, proved a surprise to people of this city. The surprise arose in accounting for the management that permitted the stealing of such a vast quantity of goods before discovery. Now others besides the accused are said to have benefitted from the robbery and fraudulent acts. The police claim that they are in possession of all the facts in the case and that these are even more startling than have been already disclosed. The statement was made in the police court that Tudisco has made a confession of the part he took in the robbery and has detailed facts which the state is investigating. It is claimed that boxes of expensive candy was given away by the employes and that the person who received them was aware that the candy was stolen by the party who gave it away.

Anthinious, who when arrested yesterday declared that he would not return to New London without extradition papers being issued, has had a change of mind regarding his original determination to fight his being brought back here. This evening Chief of Police N. J. Tonneson, Perth Amboy, notified Captain of Police Charles A. Pinney that Anthinious would not fight extradition, but that he would return to this city and that the accused was leaving Perth Amboy this evening and would arrive in New London Thursday forenoon. After his arrival in New London the accused will it is claimed, consult the prosecuting authorities relative to the charge against him, and it is probable that he will be taken into custody and admitted to bail so that he will be available when the others charged with the fraud and robbery of the Patterson store are given a hearing on the 16th inst.

Mrs. David Almy, Raymond street, is spending a few days as guest of her brother, Alfred Pyne, New York.

There was no session of the police court today.

Ice dealers in this section have been favored during recent months in that they have harvested all the crop their houses will accommodate, and some of the dealers have stacked ice outside their houses. The weather while not extremely cold, was of a temperature that produced all the ice they could take care of. More freezing weather will not induce them to cut additional crop. So ice should be reasonably cheap the coming summer unless that will prevail during the month will be announced next month it is expected that the cost of coal will be reduced also, following the custom of lowering the price ten cents a ton a month.

Shortly after 7 o'clock, according to the woman, Arlonchuk appeared at his home and started to abuse her. When the abuse became such that the woman could stand the treatment no longer, she summoned the police.

Arlonchuk is well known to the police, he having a police court record and among the offenses of which he has been convicted is that of transporting liquor.

The city of New London is again seriously considering the abolition of the ferryboat Montauk which now plies between New London and Groton under lease of Captains George Crandall and David Sheehan. The boat, it is claimed is a losing proposition, as claim that has long been contended, but because of the insistance of the Groton taxpayers that a boat of this type be maintained on the route, the craft has been kept in operation. The lease of the boat is of such a nature that Captains Sheehan and Crandall pay a stipulated price for the privilege of operating the craft but that a portion of the boat's expense for being operated is borne by the town of Groton and the city of New London. Capt. Crandall and City Manager William A. Holt will go to New York tomorrow for the purpose of inspecting a craft that is for sale at this time. The boat is of the small or type and designed to carry foot passengers alone and not vehicles of any description. If it is decided to purchase the craft its operation between New London and Groton will be made possible only by an extensive alteration at the slips, both at this port as well as in Groton.

It is claimed that four stores that are now occupied on Bank street will soon be vacated. The information comes from notices on the windows and information that is given out by the occupants.

The city will have to make a considerable expenditure to put the streets in order after the effects of winter have passed. Some of the streets are torn up and worn out so that the work will be of considerable proportion.

Christopher P. Huch, 75, well known resident of Poquonoc Bridge, died at his home there last night, Mr. Huch had been in feeble health some time because of his advanced years.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

Broadway Theater

Laughter is the most infectious of all human experiences.

An incident during the filming of The Cohens and Kelleys, the Universal-Jewell coming to the Broadway theater on Sunday proves it.

Harry Pollard, the director, was making a scene in which Charlie Murray draws the laughter from a large group of extras. The set was surrounded with a fence to keep visitors away and the scene was ordered shot.

Inside, extras laughed their heartiest, while outside, people passed by on their business. As the laughter struck their ears they smiled, for no logical reason at all. While they were within hearing of the mirth, they beamed, but as soon as they got too far away, the contagion of joy left them and they became serious again in their pursuit of the fruits of life.

The very contagion of laughter is one of the reasons for the popularity of comedy-drama such as The Cohens and Kellys.

This picture was produced with an all star cast headed by Charlie Murray, George Sidney and Vera Gordon. Others in the cast are Kate Price, Jason Robards, Olive Hasbrouck, Nat Carr, Mickey Bennett and Bobby Gordon.

Broadway Theater

A very powerful and entertaining program of Keith-Albee vaudeville opens at the Broadway theater and promises to be an outstanding bill.

Dandy and Marie will offer a variety of new steps and tunes all blended harmoniously.

Illmo and Margaret in original comedy Variety Bits. Their originality is to be marvelled at.

Burt, Ambrose and May will produce volumes of harmony and hilarity that is certain to be the hit of the program.

Then Dorothy Morley and Al Anger in Slapped offers something more to make one laugh.

And the Turner Brothers, those splendid comedy acrobatic dancers will set the program off great.

A terrific battle with the waves features The Storm Breaker, Universal Jewel production to be screened at the Broadway theater commencing today with House Peters as the star. It is a wonderfully realistic scene as John Strong, the role played by Peters, seeks to master the ocean as he has mastered all men. The Storm Breaker shows Peters at his best. The star has been given a great supporting cast, the playing including Nina Romano, Ruth Clifford, Ray Hallor, Jerr Austin, Lionel Belmore, Ed Brown Emmett King, Gertrude Claire, William J. Colvin, Mark Fenton and Lon Poff. Edward Sloman directed the picture.

The Storm Breaker is rich in effective sea composition and the atmosphere of the fishing villages. Edward Sloman, who directed this great picture, has caught the spirit of this story and given us a wonderfully thrilling and realistic picture. The Storm Breaker is from Charles Guernon's famous story, The Titans.

Breed Theater

The Johnstown Flood is coming to the Breed theater Friday and Saturday.

To most of the older population today this greatest of American disasters means but a hazy memory of a calamity, and to the rising generation it means nothing but history, an event described by inadequate words.

It remained for Fox Films to weave a dramatic story for motion picture production around this shocking event to show realistically the ravaging horror created on May 1, 1889 when the dam above the city of Johnstown, Pa broke and millions of gallons of water rushed madly through the valley destroying cities, homes and human beings.

There is nothing more dramatic than a calmity of this nature and around this powerful theme has been woven a narrative that is filled to the utmost with action.

All the historical facts of the great disaster have been retained in a powerful dramatic story.

In a moment Johnstown was gone—destroyed.

In less than fifteen minutes the cruel, resistless destroying wave had come and passed having leveled the busy mart which supplied the wants of 30,000 people, and in the same brief time, at the very lowest possible estimate over 3,000 humans perished.

This is the gigantic sweep of the story, which brings to the playgoers scenes never before printed on celluloid by a motion picture camera.

Palace Theater

Marty Dupree and her musical merry go-round opens at the Palace today with a show that is all new and different, with the same popular characters that have made Marty's shows famous during the past years. Benny Drohan, the drawl comedian, Frank Murray and Lew Carron, who also plays comedian parts in the show are here with Marty in roles that are the funniest of their career. Plenty of pretty girls, tuneful tunes, snappy dancers help make this latest Marty show a success. "Lord Jim", the most famous book by the great literary genius, Joseph Conrad has come to the Palace theatre.

Percy Marmont plays "Lord Jim". He has never been so ideally cast since "If Winter Comes." Playing "Lord Jim" was a labor of love to him, the realization of a cherished ambition.

Shirley Mason, looking more alluring than ever before, is the girl. Noah Beery and Raymond Hatton the villains. All four are featured.

The finals of the old fiddlers contest will be given tonight. All fiddlers whose names appear in the ad please report and in the event that any names have been left out and you have won either first, second or third prize in any of the contests that have been run in the theatre, you are requested to report by 7:45.

Entering Insurance Business

Announcement is made of entrance of Laurence E. Millea into the insurance and real estate business. This field has long had attraction for Mr. Millea, and he has prepared himself by undergoing instruction and education from several large insurance companies. He will engage in the general line of insurance and can cover any and all risks for which insurance may be obtained. His companies are of the largest and oldest and most conservative doing business.

Mr. Millea had been in the employ of the New York, New Haven & Hartford R. R. Co. for over 24 years up to January, 1925, when he was compelled to resign because of poor health but has made a complete recovery after a course of treatment in Boston. Fraternally he is a member of Norwich lodge of Elks of which he has been treasurer since 1915, and is also a past exalted ruler of the lodge. His long residence in this city gives him a wide acquaintance here and in New London, Putnam and Willimantic where he has been the speaker at public services of the Elks.

Palace Theatre

The motion picture, "Tell Me Why," advertised for showing at the Palace theatre Friday afternoon and night received an unqualified endorsement by a dozen men and women designated to view the picture as a special group of censors, at a private showing.

In the group of reviewers were members of the chamber of commerce. The private showing was agreed upon by Manager McEvoy following an expression of doubt by the committee relative to the propriety of showing such a picture. The descriptive expressions of "Tell Me Why" has raised the doubt.

"Tell Me Why," will be the feature attraction in Norwich at the Palace theatre.

It is a drama of real life and motherlove, and portrays what every Father, Mother, Son and Daughters should know.

Owing to the delicate nature of the subject, women only will be admitted during the evening performances which start at 6.30 p. m. o'clock and at night men only at shows starting at 8.30 p. m. Children under 16 not admitted unless with guardian.

RECOVERY IN MARKET

NEW YORK, March 10.—(AP)—Stock market prices made further recovery in today's market with the strength of the standard industrials as one of the distinguishing features. Early trading showed some irregularity but the surprising action of the Pere Marquette directors in not only raising the annual dividend from $4 to $6 but also in declaring an extra of $2, started a new forward movement in the afternoon.

The recovery continued throughout the late trading despite the marking up of the call money rate from 4 to 4 1-2 per cent. Trading picked up in volume, the day's sales aggregating 1,637,400 shares, as against only 1,373,300 yesterday.

United States Steel common closed 1 3-4 higher at 129 3-8 despite the decrease of 265,917 tons in the unfilled orders for February, in view of the high rate of operations during that month, the tonnage report was actually regarded as favorable. The weekly steel trade reviews reported that consumption was holding at a relatively high level while mill operations were around 90 per cent. of capacity.

Pere Marquette was depressed as low as 80 3-8 in the early trading on selling inspired by Wall street rumors that no special dividend would be declared today but the stock soared to 88 1-4 after the directors' action became known, closing a point below that figure.

Several motors were bid up briskly at the expense of an overcrowded short interest which had been attracted by recent announcements of price cuts. Mack Trucks was run up 3 points to 125 3-4, closing near the top. General Motors closed 2 1-4 points higher at 126 after having touched 126 3-8 and Pierce-Arrow preferred while Stewart Warner and Fisher Body advanced about a point or two. Rubber stocks also showed substantial gains. Allied Chemical was bid up over 8 points to 130 1-2, closing a point from the top, on what appeared to be a resumption of buying by the pool which had operated in the stock before last week's drastic reaction. Famous Players jumped over 5 points to a new high level for the year at 135 1-2 on reports that the dividend had been earned twice over last year.

Copper shares also took on a new lease of life on predictions of higher red metal prices. American Smelting advanced near 4 points to 130 1-2 and Howe Sound was bid up 1 3-4 to the highest price on record at 35 3-4. Corrode Pasco advanced over a point and most of the others improved fractionally.

Equipments started upward but fan into heavy realizing American Locomotive falling from 109 1-8 to 105 3-4, off 2 3-4 on the day, and Railway Steel Spring showing a net loss of 1 3-8 at 68 1-8 after having been as high as 68 7-8. American Sugar Refining showed a net decline of 1 3-8 at 75 3-4, after having sold a point below that figure, on publication of the annual report showing earnings of 53.39 a share for 1925.

Rails were stimulated into activity by the Pere Marquette dividend action. Atlantic Coast Line soared over 7 points to 280 3-4 and Chicago Northwestern, Rock Island, the Erie issues, St. Louis Southwestern Southern Railway and several others advanced a point or more.

Commodity markets were irregular. Wheat prices rallied briskly toward the close after an early period of heaviness in apparent reflection of the bearish interpretation placed upon the government statistics on farm reserves. Cotton sagged 5 to 12 points. Raw Sugar was unchanged but the futures advanced slightly on reports of an increased European demand. Coffee closed 7 points higher to 5 points lower.

Time money and commercial paper rates were unchanged. Foreign exchanges were irregular. Demand sterling ruled slightly higher around 4.85 1-16 but French francs sagged a few points to around 3.64 cents. Norwegian krone rallied 10 points to 21.63 cents and Polish zloty jumped 35 points to 13.00 cents.

NEGOTIATIONS AT GENOA ARE FAR FROM AMICABLE

Sweden Protests That the Great Powers Are Trying to Bully Her—Spanish and Brazilian Diplomats Insist That Their Countries Must Be Given Seats in League of Nations Council at the Same Time as Germany—Arrival of Premier Briand of France Has Failed to Bring Any Solution of the Crisis.

GENEVA, March 11.—(AP)—Protests by Sweden that the great powers, particularly Great Britain, were trying to bully her into agreeing to enlargement of the league council formed a sensational climax to the unsuccessful negotiations today to settle the league of nations internal crisis.

From Swedish circles came the charge that Sir Austen Chamberlain had accused M. Unden, the Swedish foreign minister, of endangering the very life of the league by his intransigeant attitude against enlargement of the council beyond the admission of Germany and that the British foreign secretary had declared it impossible to conduct negotiations with a foreign minister came to Geneva with hard and fast instructions. M. Unden, alluding to the strong position maintained by Spain and Brazil for permanent places, pointed out that their countries seemed due to have sent delegates to Geneva with unalterable mandates. He asserted that by acting only for Germany at the present moment, he was serving the highest interests of the league.

The Swedes assert that the allied powers, notably France, made a powerful bid today, not only for the election of Brazil and Spain, but also Poland, although they did not insist upon Poland being accorded a permanent seat.

It is understood that both Senor Mello Franco and Count Quinones De Leon asked their governments at Rio Janeiro and Madrid whether, in the case of German and Swedish insistence that there must be no increase in the council beyond Germany, they could be authorized to make any concessions. Should Brazil's attitude remain unchanged it means that Germany cannot enter the league unless a seat is given a permanent seat, as Senor Mello Franco's instructions are they now stand are to vote for Spain and Germany simultaneously.

It was evident late tonight that the increasing bitterness abroad and the critical situation of last week become worse, if that is possible.

Briand's first day in Geneva following his return to the premiership of France failed to bring any solution of the league council crisis.

Spanish and Brazilian diplomats stated that their countries must have seats at the same time as Germany.

Faced with the continuing deadlock Briand made a final plea to Foreign Minister Chamberlain and Dr. Stresemann to recede from their position declaring Germany must enter the council at once and this will be attempted at a special meeting of the Rhine pact signatories tomorrow morning.

Rene Viviani and M. Loucheur, France, were appointed emissaries to confer with the German statesmen of both countries and urge their premiers to reconsider.

Before their departure from the council chamber Premier Briand, who previously delivered a long and impassioned speech for concord, and incidentally also for enlargement of the council, made another personal appeal to M. Unden not to veto enlargement. But the Swedish statesman remained firm.

For the first time since the beginning of the crisis, Sir Austen Chamberlain, British foreign secretary, tonight manifested profound pessimism, while M. Briand told friends that the situation loomed up dark indeed. This gloom is shared by all the members of the council, and the day ended with a growing sentiment of consternation gripping all Geneva.

Dr. Affonso Da Costa of Portugal, president of the assembly, gave an official dinner to the leading delegates tonight, followed by a reception attened by the entire assembly membership. The black culmination of today's negotiations threw a pall over all the participants.

Should the German statesmen and M. Unden maintain their attitude of opposition to any enlargement of the council, the question is being asked as to whether the council could not elect Gemany despite possible vetoes by Brazil and Spain.

The idea behind this is that no state should veto to the bitter end a matter affecting the very life of the league unless it thinks the issue involves its resignation from the league. Elaborating this idea, it is contended that when a state has reached this frame of mind it should voluntarily retire for the good of the entire organization.

Such a thing presupposes that Germany will not change her attitude, and that the council will find itself in a position of losing German membership. Under these circumstances it is asked whether, in order to save the league, both Brazil and Spain could not be forced to take a definite position at a public session of the council. It is argued by some that both Brazil and Spain would hesitate to stick by their stand at such a public meeting, and that if they did stick, this would inevitably cause their withdrawal from the league.

Such an argument assumes that a majority of the council will eventually be forced to agree to elect only Germany at the present moment. M. Briand insisted tonight that all misunderstandings between the French and the Germans had been dissipated. He declined that the entry of Germany into the league was an essential of international politics and that if the reich did not enter, the Locarno agreements would become mere scraps of paper.

In the opinion of M. Briand the crisis could easily be settled in six month but he admitted grave doubts as to whether in the present high state of tension and nervousness it could be settled in two or three days.

In the meantime from German bond quarters came indications that the Germans were becoming impatient. It was even said that the German statesmen were thinking of moving to some lakeside town outside of Geneva until such time as they termed the private quarrels of the league is settled.

ACTIVITIES IN SUPPRESSING LAWLESSNES IN CHICAGO

WASHINGTON March 11.—(AP)—Lawlessness in Chicago, which the senate recently was asked to investigate, got some additional publicity today through the department of justice.

A report from the United States marshal in that city, made public by the department, recounted these activities during the last 18 months:

Thirty carloads of criminals sent to Leavenworth.

Fifteen breweries closed.

Fifteen hundred buildings padlocked.

Two thousand "likers: purveyors of poison" convicted.

The marshal said padlock orders for prohibition violations were being issued at the rate of 20 a week.

NUDITY ON STAGE NOT SHOCKING IN GERMANY

NEW YORK, March 11.—(AP)—Complete female nudity on the stage occasions less protest from German theatre-goers than when the actresses are [illegible] quarters or seven eights nude, Dr. Albrecht Claus, head of the Berlin police, said today on his arrival on the [illegible] Bremen.

"When women wore very little clothing we received many complaints," he said. "Since they are appearing with no clothes at all we have received very few complaints. Women seemed to be as interested as men in the female form as presented in some of the Berlin theaters."

$500,000,000 GOV'T OFFERING $100,000,000 OVERSUBSCRIBED

WASHINGTON, March 11.—(AP)—The $500,000,000 offering of 20-30 year bonds by the government was oversubscribed by $100,000,000 it was estimated tonight by treasury officials, who ordered the subscription books closed.

Satisfactory response also has been made to the treasury's offer to purchase tax third Liberty loan bonds direct from holders for retirement on March 15.

The bond issue was announced only Monday by Secretary Mellon and the interest rate, 3 3-4 per cent. was the lowest proposed on a government issue since before the war with exception of the first Liberty issue, which was wholly exempt from taxation.

Despite the oversubscription, the treasury plans to keep the allotment close to the $500,000,000 figures, which is expected with the quarterly tax payments to be sufficient to retire $120,000,000 in third Liberty loan bonds and $615,000,000 000 in short term securities maturing March 15.

Under-Secretary Winston said the bids for the bond issue were received from all parts of the country.

MUST HANG FOR SLAYING HIS 17-YEAR-OLD WIFE

CHICAGO, March 11.—(AP)—Raymond Costello must hang on April 16, for the murder of 17-year-old Madeline White, a jury tonight decided in declaring him sane.

Costello was previously sentenced to hang but the sentence was held up pending a test of his sanity. Three alienists appointed by the Chicago Medical society were the principal witnesses, the court barring the employment of paid alienists by either state or defense. All pronounced him sane.

Madeline White was murdered after being criminally attacked about a year ago. Her body was found thrust under the porch of a south side home. Judge Marcus Kavanaugh denied motion of attorneys for a new trial.

RADDING IS HELD ON TWO CHARGES OF FORGERY

PROVIDENCE, R. I., March 11.—(AP)—Edward Radding, real estate promoter, was brought back here this afternoon from New York by Providence police. Radding, who had been in Bellevue hospital two weeks since his suicide attempt by taking poison in a New York hotel, was arraigned at a special session of the superior court on two charges of forgery. Pleading not guilty he was held in $25,000 bail on each. He was unable to furnish bail and was taken to the county jail. He is already under bail totalling $60,000 on three other charges of forgery.

CABLED PARAGRAPHS

Travels of Former Crown Prince

MILAN, Italy, March 11.—(AP)—Former Crown Prince Frederick William of Germany paid a flying visit to Milan last night. He stayed only a short time and left during the night, causing much wonder concerning the reasons for his trip. It was learned today that he was traveling in the strictest incognito and that he has returned to the villa Rocabella, near Locarno, Switzerland, where he is now living.

"WILD WOMEN" BRANDED AN INDECENT BURLESQUE

NEW YORK, March 11.—(AP)—Detectives and policewomen, accompanied by stenographers, slipped quietly into the Chelsea theater, in Eighth avenue, this afternoon, sat through half an hour of a burlesque show called "Wild Women," then rushed onto the stage and arrested practically the entire cast, including 29 women. The audience hissed and protested tumultuously.

The prisoners were hustled into patrols—pausing only for the women to throw cloaks over their allegedly scant clothing—and taken to a police station.

They were charged with participating in an indecent theatrical performance and acting in concert in its production.

After some delay and excitement there, they were released under bond and allowed to return to the theater in time for the evening performance.

The afternoon raid was ordered by Police Captain Brady, who said reports had reached him that the show in progress at the Chelsea was so daring patrons were deserting the uptown theaters in droves to see it.

Thirty-six members of the cast were arrested. Some who were fully clad when the raid started escaped.

Cram, his physician, who arrived earlier in the evning expected to stay until midnight and possibly all night. Dr Cram did not add to his previous statement that the colonel was weaker than usual, but it was evident that he was alarmed.

Dr. Cram notified the president by telephone tonight through his physician, Major James F. Coupal, that Colonel Coolidge was losing ground. A force of men were working at the snow filled road to the railroad station in Ludlow in anticipation of President Coolidge's coming here. At present there is only a one way passageway through the snow.

OBITUARY

Leopold Schepp

NEW YORK, March 11.—(AP)—Leopold Schepp, financier, manufacturer and philanthropist, died tonight at his residence here after a brief illness. He was 58 years old.

Mr. Schepp recently inaugurated two departures in practical philanthropy which gained wide comment. He established a "foundation" of several millions of dollars to be used in financing boys who would give and keep for several years a pledge to "live straight" and he sought advice from the public generally as to the most effective methods of using other large sums from what he termed his "unnecessary surplus."

The request for suggestions brought answers from all over the world, aggregating upwards of 100,000.

Mr. Schepp was a widower. One child, a daughter, survives him.

George H. Jackson

NEW MILFORD, March 11—(AP)—George H. Jackson, 72, representative of New Milford and the general assembly in 1897 and 1898 and postmaster of this place, from 1902 until 1914, died at his home here today of pneumonia after a ten days' illness.

Mr. Jackson was born in New Milford, February 4, 1854, the son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles W. Jackson, and had always lived here. He was prominent in republican circles and for many years was a member of the republican town committee.

Surviving are his widow, one daughter, Mrs. C. P. Stevens, wife of the supervisor of music of the Bridgeport public schools, and one grandson. The funeral will be held Saturday.

No Sign of Armistice In Prohibition Battle

Proponents and Opponents Are Indulging in Vituperative Statements.

WASHINGTON, March 11.—(AP)—The prohibition battle, which has raged so fiercely during recent weeks in congress, developed today a trend toward sniping, with leaders of the contending wet and dry forces taking pot shots at each from other points of vantage.

But while this was going on, the subject did not lie dormant in the senate and house, for the senate judiciary committee got rid of a batch of troublesome modification bills by shifting the job of handling them to a sub-committee which probably will hold public hearings; the house heard a brief opinion about the extent of drinking in Georgia, and Representative Oliver, democrat, New York, put in another beer and wine bill.

The Anti-saloon league's executive committee opened the firing today with a statement assailing the accuracy of newspaper polls now being conducted over the country on the prohibition question and advising drys not to participate. Tonight Wayne B. Wheeler, the league's general counsel, took his post before a radio microphone to drive home the argument.

This attitude on the part of the league committee brought into action Representative Celler, a New York democrat, who said he felt it necessary to "nail as a lie" the assertion by the committee that friends of prohibition usually do not participate in such polls, and he cited instances which he said proved the contrary.

The league committee said straw votes registering a wet trend often were overturned when the real voting began, but Mr. Celler asserted the league "knows it is defeated and like a whipped dog now has its tail between its legs." He also ventured the opinion that while some people "may be guilty of moral turpitude, the Anti-saloon league is guilty of moral turpitude."

The league statement, which was signed by Bishop Thomas Nicholson and 18 others, declared the "irreconcilable and thirsty" minority always was most active in straw balloting, and Mr. Wheeler in his radio talk declared the majority had spoken on the prohibition issue "not in straw votes but in official ballots."

He also argued that wine and beer keep alive the alcoholic appetite and develop the taste for strong beverages.

The question of drinking in Georgia was brought up by Representative Tinkham, republican, Massachusetts, who read a letter he said had been sent to Representative Upshaw, democrat, Georgia, by M. B. Wellborn, governor of the Federal Reserve bank at Atlanta.

"Drinking is almost universal in almost every town in Georgia and throughout the south," the leter said, adding that it "is not always good Scotch, but native corn."

Representative Oliver's bill would amend the national prohibition act by permitting states to modify it to the extent of allowing more liberal alcoholic content for beer and wine. The states would not be allowed to adopt enactments conflicting with the 18th amendment. The Volstead act would be further amended by a provision that no person charged with violation could be put in jeopardy twice for the same offense.

POSTCARD "TIP" LED TO FINDING OF MAN'S BODY

MIDDLETOWN, March 11.—(AP)—Following a "tip" received on a post card today, Chief of Police Charles A. Anderson and Officer John Clarry tonight found the body of an unidentified man in a barn on the outskirts of the city.

The post card, mailed in New Britain and addressed to Chief Anderson said:

"Dear Sir: There is a man dying in Tuttle's old back barn east of No. 3 brickyard, in front of the new red barn. He has been there five days unconscious. His name I don't know.

"(Signed.) S. S."

The chief and Officer Clarry went to Newfield where the barn is located, about 100 yards from the home of George Tuttle. The body was found in the hayloft of the barn.

The man is described as being about 66 years old, five feet, three inches, in height, weighs 120 pounds, gray hair, light complexion, face drawn and thin, wore black overcoat, dark clothing, khaki shirt and black shoes.

There were no marks of violence on the body and nothing in the clothing to identify the man. In his pockets the police found a pair of siccors, eye glasses in a case and a cake of soap. By his side newspapers, a coffee pot partly filled with coffee, bread, buns and other pastry. The pastry was fresh.

Coroner L. A. Smith and the medical examiner who were called express the belief that the man died from exposure.

DANBURY, March 11.—(AP)—Four boys ranging in ages from 16 to 20 years, were arraigned in city court here today, following their confessions yesterday afternoon to 11 robberies committed during the past three months.

Robert Vigna and Mathew Salese, who were on parole from Meriden school for boys, were ordered back to the school; Joseph Accovallo was given a suspended sentence at Cheshire with the understanding that he will be placed in a reform school by his parents and the case of Charles Pannozza was continued until Saturday.

The youths, according to their own confessions, gained about $1,000 in the eleven breaks and most of their loot consisted of money taken from cash registers in stores. They broke into the drug store owned by Pannozza's father and also looted several slot machines which were lodged in stores of Danbury until last month.

Army Supply Bill Passed By Senate

Carries $343,153,493 — $3,500,126 More Than the House Bill.

WASHINGTON, March 11—(AP)—The army supply bill, carrying $343,153,493 for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1927, was adopted today by the senate without a record vote. The amount is $3,500,126 more than the amount provided by the house and $40,659,263 more than the budget bureau estimates.

An attempt by Senator King, democrat, Utah, to reduce from $50,000,000 to $40,000,000 the amount for rivers and harbors was defeated.

The senate likewise rejected a motion by Senator King to return the bill to the military committee with instructions to reduce the total to $300,000,000.

BOTTOM DROPPING OUT OF RIVER IN KANSAS

SHARON SPRINGS, Kansas, March 11.—(AP)—The bottom continued today to drop out of the bed of the Smoky Hill river near here and tonight the ground was still sinking although its motion had slowed up somewhat. A hole slightly over 300 feet in diameter has formed in the river bed since yesterday morning. Its depth is not known, as it is partly filled with water that rushed in when the crater began forming, but some estimates run as high as 500 feet.

The cause of the phenomenon remained a mystery tonight, although many theories had been advanced. Word was received from Lawrence that R. C. Moore, state geologist, had attributed it to underground caverns left when a stratum of limestone had been dissolved. This, it was pointed out, however, does not explain the peculiar odor of sulphur that many have noticed around the crater. One theory is that it is an old volcane showing signs of life. The state geologist is expected here tomorrow.

When first seen, the depression was about 50 feet across and of unknown depth. Since then it has grown steadily. A low rumbling noise and a cloud of dust appearing over the spot gave the first indication that something had happened. There was no earth tremor of any consequence.

RIOTOUS MID-LENT PARADE IN PARIS WITH 22 "QUEENS"

PARIS, March 11.—(AP)—Three riotous processions and 22 "queens" ushered mi-Careme, or mid-Lent, into Paris today.

An enormous crowd turned out to take part in the parades or to look on.

The poor little queens for a day, recruited from among stenographers, hairdressers and waitresses, sitting in solitary grandeur upon carriages of the style of the Middle Ages, had their feet so chilled by a nipping March wind and their hands so numbed that they forgot to smile and throw the traditional kisses of the mi-Careme procession to their loyal subjects. The procession was headed by the "Queen of Queens", Mlle. Isambert.

HARTFORD MAN SUICIDED BY INHALING GAS

HARTFORD, March 11.—(AP)—Leaving a letter asking that his friend Morrison W. Johnson, undertaker of this city, should arrange his funeral, George E. Betts, 55 years old, of 26 Market street, committed suicide in his apartment today by inhaling gas. Medical Examiner Henry N. Costello, who viewed the body, gave permission for its removal to the undertaking parlors of Morrison W. Johnson.

In a second letter addressed to his wife at 1724 Kimball street, Brooklyn, Betts gave as the reason for his act despondency over ill health.

The body was discovered by a roomer, who found Betts lying in his bed with doors and windows of the room closed and the gas jet open.

The blade came down on Hutchinson's shoulder, slicing through his body.

SENATE ORDERS PROBE OF THE TARIFF COMMISSION

To Investigate Charges That Pesident Coolidge and Others Have Sought to Influence the Commission—Committee of One Republican Insurgent, Two Regular Republicans and Two Democrats is to Be Appointed by Vice President Dawes After Consultation With Leaders.

WASHINGTON, March 11—(AP)—Investigation of the tariff commission, and of charges that President Coolidge and others have sought to influence it, was ordered today by the senate.

The inquiry will be conducted by a special committe of five senators—one republican insurgent, two regular republicans and two democrats. The committee will be selected by Vice President Dawes after consultation with the leaders.

There was little opposition to a general inquiry as originally proposed by the democratic leader, Senator Robinson, of Arkansas, but the proposal to investigate specifically all efforts to influence the official acts of the commission met stubborn resistance from administration senators.

This proposal was put forward as an amendment by Senator Norris, republican, Nebraska, who recently laid before the senate a series of letters from members and former members of the commission alleging efforts at executive influence. The senate approved it 38 to 30, with a combination of democrats and republican insurgents constituting the majority.

There was another fight when Senator King, democrat, Utah, proposed that the insurgent republicans be given representation on the investigating committee. Senator Bingham, republican, Connecticut, moved simply to appoint "three republicans and two democrats" but the senate voted him down, 41 to 29.

Officials of the senate were unable to recall another instance where appointment of insurgents to an investigating committee had been ordered by resolutions.

Orginally the Robinson resolution had proposed that the finance committee make the inquiry, but Senator Norris objected, declaring any investigation of the tariff commission with elation to the new celebrated sugar tariff case, would involve an investigation of the chairman of the finance committee, Senator Smoot of Utah. The Nebraska senator recalled that William S. Culbertson while a member of the commission, had been invited by Senator Smooth to a conference of senators and representatives of the beet sugar interests.

Senator Norris said he had no doubt Senator Smoot acted in good faith, but he added that he did not think what was done was proper.

As evidence to support a charge of efforts of President Coolidge to influence the commission, Senator Norris some time ago read to the senate a letter from Edward P. Costigan, alleging that in reappointing David L. Lewis, democrat, Maryland, to the commission, the president required him to submit his resignation to be accepted at the will of the president.

During the debate today, Senator Bruce, democrat, Maryland, objecting to this, declared that if Mr. Lewis' nomination ever came before the senate again, he would oppose confirmation.

AGAINST CONFIRMATION OF WALLACE M'CAMANT

WASHINGTON, March 11—(AP)—President Coolidge lost ground today in his battle for senate confirmation of a judicial appointment for Wallace McCamant, of Oregon, who launched the chief executive on his national political career by placing his name in nomination for the vice presidency in 1920.

With three members yet to be heard from, the senate judiciary committee voted 10 to 3 against a favorable report on the nomination of McCamant, who now is serving on the ninth circuit bench under a recess appointment made last summer. Of the street committeemen yet to vote, one is certain to cast his ballot against confirmation.

Unofficial accounts were that Senators Goff, Ernst, and Deneen, all republicans, were the three voting for McCamant. Those opposing were Chairman Cummins, and Senators Borah and Means, republicans, and the seven democrats on the committee.

With such an overwhelming vote in the committee, administration leaders generally conceded that there was little hope that the senate would act favorably. Some have suggested that the president withdraw the nomination, but the white house has announced that Mr. Coolidge will insist on senate action.

Senator Johnson, republican, California, initiated the fight on Judge McCamant.

POLITICAL TROUBLE IS PROBABLE IN CORN BELT

WASHINGTON, March 11—(AP)—Another rumble of threatened political trouble in the corn belt was heard today by the house agriculture committee, which is conducting hearings on a farm relief bill.

William Hirth of Missouri, chairman of the corn belt committee sent to Washington by mid-western farm organizations, told the committee bluntly that the republican party would be held to account if it failed to enact suitable farm relief legislation. He added that, though the chief responsibility lay with the majority, we "have the right to expect the help of democrats in congress."

He then quoted an extract from the republican platform of 1924, pledging the party to "enactment of measures which will place the agricultural interests on a basis of equality with other industries to insure its prosperity and success."

WEISBORD STILL DIRECTING PASSAIC MILL STRIKERS

PASSAIC, N. J., March 11—(AP)—Pickets were withdrawn this afternoon for the first time in several weeks by the striking mill workers in the Passaic woolen district.

No strikers were back on duty after the afternoon mass meeting, though the mills had been picketed as usual until noon. The only explanation given by Albert Weisbord, chairman of the strikers' united front committee, was that the pickers had been taken away until the strikers' ranks are more compactly organized.

This was made necessary, he said, by the addition of several hundred workers from the United Piece Dye Works in Lodi, who went out on strike in response to picketing there.

The strikers have concentrated their efforts on the United Mill for the past two days, and tonight estimated they had recruited between 550 and 900 employees from it. This has necessitated shutting down a part of the mill. Two thousand employes are said to be out of work as a result.

Despite this, Theodore Boettger, president of the United MIM, declared he will not negotiate with Weisbord's committee, and denied reports that the mill is planning to shut down altogether because of the number of its employes now on strike.

Weisbord also announced this afternoon that 250 strikers will go to New York tomorrow to conduct a "tag day" selling tags on the streets to raise funds for relief.

The party will be brought to New York in trucks. The trucks will be equipped with samovars, to brew tea for the strikers on the journey, Weisboard said.

JAMES GRAHAM P. STOKES OBTAINS MARRIAGE LICENSE

NEW YORK, March 11—(AP)—James Graham Phelps Stokes, who obtained a divorce from Rose Pastor Stokes, noted socialist worker on September 17, 1925, today obtained a license to marry Miss Lettice Lee Sands, 21 years old. Mr. Stokes gave his age as 53.

Mr. Stokes obtained an interlocutory decree after testimony was given to the effect that Mrs. Stokes, engaged to do advertising and publicity work at a Sharon Springs, N. Y., hotel, occupied a room next to that of the manager, a Mr. Grossman.

The day following the granting of the decree, Mrs. Stokes issued a statement blaming the laws of New York state for any "scandal" attending the suit. She said the divorce was the result of a mutual cessation of love. She refused to discuss reports that she would marry the Mr. Grossman named in her husband's suit.

Mr. Stokes wedding date was announced as March 13.

MANSFIELD DEPOT HOUSE DESTROYED BY FIRE

(Special to the Bulletin)

WILLIMANTIC, March 11—The home of Adolph Korner on the North Coventry road, one-half mile from Mansfield Depot, several miles from this city, was destroyed by fire about eight o'clock Wednesday night. But a few articles of clothing and light pieces of furniture were saved from the ground floor. Mr. and Mrs. Korner and their five children did not detect the fire until the entire upper floor was a mass of flames. Smoke was smelled and upon opening an upstairs door it poured out in a dense cloud. About this time the fire broke through the roof. Neighbors and residents of Mansfield Depot were summoned but very little could be done to save the contents and the fire itself could not be fought due to the lack of apparatus. It is thought that the blaze started from a defective chimney. The building was a one story and one half frame structure and was part of the farm property owned by Mr. Korner. The loss is estimated at between $4,000 and $5,000 partially covered by insurance. Irving W. Botham, a neighbor, housed the Korner family for the night.

Thomas F. Somers, 66, well known former resident of Willimantic, who was engaged in business here during the late seventies and eighties, and was a resident of New York over 25 years, died February 5th, at the Fifth Avenue hospital in that city. Death followed a lingering illness which set in last November. Mr. Somers was president of the Birdsey-Somers company, corset manufactures of New York and Bridgeport, with executive offices at 11 East 42nd street, New York. He was born in New York city, the son of Michael Somers, who for several years conducted a dry goods store in the old European block on Main street, this city, the present location of R. J. Gallagher's store. The deceased and his brothers assisted the father in conducting the business. The family was noted for its musical talent and a generous endowment of business ability. About 1885, the Somers family left this city and located in New York. The deceased was a graduate of the old Natchaug grammar school and he attended the Old Home Week celebration in this city in June 1915. Before leaving here he instituted the Julia F. Peck fund, the interest from which is used to purchase prizes for honor pupils of the graduating class of Natchaug school.

Services for Daniel O'Sullivan were held from the funeral parlors of Eugene E. Hickey with a solemn requiem high mass at St. Joseph's church at nine o'clock Thursday morning, Rev. Charles M. Kelley was the celebrant; Rev. Paul Bartlewski, deacon and Rev. Edward J. Cryne, sub-deacon. As the body was being borne into the church, Mrs. Edmund R. Portelance at the organ played, Abide With Me. At the elevation Miss L. Monica McKeon was heard in Pie Jesu and Arthur Roy sang Farewell as a waiting hymn. In commemoration of the war record of the deceased America was played on the organ during the recessional and Musician Arthur Paradis sounded taps. Rev. Father Kelley conducted the committal service at the receiving vault in St. Joseph's cemetery, where the body will be interred later in the family plot. Attending the services was a delegation from Francis S. Long post, No. 39, Grand Army of the Republic. The bearers were Peter and Florimond Flynn, of New London and James F. McGlone and Michael Sullivan of this city. Relatives and friends in attendance came from Norwich, Jewett city, New London, Stonington, Mystic, Colchester, this city and other places.

The speed of the telephone saved the home of Sylvester M. Pelechata on the Back road in Windham from being gutted by fire Wednesday afternoon when a chimney fire emitted sparks which had caught on the roof of the two story house. Making quick response to telephone calls Henry Lee, Mrs. Lillian Higbee, George Chappell and Rural Free Delivery Carrier Arthur F. Ellsworth acted as a bucket brigade and after half an hour of strenuous work had extinguished the fire. The damage was about $200.

ACID STOMACH IS DANGEROUS

Sufferers From Indigestion or Stomach Trouble CUT THIS OUT

"Stomach trouble, dyspepsia, indigestion, sourness, gas, heartburn, food fermentation etc., are caused nine times in ten by chronic acid stomach," says a well known authority.

Burning hydrochloric acid develops in the stomach at an alarming rate. The acid irritates and inflames the delicate stomach lining and often ends in gastritis accompanied by dangerous stomach ulcers. Don't use an acid stomach with pepsin or artificial digestents that only give temporary relief from pain by driving the sour, fermenting food out of the stomach into the intestines.

Instead, neutralize or sweeten your acid stomach after meals with a little hot water and Bisurated Magnesia and not only will the pain vanish but your meals will digest naturally. There is nothing better than Bisurated Magnesia, to sweeten and settle an acid stomach. It soaks up the harmful excess acid much as a sponge or blotting paper might and your stomach acts and feels fine in just a few minutes. Bisurated Magnesia can be obtained from any reliable druggist in either powder or tablet form. It is safe, reliable, easy and pleasant to use, is not a laxative and is not at all expensive.

Creomulsion contains, in addition to creosote, other healing elements which soothe and heal the infected membranes and stop the irritation and inflammation, while the creosote goes on to the stomach, is absorbed into the blood, attacks the seat of the trouble and checks the growth of the germs.

Creomulsion is guaranteed satisfactory in the treatment of persisten coughs and colds, bronchial asthma bronchitis and other forms of respiratory diseases, and is excellent for building up the system after colds or flu. Money refunded if any cough or cold is not relieved after taking according to directions. Ask your druggist. Creomulsion Company, Atlanta Ga. (adv.)

DANIELSON

PAMPHLET TELLS WHAT DANIELSON HAS TO OFFER

(Special to the Bulletin)

DANIELSON, March 11.—Through a four-page article, prepared in attractive way and illustrated with views of the Quinebaug river, the Chamber of Commerce is to tell the world in convincing manner that Danielson is a splendid place in which to locate an industry.

The publication was shown here Thursday and attracted immediate interest. It is intended for distribution at the big textile exhibition to be held in Boston next month and will be available for sending to such persons or organizations as may be interested in Danielson and the town of Killingly for manufacturing or other business purposes.

The history of this town's manufacturing interests are traced from the days when Ebenezer and Comfort Tiffany established the third cotton mill erected in Connecticut on the opposite side of the river from where now borough of Danielson now is, this mill in 1807, and thence through the period in which the locality hereabouts became the largest cotton manufacturing center in the state. By 1826, the community had attained such a reputation.

After treating of the community background, the issue deals with Danielson and Killingly of today, setting forth in admirable manner the many advantages that accrue to concerns that locate there with their manufacturing enterprises.

For instance, "If you are a manufacturer seeking to locate on a stream, pond or river, there is a site for you. If you need water and plenty of it—unlimited water—Danielson has it. If you want to locate on the outskirts of the community and on a trunk motor route there is a site for you. If you want to build along the railroad and have the banks of a river and pond running from several feet to half a mile wide for a distance of four miles between the town and the river. If you wish to get away from the immediate congestion of the busy section of Danielson, and still accessible to it, there is room for you. If you want land for a farm or away from one, and yet not far from the center to build a home, it can be found. If you are a knit goods manufacturer, there is a perfect site for you; and the people can make your shoe cloth and your knit goods manufacturer can supply any number of ideal locations for you and the local mills can supply your yarn. This and much more is presented to interest manufacturing concerns.

Under the heading "Labor", it is pointed out that a remarkable thing about Danielson is that it never has had a strike that amounted to more than an incidental flurry and that a great number of employes in manufacturing plants own their homes and generations before them have lived in amicable relations with their employers.

Of Danielson's assets, schools, churches, banks, motor highways, etc., due consideration in this circular.

PAWTUCKET COMPANY GETS KILLINGLY HIGH CONTRACT

(Special to the Bulletin)

DANIELSON, March 11.—The A. F. [illegible] Constructing company of Pawtucket was on Thursday afternoon awarded the contract for the construction of the additions to Killingly high school by the committee of the town which has the matter in charge. The cost of this concern was $106,155. The plumbing and heating contract was awarded to M. J. Daly and Sons of Waterbury and the electrical contract to the Griffing-Scofield Electric company of Hartford. The total cost of the work to be done by these contracting firms will be $136,277.32. The plumbing and heating will cost approximately $21,237, the balance being the cost of the electric work.

It was after the meeting of the committee at which the awards were made that a careful study of all the bids and their relation to the work to be done indicated that the contractors who have been selected to do the work have made the most acceptable propositions.

All of these concerns filed certified checks or surety bonds with their bids, are responsible and may be depended upon to do first class work.

At her home in Canterbury Wednesday afternoon a funeral service for Mrs. Anna Lamnela, who died at the Day Kimball hospital in Putnam, was conducted by Rev. C. J. Armstrong of the Danielson Baptist church. Burial was in the Carey cemetery in Canterbury. Louis E. Kennedy was the funeral director.

Members of the Danielson Rod and Gun club will be represented on a sportsmen's committee by their secretary, Harold B. Atwood, in arranging for the big gathering of sportsmen of the state to be held at Lake Compounce in September. It is expected that about 1,000 sportsmen will attend this gathering, at which there is to be a barbacue, contests, sports and various other entertaining features.

"You owe me $1.50. When are you going to pay me? I have waited a long time. I insist on payment within eight days".

The above is a sample of effrontery and pestiferousness of a concern that has been sending unsolicited or unordered merchandise into this territory, has had it returned and is still insisting on getting money not owed to it.

Demands like this came through the mails to Danielson people Thursday morning and local people say, "Try and get it" is the answer this concern is going to receive in response to its demand, not to mention some other things that good form does not allow to be reproduced in print.

Congress at this time has a bill before it to drive these pests out of the mails and relieve people of a real annoyance. One certain concern has flooded this place with neckwear so cheap and tawdry that a savage would hesitate to wear it, had it mailed back and has been howling ever since Christmas time about getting payment. "Try and get it" is a good slogan. It simply can't be done.

What are known as stepovers are being built along Snake Meadow brook wherever a fence or wall crosses the stream. This is being done by the state fish and game commission, through arrangement with local parties, that fences and walls will not be damaged by trout fishermen when they begin fishing that particular stream on April 15.

The stepovers are sturdily built affairs, which the fishermen will find convenient for their use, and the fishermen will be expected to use them and not go crawling through fences or over walls. In leasing a right of way along this stream which is to be intensively stocked, the state has agreed to protect property along that right of way from damage. Fishermen will be required to keep within ten feet of the brook at all times, and if they fail to do so, or break any other regulation, they will be very liable to lose their fishing licenses, for the stream will be under patrol seven days a week and all leasing conditions will be rigidly enforced. The big trout with which this brook is to be stocked—and it is already one of the best trout streams in southern New England—are to be released in by the state during the present month.

Funeral services for Bertha W. Anderson were held Thursday afternoon at 2 o'clock at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Edward Anderson, in the Allen hill section of the town of Brooklyn. Rev. Leonard Richards, rector of St. Alban's church, conducted the service, attended by numbers of relatives and friends. The bearers were John Lane, Edward Tourtellotte, James Harney, Ray Tibbles. The body was entombed at Westfield cemetery. Louis E. Kennedy was in charge of the funeral arrangements.

The Danielson Town team will play its last home basketball game of the season probably on Tuesday evening of next week.

Killingly high school basketball players and supporters were jubilant Thursday over the closing of the season with a victory, Wednesday evening, over the Putnam high school team.

East of here, just over the border of Rhode Island, more land will be cleared along the state highway the coming spring for the erection of summer places and permanent homes.

H. Goring Alder of St. Philip's church, Putnam, was the Lenten preacher at St. Alban's church Thursday evening.

Captain Frederic O. Armington is out again, after having been confined to his home by illness a number of days.

On Wednesday evening of next week at the adjourned annual town meeting the Killingly tax rate for this year will be fixed.

Included in the list of new officers of the Putnam Country club are William K. Litch, second vice-president and Roland H. Gray, trustee for three years, both of these officials resident here. Tyler B. Andrews of Danielson is to be instructor and caretaker at the links this season.

William W. Wheatley of this town has been elected tyler of Putnam lodge of Elks.

The Service battery basketball team was at Putnam Thursday night for a game with the Headquarters company team at the armory.

Killingly will have representation in Brooklyn today at a poultrymen's meeting arranged under the auspices of the Windham County Farmers' association.

Water continued to bubble up and flow from under the pavement in Main street near the railroad crossing during Thursday, but nothing developed to indicate what is causing this mysterious flowage.

Watch Your Breakfast

Start every day with food that "stands by" you

HOW you feel all morning depends largely on what you eat for breakfast. Thousands have unenergetic forenoons because of wrong breakfast eating.

To feel right, you must have a well-balanced, complete breakfast ration. At most other meals—lunch and dinner—you get it. But breakfast is a hurried meal, often badly chosen.

Thus Quaker Oats, containing 16% protein, food's great tissue builder, 58% carbohydrate, its great energy element, plus all-important vitamines and the "bulk" that makes laxatives seldom needed, is the dietetic urge of the world today.

It is food that "stands by" you through the morning. Food that should start every breakfast in your home.

Quick Quaker cooks in 3 to 5 minutes. That's faster than plain toast. Don't deny yourself the natural stimulation this rich food offers.

I am giving you here the new way I found out in Paris, which is the most marvelous discovery ever made to easily and safely take off fat. I suffered for years with all the troubles well known to fat people—time after time—I deprived myself from all pleasures, because of my ridiculously fat figure. I turned down parties and friends to avoid the dreaded "here comes fatty," until one day, after I had tried everything known to reduce and failed I hit upon SAN-GRI-NA WITH WHICH I MADE MYSELF OVER. SAN-GRI-NA is the discovery of a French scientist, who has solved the problem of obesity. With this simple, easy, marvelous new way, I reduced from 186 to 136 pounds in eight weeks, and have never regained since. PUTNAM

JUDGE RESERVES HIS DECISION IN AUTO CASE.

(Special to The Bulletin)

PUTNAM, March 11.—At the conclusion of the arguments in the hearing of the suit of William R. Chandler against Charles Lavalley, Judge Edwin C. Dickenson announced that he would take the matter under consideration and render his decision later.

It is an action for damages growing out of an automobile accident a year and a half ago, and is out of the ordinary inasmuch as each party charges the other with being in the wrong, and each claims damages of $2,500.

The cars came together at 8 o'clock in the morning on November 20, 1924 at the intersection of roads leading from Putnam to Ballouville and from Attawaugan to Putnam Heights. Chandler was driving a Cadillac coupe, approximately a new machine; Lavalley's was a Hupmobile touring car. The force of the impact can be judged from the fact that parts of Lavalley's machine may still be found in the vicinity of the accident, and the bill for repairs to the Cadillac amounted to $1,024.24. Chandler was alone in his car; with the defendant were three other men and one woman, Mrs. Eastman. She was bruised to some extent; Lavelley and one other man were thrown out of the machine but neither seriously hurt, although the former was dazed, and incoherent in his talk, for a short time. His home is in Plainfield. Chandler lives in North Grosvenordale.

The case was tried to the court a practice which seems to be growing in favor. The hearing of the action consumed more than a day.

At the regular meeting of the Elizabeth Porter Putnam chapter, D. A. R., the program proved to be one of unusual interest to all of those who attended. The music was provided by the grammer school orchestra under the direction of Miss Annie Ash. The pupils from this group were from the Pomfret schools, with but two exceptions, the violinist and the cornetist. The selections played were a Gavotte, Chorale in D Minor, Minuet in G by Bach and the school march, Boy and Girls of California.

The speaker of the afternoon, Miss Mary A. Potter, of the State Department of Americanization, spoke of the educational work for adult aliens. Discussing illiteracy in America, she stated that at the time of the draft, Connecticut contained over 67,500 illiterates, and that the census of 1920 showed 502 illiterates in Putnam. At present the workers among adult aliens in this state are conducting schools in 45 towns and about 11,000 pupils are enrolled.

Miss Potter made a strong appeal for the immigrant mother, who is so often lonely and whose children are sometimes ashamed of her because she remains un-Americanized. As a result of this latter condition, home discipline is often broken down, which may account for the fact that statistics do not show any higher percentage of crime among aliens than among native-born until the second generation after those who have suffered from this breakdown.

Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Miles recently entertained ten couples at their home on Park street to a supper party and a dance. After the dancing the guests were invited to the dining room where a supper was served.

George W. Webster of Boston, formerly of this city, fell at his home in Boston and broke a bone in his leg. Mr. Webster will be confined to his home for several months before he will be able to resume his work at the Boston Terminal Post Office.

The fire department was called out Wednesday evening for a fire on the roof of the home of George E. Monroe on Merchandise street. It proved to be but a chimney fire and was extinguished with very slight damage done.

Benjamin Ganne, employed as a machinist at the Waterman Worsted mill on Pomfret street, fell from a ladder Wednesday morning while at his work and it is feared that he has fractured a rib. He was taken to his home on School street.

At the meeting and supper of the directors of the chamber of commerce held at the Putnam inn, Albert H. Williams was a guest. There were ten members present and with President Thomas H. deCoudres presided, Mr. Williams explained the need of an improved road for a distance of about two miles of the state highway between Safford's store at South Woodstock and West Woodstock. Except for this one stretch, that was almost impassable under some weather conditions, the travel between Putnam and Woodstock would be over a very satisfactory road. He thought that if the improvement could be made by the state that the town of Woodstock would be willing to bear its proportion of the trade would greatly benefit by reason expense, which would amount to $10,000 or $12,000, and that the Putnam trade would greatly benefit by reason of it, for it would provide an excellent road between Putnam and West Woodstock and Eastford.

The directors went on record as favoring it and will bring the matter to the attention of the state highway department with the earnest request that the matter be taken up immediately.

At the annual meeting of the Putnam Country club, the reports of the officers showed it to be in a healthy condition. There are now 175 members and this season promises to be the most successful in the club's history. The following officers were elected for the coming year: President, Silas M. Wheelock; first vice president, Charles M. Dean; second vice president, William T. Litch of Danielson; secretary, Ernest C. Morse; treasurer, Thomas H. deCoudres; trustees for three years, A. Newton Vaughn, Albert Owler and Roland P. Gaunt of Danielson. Tyler Andrews is the new instructor and caretaker.

Among those who attended the automobile show being held at Boston this week were the following: Ellsworth Morse, Marvin Thatcher, D. B. Gilbert, Carl Hopkins, Mike Coleman, Thomas Richmond and A. B. Evans.

Ernest Whittemore, who has a store on Front street, fell against a board at his store Wednesday and broke a rib in his right side. Although blind, Mr. Whittemore is able to attend to his business of selling goods and makes change as well as one who sees.

It is his custom to attend to the heater in the building and as he started for the stairs, he misjudged the distance, lost his balance and fell against a board near the steps.

At the adjourned town meeting held at the municipal building the tax rate for 1926 was fixed at 28 mills, the same levy as last year. Judge M. H. Geissler was moderator and Judge David Flagg was clerk. There were only 14 citizens in attendance notwithstanding the very great importance of the meeting. But in view of the unusual expenditures it is gratifying to realize that although the levy is high it was not found necessary to increase it.

The appropriations are as follows: Assessors $650, auditor $200, board of relief $225, bonds $125, bridges $1,000, cutting brush $500, culverts $250, doctor for poor $400, Day Kimball hospital $1,200, highways $5,000, interest $10,000, insane poor $4,000, insurance $6,000, Memorial day $300, military tax $650, Mansfield Training school $300; miscellaneous $2,000, outside poor $10,000, old cemetery $50, personal tax expense $275, printing $700, public library $1,500, rents $400, repairs to state road $150, registrar of voters $150, railing $200, registrar, $250, Red Cross $750, sealer of weights and measures $250, selectmen's services $1,150, snow $1,000, schools $73,500, state tax $7,000, town farm $7,500, town clerk $100, town treasurer $500, tax collector $1,200, total appropriations $141,125.00.

At the annual meeting of the lodge of Elks, B. P. O. E., the election of officers was held after which there was a social session and a vaudeville entertainment.

There were many visiting Elks from out of town and during the evening Thomas Rawley of the Putnam lodge presented William Foran of Willimantic, formerly of Putnam, a white gold Elk's watch charm, set with diamonds also a silver membership card. These presents to Mr. Foran were from Brother Elks from Webster, Putnam, Norwich and New London lodges, the majority of whom have been workers on the railroad with him.

After the meeting the grill committee served one of their fine suppers and the rest of the evening was spent in listening to one of the best vaudeville bills ever presented at the lodge.

The following officers were elected: Exalted Ruler, A. Newton Vaughn; esteemed leading knight, John H. Burger; esteemed loyal knight Kerren H. Cotter; esteemed lecturing knight, Lionel Charron; tyler, William Wheatley; secretary, George H. Lewis, Jr.; treasurer, Lucius P. Merriam; delegate to Grand Lodge convention, James E. Murray; alternate, Andrew V. Frost; trustee for three years, James E. Murray.

The Putnam friends of Mrs. Frances Wilcox Bailey learned with regret of her death which occurred Wednesday at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Louis H. Manles in Norwich. She was married in Putnam in 1877 and although they did not live here long after their marriage both Mr. and Mrs. Bailey were frequent visitors to this city.

Many local basket ball fans went to Danielson Thursday night to see the game between the Danielson town team and the Webster team.

Frank K. Finley, who has had many places of residence in the past year, is well known in Putnam where he was arrested Wednesday afternoon by State Policeman, S. P. Streaman, charged with disposing of an automobile upon which there was a conditional bill of sale.

Fred M Cole has sent from Deland Fla., a box of fine oranges to Otis C Moriarty.

Howard W. James has been in Providence, where he attended a meeting of radio salesmen at the office of the Union Electric company.

Miss Emma Dutton, teacher in the Israel Putnam school, has returned from a visit with Mrs. F. D. Sargent and Miss Bertha Sargent at their home in Worcester.

Miss Densie Cutler is visiting Mrs. Ellsworth Cutler at Pomfret.

Mrs. E. B. Williams of Center street is the guest of Mrs. Henry Lyon at Norwich. Mr. Lyon was recently transferred from the local telephone exchange to that at Norwich.

Mrs. Edward H. Burt has returned from a visit to friends in New York city.

JEWETT CITY

PLAN TO FIT OUT ROOM AT BACKUS HOSPITAL

(Special to The Bulletin)

JEWETT CITY, March 11.—The March meeting of the Anne Brewster Fanning chapter, D. A. R. was held at the home of Mrs. Edward A. Faust Wednesday afternoon, with ten members and one guest present. The regent, Mrs. Charles E. Spicer, presided and gave a brief resume of the annual report sent to the national society, which showed that $107 had been contributed to various patriotic objects.

The chapter at the present time has under way plans for fitting up a room at the Backus hospital with those accessories which make for comfort and a homelike atmosphere. While the room will be available for the use of any patient, it is the intention of the chapter that Jewett City patients be given the preference. The committee has received the very helpful co-operation of Supt. Hutchins in planning for this room. The furnishings will savor of the early New England days, when Windsor chairs, braided rugs and fluid lamps held sway. Several articles have been donated by members and at the meeting Wednesday afternoon, the action of the regent met with a ready response by those present and $42 was contributed. A sum has already been voted from the treasury.

A short program followed the business meeting. Mrs. F. D. Ballou sang delightfully and responded with an encore. An article on the Jonathan Trumbull Professorship of American History and Government established at Harvard college was read by Mrs. Arthur M. Brown. The Connecticut Daughters of the American Revolution assisted in the work of raising the money for this professorship and the local chapter contributed its pro rata share. The article not only told of the endowment of this new chair and of Professor Monro, the first incumbent, but gave charming glimpses into the life of "Brother Jonathan," Connecticut's governor during the Revolutionary war.

"It is an interesting fact that when the Sons of the American Revolution took over and formally dedicated the war office at Lebanon, Conn., that little building had to yield precedence only to Faneuil hall and Independence hall as a cradel of American liberty."

The closing number on the program was most unique. Mrs. Faust on the player-piano played a stirring patriotic selection and was accompanied by William LaLiberty on the bones. So insistent was the applause that they were obliged to resrond with two encores. The skill and dexterity with which the young man manipulated these bones, together with the perfect time and rythm he maintained, was truly amazing to the uninitiated.

The hostesses, Mrs. Faust and Miss M. Adelaide Burdick, served refreshments in the dining room, assisted by Mrs. Ballou.

To receive town taxes now due I will be at town clerk's, Monday 1 to 4 P. M. E. Jodoin, col.—Adv.

If there are any doubts about spring being on the way in this section, they may be dispelled. On South Main street Mrs. F. I. Ray has snowdrops blooming in the yard outside the door.

Personal Tax Collector Vegiard is having considerable trouble in convincing some people that they are not being unjustly asked to pay the tax twice in one year. He explains that the law has been changed and the tax is now to be paid in November instead of March as formerly. As this law went into effect in 1925, it did make the tax payable twice in 1925. But the one paid in March was for the year 1924, and the one paid in November is for 1925. This will not happen again, he says.

Edward Ashey, who is at Backus hospital, has practically no chance of recovery, Mrs. Ashey said on Thursday. He is paralyzed from his waist down, and no cause can be found for the condition.

The Woman's Missionary society of the Congregational church met at the home of Mrs. E. A. Faust, Thursday afternoon. A foreign mission program was full of interest. Pictures of Miss Mayr McClure the M. E. missionary in China, and letters and curios sent by her to Miss Beatrice Read were seen and read. Miss M. V. Burdick, Mrs. E. A. Faust, Mrs. C. H. Jennings, Mrs. E. H. Hiscox and Mrs. John Whitney took different articles. Miss S. K. Adams read the Bulletin letter, and Mrs. F. H. Robinson presided.

Word has been received that Mrs. Charles H. Van Natter is very ill in the New England Deaconess hospital in Boston. She is the wife of a former pastor of the Methodist church.

Miss Marianna Kummer has gone to Malone, N. Y., to visit her sister for a few months.

The local post office is receiving its first spring shamrocks. A liner that arrived in New York Tuesday with mails from the Irish Free State did not forget a quota for Jewett City. And for man living here as well as in many other places, the few withered leaves and pinch of dry soil, bring fond remembrances.

The wonder plant of Sylvandale, blossomed again Wednesday afternoon. Mrs. J. H. Kennedy, its owner, had to keep open house Thursday morning, for the many who came to see the rare and strange bloom. Some how the plant on account of its foliage, became to be known as a sword palm, but Rev. J. W. Carter, who was there to see it Thursday, and knows the flower, pronounces it to be an Egyptian Iris. Research goes to prove that this beautiful flower, after the inundation of the Blue Nile, was to be found blooming all along its banks. The last blossom was unusual in that it was made up of three individual flowers, that came through the side of the long sword like stem, which rears itself over three feet above the rim of the pan. Strangely, after two or three years of preparation, the gorgeous orchid like flower withers within a day.

With the laying of the new rails, completed in the borough and nearly completed over the whole branch, one of the finest equipped single track systems in the state, passes through Jewett City. The iron is selected Bethlehem steel and at the weight of 107 pounds to the yard is considerably heavier than that it replaces. All slow town restrictions have been removed and the way the State of Maine express sails through here nights calls to mind the days of the old time boat train with Cooper at the throttle.

People crossing the Quinebaug bridge Thursday have an opportunity to hear the "water thinkers." Just below the bridge several overhanging limbs of the great oaks that grow on the bank, have reached the level the somewhat swollen river. Small pendants of ice have formed on these branch tips, and, as the rapidly moving current causes them to sway, a faint tinkle is distinctly audible. Heard after dark the sound seems strangely peculiar.

The telephone 50th anniversary buttons failed to arrive in Jewett City Wednesday and' employes necessarily had to celebrate without them.

Some hats make a woman's face look long, but not half as long as her husband's when he gets the bill.

diana it may prove a good thing that the New York state canal was suggested for there have been indications that those who were urging the St Lawrence development were making no progress, and this particularly in Canada.

In objecting to the endorsement of the canal idea it was pointed out that the St. Lawrence plan would be much less expensive and that the expense would be shared by Canada. That is of course what is planned but before half, or any part of the expense can be saddled upon Canada the dominion must agree to participate and thus far there appears to be a strong opposition in Canada to the idea. Canada doesn't see where it is going to profit and Montreal doesn't want to lose the business that goes with being the head of navigation on the St. Lawrence. On the power development side there are those in Canada who object to turning hydro-electric current to be sent into the United States.

If the advocates of the canal plan can put forth strong enough argument to get Canada to see the situation in a much different light. But however the development is undertaken or in fact it is it is only proper that there should be a full exposition of all possible routes before a decision is made. The advantages and the handicaps should be set forth and carefully weighed against each other. It shouldn't be done with only one project under consideration.

READY FOR DISARMAMENT?

By the fixing of the disarmament conference at Geneva for May 17 the League of Nations has apparently overcome the objection which was previously raised by Russia to sending representatives into Switzerland and apparently it feels confident that the obstacles which existed before have been eliminated. Much will hinge, however, on the outcome of the preliminary at Geneva concerning the admission of Germany to the league. If the Locarno pacts are not carried out there will be no need of a disarmament conference, preliminary or otherwise.

Getting down to the discussion of disarmament with a view to actually making disarmament will be something new for Europe. It means a decided change in conditions. There is certainly that a program can be agreed upon and there is no telling whether the countries hidden to the conference will desire to take up the question of land and water disarmament at the same conference or at separate gatherings.

A much better situation would have been created had the present league meeting at Geneva progressed smoothly. It would have lent encouragement to some real accomplishment while opposition and ill feeling may block everything.

Here this country will be ready for the conference, even as it was for the one that was postponed, can be expected. That it will be prepared to do its part to get results goes without saying although it is to be realized that little or nothing to offset the idea of disarmament can be done if Germany and certain other countries fail to have its good effects on the conference and certainly it will be made known at the meeting of members of the League of Nations which has been attending to the business of protecting the peace of Europe since the close of the world war.

EDITORIAL NOTES

The man on the corner says: The nearly varieties of parade to make a record are available at all times.

"U. S. Steamer on Rocks." Well that isn't much worse than the many others which have for years been swinging at anchor.

Isn't it time for someone to denounce the country because there is an occasional insistence that there's too much crime?

The acceptance of a call to a Philadelphia church only to find the salary is too large must be classed among the things that seldom happen.

In its need for a thorough cleanup Chicago will certainly have the sincere sympathy of Philadelphia, but it will not recommend General Butler.

The big objection now is that the income isn't large enough to require the payment of a federal tax. It is impossible to satisfy everyone all the time.

Are you planning to be a passenger on the initial flight between New York and Hamburg? It will provide a topic of conversation for years to come.

The health commissioner of New York has started a campaign against spitting on the sidewalk. That calls to mind the fact that there used to be a law for such an offense here.

THE SEWING CIRCLE

"I regret to say," observed the young matron with the auburn wave "that George has come to the point common to all husbands. I'm told, at a certain stage of matrimony, where he takes no notice whatever of what I wear. I am quite certain he hasn't really looked at me for some months because I've been wearing a coat the color of which he simply abhors—it was such a bargain I couldn't resist it—and he hasn't breathed a word of protest. Now what do you know about that?"

The black-headed member answered with a sudden irrepressible giggle.

"Well?" demanded the young matron with the auburn wave.

"Husbands are so funny," murmured the black-headed member. "It reminded me of something that happened a couple of years after I was married. I had a rather extensive trousseau, you remember, dope in Paris, and everything white, negligees and house robes and all, because I'm so fond of white. And you know how it is with a trousseau when one has been foolish enough to buy too much. It hangs on forever, and you don't feel that you can give things away or throw 'em away. And one day my husband said to me, 'For the love o' Mike, can I do, dear? There's a whole trunk full that is perfectly good yet.'

"That's just the trouble," he complained bitterly. 'To all appearances you've got enough to last the rest of your natural lifetime, and I'm getting sensitive about it. When I married you I certainly expected to pay for your clothes, but every now and then just as I'm beginning to think that now at last you'll be wanting to stock up fresh, you dig into those doggone Paris chests and haul out another wad of silk stuff. It's getting on my nerves.'

"'Well, then,' I assured him soothingly, 'if you feel that way about it I'll have some pink and blue and orchid things right away, dearest. Don't worry! Just wait until next week when I have time.'

"Three cheers for that," my husband said. 'I'll make an extra deposit to your account today. Don't be stingy about it.'"

The black-headed member chuckled again, reminiscently, the circle waiting on her words.

"The next week!" she continued, "I produced a perfect garden of lingerie for his delighted inspection. Pink crepes and blue georgettes and ecru radiums, and a house gown of heliotrope taffeta, which is his special weakness. I wore 'em all with a large gesture of casual luxury that made quite a bit with him, you could see. Every morning I'd float in to the breakfast table with some new color combination—a pale blue negligee with a scarlet girdle or a russet brown house coat with turquoise buttons, or something like that. And the poor man cheered up a lot. His eyes gleamed with satisfaction every time he looked at me until I was almost ashamed of the way I'd spent that money."

"But he wanted you to use it for clothes, didn't he?" protested the young matron in surprise.

"Oh, I didn't spend it for clothes," said the black-haired member calmly. "I drew it all out of the bank at once and used it for new linoleum on the kitchen floor and a gas stove. The old ones were awfully bad, and the landlord was such a pig he wouldn't do a thing for me. And my maid—I had only one in those happy days—was always fretting about not being able to keep the kitchen look nice."

"But all the array of choice new finery?" inquired the young matron dazedly.

"Oh, that?" said the black-haired member with a cheerful grin. "That was the same old trousseau stuff—a mistful. I'd never even dipped into it to that time. I sorted 'em into lots, labeled 'em pink, blue, yellow, and so forth, and sent 'em to the dyer. They came back looking as fresh as the day I did. I tell my husband for years afterward, but you'd never believe how much satisfaction I got out of that linoleum."—Chicago News.

From Small Beginnings

John Rennie the Builder of London Bridge

When a boy plays truant from school every one tells him that he has utterly disgraced himself, that no good will come of him and that he can expect little from the future. That is what an English farmer told his little son, John Rennie, when he discovered that the small boy had stayed away from school day after day to watch work in a machine shop.

The open door of the shop, revealing a fascinating mystery of moving clanking machinery, had been too strong an invitation for little John Rennie. He simply could not stay by that door—so in he went, and forgot about school. Sometimes the shop man let the boy do a little work and then the youngster was perfectly happy. The father, although a simple farmer, was wise in his ways, and did the right thing. He took the boy out of school and set him at work in the shop.

The 12-year old boy went to work with a will, doing the best he could to help the mechanic whom he so much admired. That man was no ordinary mechanic; he was an inventor, and had made the first of all threshing machines. He showed the small boy how to work with tools and machines and showed him, too, that book learning is a great thing. Two years later John Rennie was glad enough to go back to school in order to gain the theoretical knowledge that every good mechanic must have. Now he has a reason for studying and he studied hard. In the meanwhile he kept up his work in the shop. As a result, before he was 20 he was actively at work constructing machinery.

The young man had good understanding and continued to study until he became a well-informed mechanical engineer. He knew both theory and practice. While he worked erecting machinery, or inventing machinery, he studied further and made himself a civil engineer. Today, the monuments that he erected to his memory are to be seen all over England. The great London Bridge is one of them; the famous East India dock is another; and docks at various important English ports, and canals with ingenious locks, making a path for commerce, and great breakwaters that protect various harbors, testify to his ability and activity. With consummate ability he mastered whatever was great and difficult in engineering, whether it was doing away with a swamp or bridging the Thames.

The truant had learned that study pays.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Endorses Action of Meriden Supt.

Mr. Editor:—There is promise for the future, when a superintendent of schools resigns his position because the board approves of "petting parties and joy rides"; among the pupils of the high school. Dr. David Gibbs has taken a stand that should be highly sustained by the school board and the whole community.

Everywhere I go, both north and south, I hear the most scandalous reports of the immorality among the girls and boys of the high schools, in their dances especially. Only recently I heard of a young man who told his mother that a boy could not be decent any more; if he did not take the girls out on petting parties, he would be ostracized by them and this came from the son of a fine family, and he was only 16 years old.

The papers reported Senator Edwards of New Jersey stating before congress in this tirade upon prohibition, stories of our young people arriving back from their dances so drunk that they staggered when they alighted from the taxi.

If these stories are not propaganada it is high time some one rose up in defense of our young people. When a superintendent of schools has the courage to condemn these pernicious "petting parties and joy rides", there must be a rotten condition in Meriden that the school board can uphold them. High school girls are too young to be running about unchaperoned by their mothers. Such a thing was not thought of in my day.

There is an old saying that there is no smoke where there is no fire.

Thank God, there be one superintendent of schools in Connecticut who has the manhood to start a crusade against "petting parties and joy rides" among our high school girls and boys. It must wake up a response in the hearts of some fathers and mothers who still desire to see their boys and girls grow up into respectable men and women. If one half of what I hear is true in regard to this matter, the future of America is doomed. If I had a boy or girl in the high school, I would know the truth.

NEW BOOKS

The Bronze Hand. By Carolyn Wells. Cloth, 318 pages. Published by the J. P. Lippincott company, Philadelphia, Pa. Price $2.

Nearly everyone has one little pet superstition. Oscar Cox, common sense old man that he was, was not alone in setting up his own private fetish. A grim enough symbol he has chosen, thought his fellow passengers of the Pinnacle when he displayed the Bronze Hand that held his luck. Not a few shuddered, realizing the force of those fingers, spread apart yet partly clenched, as if to clutch an enemy in a death grip. And then, three days out, at bright noon ay, Oscar Cox was found dead in his deck chair, killed by the terrible hand of bronze. It was murder on the high seas. There could be no inquest for there was no coroner; or verdict since there was no jury. But suspicion there can always be and to Max Tresnt's horror it pointed straight to Maisie Forman, the girl he had loved ever since he had caught the first sight of her on deck, cool and aloof as a young princess. His faith, of course, was in Maisie but there were things hard for even the most ardent lover to explain. There was the dark night when he was just in time to keep the girl from jumping overboard. About her neck, too, hung pearls with the square diamond clasp from Cartaya's, killed to the dead, man, and in her stateroom were found the cases of still other jewels listed among her effects. But on shipboard one never knows who who. In a surprising manner a great detective emerged from the quietest man in the smoking room and Fleming Stone relentlessly drew the net. Here is one of Miss Wells' best mysteries in the fascinating setting of a great ocean liner.

As I Look at Life. By 14 authors. Cloth illustrated, 248 pages. Published by Cosmopolitan Book Corporation, New York.

This volume has 14 chapters, each written by a famous writer, and this extraordinary book goes only to readers of the Cosmopolitan magazine. It has an introduction by Ray Long, editor of the magazine, who tells of his own history, which is that of a boy who had, in the main, to educate himself; who did it almost solely by reading; and who confessed that he never read the so-called "beneficial" books, but stuff that interested him. He has gotten the writers to tell their inner histories and they have done it in a manner that makes interesting reading. It is a book of serious, even tragic, chapters though not even for an instant with a note of defeat.

Those who have written the 14 chapters are Edwina Levin MacDonald, Alice Rohe, Arthur Stringer, Charles W. Wood, Helen Bullitt Lawry, Basil King, Charles M. Sheldon, Elizabeth Bishop, Neysa McMein, Arthur Somers Roche, Frederick L. Collins, Will H. Hays, Royal Brown, and Dr. Harvey W. Wiley.

There views as they look at life are necessarily from different angles and markedly different. They are certainly worth reading.

In this volume Mr. Key furnishes music critics and professional and amateur musicians with information of a character not always accessible and heretofore difficult to obtain without consulting several articles on music and musical conditions by Mr. Key, Fritz Sanborn, Alexander Fried, W. Mr. Key has compiled a volume that is not only informative but which will be much used by those who are fortunate enough to have it in reach.

CHILD TRAINING

THE WILFUL CHILD

Mrs. J. Kubista

Not until I was married and had children of my own did I discover how my mother overruled our wilfulness when we were children and set us to obey her without causing any disturbance; however, once I had learned her method I immediately applied it in the training of my children, and my success has won the admiration of all those knowing our family.

When my little daughter insists on wearing a certain dress contrary to my advice I don't stop to argue with her as to why she shouldn't wear it. I simply ignore her wilfulness, call her attention to some other matter and then go away apparently quite unconcerned. She may put the dress on and even wear it a while but her mind will be on the wrong she has done, and she won't be able to play with ease, back she'll go and put on the dress he knows I wanted her to wear.

If Robert fusses about going on an errand for me or insists on my waiting until he feels like going I don't "nag" him; I simply go out-of-doors and get some little boy or the street to run the errand for me and as sure as can be Robert will run with him, a little ashamed of his disobedience.

When the children quarrel, I don't allow them to malign one another, nor do I wait for explanations of causes of the disagreement; I simply distract their attention with something else and they go back to their play, no one the victor or the loser.

There's a lot in that little trick of changing the subject or ignoring with deliberate calmness the stubborn willfulness of children. It certainly does more good than a lot of angry words giving rise to the children's temper and your own. My mother used to say, "Our children have no temper" and now do my own almost the same thing for by not arousing their temper I have not made them aware of its existence and what they have is abated by my diversion or my silence unconsciously teaching them to control themselves by their own thinking and reasoning.

Of course, not all children can be governed with equal ease by the same method. Child psychology teaches that we should constantly study each boy and girl with the purpose of giving the timely aid that the individual development thought needs. But in every one quietness and confidence are strong influences towards obedience, thoughtfulness and pleasing manners.

IN DAY'S NEWS

ST. DENIS

Rising waters of the Seine recently washed into the grist mill of the day's news the name of St. Denis, a little French city just outside the northern gates of Paris. Residents of the island of St. Denis, which is in the river opposite the city of St. Denis, and those along the river bank, were forced to flee to higher ground, some of them taking refuge in the city barracks.

"Outwardly St. Denis is one of the least attractive of Paris' neighbors, says a bulletin from Washington, D. C., headquarters of the National Geographic society. "Most travelers on the Nord railway from England or Belgium, who catch only a fleeting glimpse of its smoking chimneys and railroad yards from the car windows, are content to let a glance suffice.

"St. Denis, however, merits more of the world's attention," the bulletin continues. "Paradoxically this busy little industrial center of today is one of the mother cities of art, as well as the final resting place of most of the royalty of France. Although little visited in comparison to Versailles, Fontainebleau or the chateau country, St. Denis has a church that was among the first churches to embrace the Gothic style of architecture, considered by some critics the greatest single advance in temple building since Greek and Roman days.

"Within the church, or more properly, the Basilica of St. Denis, is a veritable museum of French sepulchre sculpture, marble effigies of 30 generations of kings and queens, and other nobility of France. In fact, from the tombs of St. Denis the names for an almost complete 'Who's Who' of ancient and medieval France could be copied. Marie Antoinette, Duc de Berry, Catherine de Medici, Louis XIV, Louis VI, Louis XII, and a host of other Louis, Anne of Brittany, Marie Therese, Henri II and scores of others sleep their last sleep here in obscurity, but a few miles from the scenes of their former power and grandeur.

"It is into the well of legendary lore that one must dip to find anything of the city's early history. According to legend St Denis, the first bishop of Paris, suffered martyrdom on Montmartre in Paris about the year 270 and walked with his head in his hands to the site of the present Basilica of St. Denis. On the initiative of St Genevieve the clergy of Paris built a chapel over his grave two centuries later.

"The place soon became a Mecca for pilgrims from all parts of France. St. Denis witnessed deluges of people in the Middle Ages which caused her far more concern than those of water today. In the 12th century Abbe Sugar reports that he saw worshipers crushed to death by the crowds pressing in behind them. It was obvious that the small chapel first erected was unadequate. When Sugar came into power he enlarged the crypt and above it built a choir, with tall slender columns supporting the intersecting arches of the vault.

"Although the new style of building was not invented at St. Denis, it had never been very seriously considered by former builders because it was not believed possible to support heavy roofs without heavy, massive walls. Pilgrim reports of the success of the venture at St. Denis resulted, for a time, in wholesale transformations of churches from sturdy, Romanesque into airy Gothic. The Gothic style is being employed today in the new cathedrals at Washington and at New York.

"Many personages and highlights of world history have been intimately associated with the Basilica of St. Denis. One of the popes, Stephen III took refuge here from the Lombards. Charlemagne, founder of the Holy Roman Empire, was anointed by the same pope during his residency at St. Denis. Joan of Arc dedicated her armor on its altar. Here Napoleon was married to Archduchess Marie Louise. Once it was sacked by the English. During the French Revolution, however, it suffered most. Tombs were rifled and the Basilica itself deprived of its leaden roof, was used as a granary. Since 1806 it has been a simple parish church.

"Mark Twain found the sculpture of St. Denis particularly impressive, in fact, that he placed Charlemagne's tomb here, although the saint is really buried at Aix. 'It seemed serious,' he wrote, 'to be standing face to face as it were, with old Dagobert I, and Clovis, and Charlemagne, those vague colossal heroes, those shadows, those myths of a thousand years ago! I touched their dust-covered faces with my finger, but Dagobert was dearer than the 14 centuries that have passed over him. Clovis slept well after his labor for Christ, and old Charlemagne went on dreaming of his paladins, of bloody Roncesvalles, and gave no heed to me.'

"The present city of St. Denis is linked with Paris by railroad highway, the River Seine and a canal. Due to the great bends of the river Seine in the vicinity of Paris, the journey is more than three times as long by water as it is by road or railway. St Denis was once celebrated for the fair known as 'Foire du Lendit,' which was founded by Dagobert in the 7th century, and was held on the plain of St. Denis until 1552. At St. Denis too, the art of window painting reached its highest perfection, in the beginning of the 13th century. Its population today is about 75,000."

KEEPS STAGE ROLE NEW TO AVOID GOING STALE

NEW YORK, March 11 (AP)—Playing the leading role in a Broadway success has no financial drawbacks, but there is such a thing as going stale in the part.

There is one way to prevent this, in the opinion of Gregory Kelly. He does not let the part become old to him.

Kelly, who got his start on New York's carnival street by appearing with Joseph Jefferson in a revival of Rip Van Winkle, opened in The Butter and Egg Man early last September. The title and the play caught theater-goers. Since then he has been playing the part of a country youth, Pete, which previously had come from producers eight times a week.

"I used to worry during long runs if I failed sometime to get the proper action from an audience at a point in a play," Kelly said. "I would be just like a baseball player in a hitting or fielding slump. I'd try to figure out each move I had made and puzzle over why the laugh, or sadwho becomes a Gotham theatrical the audience had been missed.

"The result was similar to that of the baseball player; I usually made matters worse. Now I don't worry. I keep the role fresh by not thinking of it too much and occasionally playing differently.

"One thing that helps me greatly is that I never attempt to put myself into a role; rather I bring the part to me and give it my interpretation. This also helps to make the role more real.

"When a play is on a long run occasional adjustments have to be made sometimes an actor will be over-playing, or again the emphasis may not be great enough. In this play, the author comes around once a month so as to catch any flaws."

Kelly still was in high school when he played with Jefferson. He next appeared with Virginia Harned. Then came a season with Maude Adams. With her, he played Joseph Napoleon Darling in Peter Pan. Shortly afterward, he graduated and was with Mrs. Fiske three years.

"I shall always look back upon this experience I gained with Mrs. Fiske," he said. "She never attempted to direct, but every week she would give an hour to each player during which she imparted much helpful advice."

Bliss, the study topic being John Dryden and Alexander Pope. Miss Bliss read a very interesting paper on Dryden and Miss Edith M. Bliss gave a delightful talk with charts of her own preparation, her theme being versification in poetry—or the relation of musical metre. She then gave a fine paper on Pope. Mrs. Channing M. Huntington read excerpts from the writings of both Pope and Dryden.

SEVEN YEAR OLD BOY LOSES LEG UNDER TRAIN AT GREENEVILLE

Said to have been pushed off the platform of the Greeneville station while a southbound freight train was passing Thursday afternoon about four o'clock, Richard Domoleski, seven, son of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Domoleski, of 11 Fifth street, had his right leg run over and foot so badly crushed that it was necessary to amputate the leg below the knee at the Backus hospital.

The boy was reported to have been playing with an express wagon and a playmate of about his own age on the platform of the station. He told his father that the other boy, whose name was said to be Frank Poreda, pushed him, causing him to fall off the platform against the train.

Dr. E. J. Brophy was called immediately after the accident and he attended the little boy who was carried into the waiting room at the station to await the arrival of the Backus hospital ambulance. Miss Anna A. Fitzgerald, nurse at the United States Finishing Co., aided in keeping the little fellow as comfortable as possible while waiting for the ambulance, which was some time in coming as it was out on another call when notice was received at the hospital.

Sergeant Myron O. Morgan and Officer John Carroll, who accompanied Dr. Brophy when the physician responded, assisted in placing the boy in the ambulance. The little fellow bore his injury bravely and when he went to the hospital was accompanied by his father and mother.

LIONS TO LUNCH AT HOME SERVICE DEPARTMENT

With the usual large attendance the regular weekly luncheon meeting of the Norwich Lions club was held in the Wauregan hotel with President William A. Anderson presiding. George Madden was the song leader and Jean Keiffer was the five minute speaker. Keiffer spoke on the subject, Tuberculosis. He told of the great progress being made in the prevention and cure of tuberculosis and stated that tuberculosis today is certainly curable.

President Anderson announced that the meeting next week is to be held in the home service rooms of the Norwich gas and electric department and that the luncheon is to be served under the direction of Miss Gladys Peckham, the home service expert. Two new members, Rev. Edward C. Dunbar and Joseph A. French, were welcomed into membership. The attendance contest prize, a leather bill fold, donated by William O'Neil, was awarded to C. Edward Carpenter.

H. A. Bailey of the Delco light company was the speaker of the day. He was introduced by President Anderson and spoke on Electrical Refrigeration. The speaker described the primitive methods of cooling food in ancient days, explaining the different stages of progress made in the preservation of foods up to the present scientific methods of household electrical refrigeration. He said that today electrical refrigeration is automatic and in a way of showing its tremendous growth stated that in size it today surpasses the radio industry. Electrical refrigeration is a tremendous saver in the wasting of foods aside from its convenience in the household and as well a sanitary method in the preservation of food. At the close of his talk he answered several questions relative to the subject which members of the club requested of him. Both speakers were extended the hearty appreciation and thanks of the club through President Anderson for their interesting talks.

LENTEN SERVICE SERMON BY WORCESTER RECTOR

In the third of the united Lenten services by Christ and Trinity Episcopal churches, which was held Thursday evening at Trinity church, the sermon was by Rev. Henry W. Hobson, rector of All Saints' church, Worcester, Mass. He spoke from the text, John 14:5: Thomas saith unto him Lord we know not whither thou goest and how can we know the way.

Declaring that we are independent creatures who hate to ask direction but like to feel that we can find our own way, the preacher said that too often we try to depend on our own petty insignificant wisdom and become lost in the big vital issues of our lives we need to make right decisions, to have the guidance that will take us along the true way, God's day. He sent Christ to show us that way, to give us the guidance we so much need.

The speaker mentioned three essentials to receiving this guidance. In the first place we must ask for it through prayer. Secondly, we must listen for the answer and thirdly we must be willing to follow. We can't expect fellowship with God unless we are ready to listen and follow. God's way may be the rough way, that we don't understand, but we must be ready to say, "nevertheless not as I will but as thou wilt." Then will come the reality of the fellowship with Christ, for willingness to follow brings fellowship with Christ.

Archdeacon J. Eldred Brown of Trinity church and Rev. C. Montgomery Budlong of Christ church officiated at evening prayer.

NORWICH STORE WINDOWS MAKE BEAUTIFUL DISPLAY

Norwich store windows were in their most attractive array Thursday evening when the merchants were in competition in the window dressing contest as one of the features of the co-operative spring opening for the last three days of this week.

Merchandise that is the equal of anything in the market was displayed in many different lines, fabrics dainty in texture and color in women's wear, fashionable men's styles for spring clothing, household furnishing and hardware, crockery, shoes, drugs, stationery and other lines inviting the attention of the many who made a point to tour the business section to see what the merchants had to display. The beauty, variety and novelty of the windows drew forth much admiring comment and demonstrated that the Norwich merchants are alive to the value of window displays and able to make this fall of interest and attractiveness for the public.

OCCUM WOMAN INJURED AT NORWICH TOWN

Miss Anna Coffey of Occum was rushed to the W. W. Backus hospital from Norwich Town about 11:30 o'clock Thursday night suffering from injuries received in an automobile accident. Examination at the hospital showed that Miss Coffey's injuries consisted largely of bruises and that her condition is not serious. She remained at the hospital over night. Details of the accident are lacking as up to an early hour this (Friday) morning neither the local police nor Constable Lucius Fenton of Norwich Town had been notified.

The accident happened on the road near the Sacred Heart church.

SOOT ON FIRE AT MAIN STREET PLACE

Soot on fire behind the wainscotting that covered an old fashioned fireplace at the Norwich house, 52 Main street, made a call for the firemen at 7:29 Thursday evening, when children in the family discovered the kitchen in the place full of smoke. After cutting out the blaze the firemen removed about three bushels of soot from the chimney.

The building is owned by George Greenberger. The fire was in apartments occupied by Mr. and Mrs. Gilbert Rogers as a boarding house.

There are 30 patients this week at Backus hospital, Norwich. Twenty ambulance calls have been answered since the first of March.

TRINITY METHODIST MEN PARTICIPATE IN BANQUET

The Blue army of the Everyman's Bible class of Trinity Methodist Episcopal church, losers in the recent attendance contest, entertained the winners, the Red army, at a banquet Thursday evening in the church Sunday school room. About 7 o'clock a chicken pie supper was served by the blue army and during the menu an excellent concert programme was given by Swahn's orchestra.

Colonel Lloyd Cochran of the Blues was in charge of the after-dinner programme. A letter from Col. Ernest O. Rodier of the red army was read expressing his regret at not being able to be present at the banquet. Archie Perry entertained with a number of humorous stories and recitations and there was a programme of community singing led by President E. B. Floyd of the Everyman's class.

President Floyd gave a talk on the class aims. During the course of his remarks Mr. Floyd said: we have just begun to get warmed up. We have this contest and we are now enjoying the result. Attract the men to our class he said, through personal interest and the handclasp. I am sure the work Col. Cochran has done has been appreciated. You will be glad to know that he has been appointed advertising manager for the class. The blue army is to be reorganized under the leadership of Robert McNeely, as colonel.

The class teacher, Rev. J. Harlow Graham, then briefly addressed the gathering. He spoke of the attendance contest between the Everyman's class and the City Bible class for men of the Central Baptist church and urged the members of the class to work for capacity attendance at the class sessions and to work for an increase in membership. Rev. Mr. Graham then introduced Rev. R. G. Spalding, D. D. of New London who gave a splendid and inspiring address. Dr. Spalding said he wished to speak first on the question of a man's job. What is it? he asked. What are we here for? Some people think a man's job is to die and leave a lot of money. That isn't very successful.

We should make our physical life what it is intended to be. The speaker said he was a great admirer of prohibition because it shows there is an attitude that the physical life is a solemn responsibility. Dr. Spalding spoke in an interesting and humorous vein of railroad transportation in some of the South American countries and his remarks caused much merriment among the half hundred men present.

We should be good neighbors, Dr. Spalding said. There is one art we all can cultivate. That is the supreme art of living together. One of the most sacred and solemn things in the world is starting a home. You must be careful not to be unfair in your judgment. A great deal of the beauty of life consists in keeping the affection warm in the home. It is the common things that make life worthwhile.

At the close of the meetings, about 9:30 o'clock, the team leaders and members held a conference on the subject of increasing the class attendance.

SURPRISE PARTY FOR HIS TWENTY-FIRST BIRTHDAY

Kenneth Culver was given a surprise party for his 21st birthday Wednesday evening at the home of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Charles H. Culver of 468 Main street, where a large party of relatives and friends enjoyed an evening of pinochle and whist. At the same time the fifth wedding anniversary of two of the guests, Mr. and Mrs. Harry Copeland, was celebrated.

Prizes were awarded to Mrs. J. B. Hough of Stafford, first ladies; and Miss Marguerite Suthill, second ladies; Mrs. William Grover, first gentlemen's; and William Grover, second at whist. At pinochle first ladies, Mrs. George H. Dolan; second ladies, Mrs. Harry Copeland; first gentlemen's, Ernest Disco; and second, Charles H. Culver.

Radio selections were heard during the evening and refreshments were served.

FINLEY PAYS FINE IN AUTOMOBILE CASE

Frank K. Finley, 33, a former resident of this city, who was arrested in Putnam Wednesday by State Policeman S. P. Streaman, paid a fine of $200 and costs, a total of $216.38 when his case was presented in the city court Thursday morning on the charge of disposing of an automobile which he held under a conditional bill of sale from the Norwich Used Car Exchange. Finley was given the alternative of paying the fine or being bound over to the May term of the criminal superior court.

Finley did not have the money at the court session but he was held at police headquarters until early afternoon when relatives came to his aid paid the fine and Finley left with his wife, who had come on here from Cherry Valley, Mass., after she heard of her husband's arrest.

SETTLEMENT IN SUIT FOR SERVICES RENDERED

Before the case came to trial in the superior court where it was assigned for Thursday before Judge Allyn L. Brown and a jury, a settlement was reached in the suit of Frank Sullivan of New London vs. James Francis McGarrity of this city, administrator of the estate of Katherine M. Sullivan, who lived in Norwich.

The estate amounted to about $3,000. Frank Sullivan sued on the claim that from Feb. 10, 1924 to Jan. 3, 1925, he rendered services for Mrs. James Sullivan and before that for her husband up to the time of his death. The plaintiff claimed that this was done because of a promise made by the aged couple that they would compensate him by will or otherwise, but this promise was not kept.

PRESENCE OF AURORA BOREALIS AFFECTS RADIO RECEPTION

CHICAGO, March 12 (AP)—Distance radio reception forecasts not only are considered possible but data obtained in unofficial tests made by a Chicago experimenter indicate that each listener, with a little study, can be his own forecaster.

Numerous factors were taken into consideration in making the forecasts. Prevailing weather conditions played a large part, with the temperature being given the most thought. Presence of the aurora borealis also was noted, and to it was attributed some of the poor receptions.

One feature was the fact that extreme cold seemed to have the opposite effect on reception than has been the general belief. Zero weather with clear skies developed the poorest nights. On cloudy, rainy or snowy nights conditions were reversed, with signals stronger and fading minor. Local static, however, was somewhat heavier but not of such a character as to be disagreeable.

The best reception periods were noted as coming with stabilized temperature. Either a falling or a rising thermometer affected signals to such an extent that at times difficulty was had in locating an average number of stations. Predictions of reception based upon the temperature nearly always could be relied upon.

Static predictions also were based largely on the same factors. Here it was noted that a steady temperature seemed to hold down this type of interference. The same was true of fading, which caused signals to come and go at regular intervals. "Blanketing," a phenomenon that tends to smother signals from all directions, appeared to be likewise governed. Whenever the northern lights were present, they intended to hold back signals, demonstrating that they must be given consideration.

Approaching and prevailing storms did not have the effect heretofore considered a detriment to good reception.

The research tended to bear out a statement by J. C. Jensen, of Nebraska Wesleyan university, that "signal strength is greatest with settled weather conditions." It also recalled comment made by a weather bureau official at Washington more than a year ago in which he said that such predictions were practicable to a certain extent.

In the tests the first prediction was made for the night of November 30, and the forecasts were continued until February 8. The predictions were made only weekly and were intended for Chicago's silent nights, which come each Monday. Of the 12 forecasts made in this period, eight were correct and four were not. Three of the latter were for nights with the temperature at zero or below, when the predicted good reception periods did not materialize.

There follows three examples of forecasts, with the weather conditions and reception results.

The two in which reception conditions were as predicted follow:

Feb. January 25—"Reception unsatisfactory, with static heavier than usual. Aurora borealis may be a factor in causing poor reception. Fading quite noticeable." On this night rain was experienced, with a falling temperature. The lowest point was about 15 degrees. The northern lights also were present as could be discerned by a glance at the sky.

For February 8—"With temperature fairly stable, conditions should be right for a fair to good night. Static will be minor with fading troublesome only at times. The weather was cloudy with snow and rain and with a stable temperature.

The forecast for the night of December 28, which was not borne out said:

"Reception average, with minimum static. Fading also average with no unusual conditions prevailing." The weather was clear, with the temperature dropping close to zero. Reception conditions were poor, static was very bad by 11 o'clock and fading was quite noticeable.

VETERAN MINSTREL SAYS CHARLESTON IS NOT NEW

HOLLYWOOD, Cal., March 11 (AP)—George Marion, of the original Dockstader minstrels, who is engaged in the films here, rises to declare that the Charleston, instead of being a new dance, is as old as minstrelsy itself.

Marion, who is celebrating his golden anniversary as an actor, says the leg-throwing, knee-shaking dance of today was evolved from the Twist, a step popular with the black faced minstrels a half century ago. Except that it is done to a slower tempo, the Charleston is much the same as the Twist which, Marion asserts, is an adaptation of the negro Essence, a barbaric ritual of Africa.

FISH FAMILY FINDS THIS A RIPE SEASON FOR LIFE

NEW YORK, March 12 (AP)—Several weeks of winter are still ahead according to the ground hog, most flowers are still sleeping and spring hats are milliners' fiction, but there are those who find the season just ripe for coming to life. They are members of the fish family, who are hatching now in New York's big aquarium.

Twenty-five thousand, gummy looking eggs of black-spotted trout, contained in six trays, are cracking at frequent intervals. The small black eyes which show through the transparent skin of the shells open on a chilly world, bodies a quarter of an inch long wriggle through the openings of the wire mesh tray to the open spaces of well cooled water. Fifty degrees is too cold for most spring swimmers, but the young trout find it just about right.

Originally shipped from a United States Fisheries in Michigan, they are publicly hatched in the aquarium as an educational feature. A few weeks after hatching, when the baby trout have absorbed their yolk-sack and have become independent bread-winners, they will travel again. In their refrigerated cases, to the lakes and streams in the region of the Palisades above New York.

Several thousand Chinook salmon, salmon already hatched and living a lively life in a tank adjoining the trout eggs, will reach a similar destination. Their eggs were shipped all the way from Oregon. Their itinerary habits are stranger than those of almost any other fish, said Mr. Louis V. Mowbray, director of the New York Aquarium.

"Salmon are a deep sea fish, and yet they have the habit of coming to fresh water to spawn. Far up the fresh streams and lakes of the Pacific coast or east, in Maine, they spawn. The young salmon find their way out to the ocean again, and for three years their locality and life is unknown to us. At the end of that time they will swim up to the fresh waters, but the intervening years are a mystery that no naturalist has solved.

"Fish seem to have some very acute sense that leads them each year back to their same spawning waters. Fish have been tagged one year at their destinations and checked again as they found their way out of the little inland lake or stream into a big river or the ocean. The next year the same fish will be found in the same obscure source-water—even if there have been dozens of intervening lakes and lakes."

A committee of the Yale college faculty, appointed to consider chapel service regulations, recommends that from the beginning of the next college year, students be not required to attend the Sunday service, believing that the exercise of compulsion in this regard has injured rather than helped religious interests."

Children's Colds

Best Treated Externally

CONSTANT dosing upsets little stomachs. Modern mothers prefer to treat children's colds externally—with Vicks VapoRub. They simply rub it on the throat and chest at bedtime.

Vicks acts two ways at once:

(1) Like the old-fashioned poultice in "drawing out" the soreness and pain; and, at the same time,

(2) Like a modern vapor lamp because the body heat releases the ingredients in the form of medicated vapors which are inhaled all night long. These loosen the phlegm and open the congested air passages.

Most colds yield by morning to this double direct action.

PLAINFIELD CLASHES WITH SO. KINGSTON TONIGHT IN THIRD GAME FOR TITLE

(Special to The Bulletin)

PLAINFIELD, March 11—Plainfield won the toss last Friday night so South Kingston comes to the community house, Friday for the third game of a five game series for the southern New England championship.

A beautiful loving cup suitably engraved, which was presented by the Bashman Athletic company of Providence is also at stake. The games now stand at one apiece.

Last Friday night's game at Plainfield was a scorcher from the start and as the game progressed it was very evident that both teams realized that there was more at stake than winning an ordinary basketball game. Friday night's game promises to be just as stubbornly contested.

After this series has been finished the winner will no doubt be pitted against a team representing one of the northern cities for the New England championship.

At a meeting of the managers of both teams it was decided that a neutral referee be used for the remaining games. Each manager will sanction the choice of the other. This does not mean to cast any reflection on the ability of the referees previously used but in view of the fact that this is a championship series it seemed advisable to procure a referee unknown to both teams. White of Hartford will officiate at Friday night's contest.

FIRST BASE AND SHORTSTOP BERTHS WORRY MANAGERS

NEW YORK, March 11—(AP)—Not a few of the worries which may be keeping big league managers awake nights at the southern training camps can be traced to infield problems, chiefly at first base and shortstop.

The task of filling these two important posts confronts at least half of the clubs in each of the major circuits, according to current reports from the scenes of conditioning activity.

The Yankees, in the process of a general shakeup, will try youngsters at both positions for the 1926 campaign. At first, Lou Gehrig had sufficient experience last year to lift him out of the rookie class but he remains somewhat of a gamble. Tony Lazzeri, home run king of the minors from Salt Lake City is being primed for the shortstop job.

The veteran Wally Pipp, let out of the American league despite the fact that both Cleveland and the Athletics sought him, is expected to fill Cincinnati's first base hole. The world's champion Pirates have the problem of utilizing the youngster, Grantham, or veteran, McInnis. Connie Mack is concerned over whether Joe Hauser's knee will withstand the strain of regular play again after a year's lay-off. Detroit has the reliable Bluege at first but Manager Ty Cobb had cast an eye toward Sheedy, Baltimore first sacker, who is priced at $30,000.

The Washington Senators are drilling an understudy, Buddy Myer, to take Peckinpaugh's role at shortstop if the veteran shows any signs of skidding as he did during the world's series. Brooklyn has an expensive shortstop acquisition in Butler, from Minneapolis, but he may be shifted to second if Ral it Maranville displays a comeback in his old post at short. The White Sox gave a half dozen candidates battling for the shortfield job, with no outstanding star in sight.

STECHER QUITS RING AND FORFEITS TITLE

BOSTON, Mach 11.—(AP)—Joe Stecher, who claims the world's heavyweight wrestling championship, forfeited any claim he may have to the title to Joe Malcewics of Utica, N. Y., here tonight. Stecher who was matched to meet "Paul Bowser's Unknown" jumped from the ring when Malcewicz stepped through the ropes and failed to return within the ten minutes given him by Referee Leon Burbank.

Stecher declared that he had no idea that he was to meet Malcewicz and that if he had he would have refused to go on with the bout. When the wrestler hopped from the ring, Referee Burbank announced he could have ten minutes to come back and start the bout, or forfeit any claim he might have to the title.

Promoter Bowser said that Stecher was to have received $12,500 for his end of the match, but that the wrestler failed to "come round and claim his money."

The affair which resulted in a pandemonium in the audience, started after Jake Bressler, of Des Moines, entered the empty ring and sat down in the corner. Stecher entered, and the crowd, expecting a better match, howled its disapproval. Then Malcewicz, who was seated fully clothed at the ringside, jumped up, disrobed to his fighting trunks and leaped into the ring. Stecher then dove under the ropes and so did Bressler.

By this time the place was in an uproar. The announcer gave his ten minute warning to Stecher and the referee accordingly announced that Stecher had forfeited his claim to the world title.

HOFF BETTERS WORLD'S MARK FOR BROAD JUMP

WASHINGTON, March 11.—(AP)—Charley Hoff, pole vault extraordinary, who is making Georgetown university his training headquarters, today displayed another of his athletic wares by unofficially breaking the world's indoor broad jump record, at 23 feet eight inches. He is preparing for the all-round contest to be held under Knights of Columbus auspices at Madison Square Garden, New York, March 16.

The world's indoor broad jump record is officially placed at 23 feet and one and one-eighth inches, Georgetown sport authorities said, and is held by William A. Dowding, who made it a year ago at New York in an intercollegiate contest.

Emerson Norton of Georgetown will also participate in the all-round contest next week.

SUZANNE'S PAPA PEEVED AT U. S. NEWSPAPER COMMENT

NICE, France, March 11.—(AP)—Helen Wills, the American champion won another easy victory on the tennis courts today when she advanced a step in the women's singles of the Nice tournament by defeating Miss Joan Ridley, a member of the British Wighman cup team, 6-0, 6-2.

Miss Wills, after winning the first set, did some little experimentation with her service, and lost the first two games of the second set. Then she went on and won out as she pleased. She has 60 victories out of 64 games to her credit in the past 48 hours, notwithstanding the fact that she is suffering from a severe cold.

"Papa" Lenglen, father of Suzanne, is somewhat wrought up about comments on the great French champion's temperament appearing in clippings from American newspapers.

Having given vent to his wrath, he declared today: "From now on Suzanne will refuse to grant interviews to American reporters."

Mlle. Lenglen's father had reference to certain charges that Suzanne lacked physical courage and sportsmanship, which, he said warmly, all those close to Suzanne know are unfounded.

Mlle. Lenglen was less perturbed. She denied reports that her daughter was returning to Nice Sunday for an exhibition game, which is considered the only way of saving the tournament financially.

EASTERN LEAGUE WILL OPEN SEASON APRIL 22

ALBANY, N. Y., March 11—(AP)—A playing schedule of 154 games, with the opening dates on April 22 and 24, was adopted at a meeting of the Eastern league here today.

"It was a harmonious meeting," said President Dan O'Neil after the session was over, "and one of the best I have ever presided over."

These will be the opening games: Springfield at Albany, Pittsfield at Providence, Bridgeport at New Haven, Hartford at Waterbury. The first two games will be on April 24 and the last two on April 22.

The situation at Bridgeport was cleared up with announcement that Timothy J. Sullivan, franchise holder, would operate the club with Paddy O'Connor, former Albany and Hartford leader, as manager, in the event that pending negotiations with Bridgeport interests for the sale of the club fail.

Albany and Hartford will have 16 Sunday games at home and Waterbury, Bridgeport, New Haven and Providence are scheduled for 14 each. Albany and Hartford will play seven Sunday games away from home, and the others eight each.

GERMAN TENNIS STAR TO FIGHT FEDERATION RULING

BERLIN, March 11—(AP)—Frau Nelly Neppach, German tennis champion, will make a fight against the decision of the German tennis federation's executive board by which she is "disqualified" from participation in German tennis tournaments until further notice.

This is the punishment meted out to her for taking part in the tennis tournaments in the Riviera, France.

The German body contends that although Frau Neppach was technically entered as an Austrian, which was possible as she is married to an Austrian, yet she remains under German jurisdiction, since, hitherto, she had always represented Germany. Her action was branded by the executive board as "an untactful violation of discipline."

Frau Neppach recently returned from the Riviera where she was defeated by Helen Wills, the American champion.

YALE WEEKLY COMMENTS ON TICKET BOOST

NEW HAVEN, March 11—(AP)—Commenting on the action of Yale, Harvard and Princeton in raising the price of tickets for the "Big Three" football games to $5, the Yale Alumni Weekly will say tomorrow:

"The move is not to glorify football for the few, but to let its public support, which has never been so great as today, work for the benefit of the many.

"To the average graduate, the advance in the price of his football ticket will be next to no consequence at all. The single item of the cost of his ticket is almost negligible in the total that he probably spends on a trip to New Haven or Cambridge or Princeton. There will be no serious graduate objection to the new scale, once the purpose behind it, which is not for heavier football, costs but for better general athletic equipment, is understood."

MISS RYAN WINS DIXIE TENNIS WOMEN'S TITLE

TAMPA, Fla., March 11.—(AP)—Miss Elizabeth Ryan, of Santa Monica, California, today won the Dixie women's singles tennis title, and, with Mrs. Hildegarde Taylor of Boston, won the doubles title. Miss Ryan defeated Miss Mary K. Browne, New York, for the singles title 6-3, 8-6.

Miss Ryan and Mrs. Taylor conquered Miss Browne and Mrs. Louise Raymond of New York in straight sets, 6-3, 6-4.

TORONTO, Ont., March 11.—(AP)—The St. Patrick's drew up on even terms with the New York Americans for first position in the National Hockey League standing by defeating the Canadians tonight 6 to 3, while the Americans were losing to the Maroons.

TUNNEY STRIBLING BOUT SLATED FOR TONIGHT AT MIAMI MAY FALL THROUGH

MIAMI, Fla., March 11.—(AP)—Despite the action of Billy Gibson in calling off the fight here tomorrow night between Gene Tunney and W. L. (Young Stribling), Jesse Baugh, the promoter, said tonight that he hoped the bout would be held.

H. Lester Quigg, chief of police in Miami, declared late today he would make Gibson go through with the fight if he could find him. Chief Quigg said he had a warrant for Gibson charging him with passing a worthless check for $2,540. The warrant was sworn out in West Palm Beach by William Dietch.

Tunney declared he would abide by the orders of his manager. Numerous fight fans visited Tunney this afternoon and urged him to go through with the fight, regardless of Gibson. Tunney, however, declined to do anything without Gibson's orders.

Early in the day Gibson announced that the fight was off because promoter Baugh had not paid the guarantee and had no money in sight to meet it. Immediately after making the announcement Gibson disappeared.

It was reported in the afternoon that the city commission had been called in session to consider forcing Tunney and Stribling to go through with the fight. This was denied by Frank H. Wharton. He said that the commission had no jurisdiction and could not take any action in the matter.

An offer by a group of Miami business men to practically underwrite the fight failed to cause Gibson to change his stand.

"Young" Stribling

STRIBLING WILL BE IN THE RING TONIGHT

MIAMI, Fla., March 11.—(AP)—W. L. (Young) Stribling will fight at Hialeah, tomorrow night and fill his contract for a scheduled appearance, regardless of financial arrangements, "Pa" Stribling, his father-manager, said tonight.

"W. L. and I are ready for this fight, and it would certainly be a shame if the affair did not go through as arranged. We came down for the bout and W. L. is going in the ring for the ten round match, for the money first, but if there is no financial settlement, then for the love of the game," he declared.

GOV. MARTIN ORDERS THAT FIGHT BE CALLED OFF

TALLAHASSEE, Fla., March 11.—(AP)—Gov. Martin today telegraphed Sheriff Henry Chase of Dade County, to prevent the Tunney-Stribling exhibition bout scheduled for Hialeah tomorrow night.

The governor's telegram was sent after William Gibson, manager of Gene Tunney, had called off the fight because of alleged unsatisfactory financial conditions. It was explained at the executive mansion that Governor Martin was confined to his bed with influenza and that, against his physician's orders, the matter was presented to him today after several long distance calls and telegrams had been received advising the governor to take some action to prevent the fight.

HAGENLACHER TAKES BILLIARD TITLE FROM SCHAEFER

PHILADELPHIA, March 11—(AP)—Eric Hagenlacher of Germany, tonight dethroned Jake Schaefer, of Chicago, as world's 18.2 balkline billiard champion, finishing the third and final 500 point block with a lead of 1,500 to 1,344.

Going into the final 500-point block with a lead of 364 caroms—1,000 to 636, Hagenlacher, the first representative of Germany to annex the title, altered badly at the end as Schaefer cut down his generous advantage with rally after rally.

As in the second block Schaefer outplayed his rival tonight, 708 to 500, but the big lead which the European player had obtained in the first block by winning at 500 to 17, was too great a handicap for him to surmount.

RICHARDS AND HARADA IN FLORIDA TENNIS FINAL

PALM BEACH, Fla., March 11.—(AP)—Takeiichi Harada, Japan and Vincent Richards, Yonkers, N. Y., advanced to the finals of the Florida championship tennis tournament here today.

In the doubles, Lang and Fred C. Baggs, of New York won from Horace B. Chase, II, New York, and Hoyt Smith, Chicago, 6-2, 6-2.

Harada and A. H. Chapin, Jr., of Springfield, Mass., defeated A. J. Drexel Biddle, Jr., and Maurice Fatio, of Philadelphia, 6-3, 6-1.

M'NAMARA AND GEORGETTI STILL LEAD IN BIKE RACE

NEW YORK, March 11—(AP)—McNamara and Georgetti were still leading the six day bicycle riders at the Madison Square Garden tonight, doggedly outriding all who tried to wrest the coveted place from them during the night sprints. Beckham and Stockholm gained two laps on the field putting them one lap behind the leaders.

Gustave Froelich, Germany's best back stroke artist, failed to place in the third heat of the 100 yard men's handicap and left the pool forthwith.

There Will be No Fight

MIAMI, Fla., March 11—(AP)—The promoters and financial backers of the proposed ten-round no-decision bout tomorrow night between Gene Tunney, and W. L. (Young) Stribling, announced late tonight plans to schedule the fight had been definitely abandoned. Billy Gibson, Tunney's manager, had announced the fight cancelled today.

NO RADICAL CHANGES IN HARVARD COACHING

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., March 11.—(AP)—No radical changes in Harvard's football system will be made next year as a result of Arnold Horween's appointment as head coach, he announced tonight. Horween accepted the position from the committee on the regulation of athletics yesterday and succeeds Robert T. Fisher, resigned.

"I am not coming to Harvard to initiate any new football system," said the new coach. "Harvard football is still fundamentally sound and it is my intention to build on the foundations already laid. Of course, my connection with the game since graduation has been mostly in the middle west, and I naturally have imbibed what I consider the modern ideas of that section.

After a conference today with John R. Burke, next year's football manager and Captain-elect Clem Coady, Horween announced he would speak to the football candidates at a meeting next Monday night. He will leave for his home in Chicago soon afterward and does not expect to return to Cambridge until spring practice starts on April 27, the day after the Easter holidays are over.

Horween said today that none of his staff of assistants had been chosen and that the complete roster of coaches probably will not be known until the middle of the summer.

Although many names have been discussed since Horween's appointment yesterday, only one man has been regarded as almost certain of an assistant's berth. He is Eddie Casey, running mate to Horween in more than one big game who has been coaching Tufts for several seasons. It is known that Casey has applied for a position on next year's staff and his appointment as a result of his association with Horween in college is considered more than probable.

RAIN CALLS HALT ON SPRING TRAINING ACTIVITIES

CHICAGO, March 11—(AP)—More rain and more players descended among the spring training camps of the big league baseball clubs, today, to participate in curtailed workouts on the slow diamonds.

At Shreveport, La., the Chicago White Sox ventured from their quarters for a two-hour batting practice and to meet the four regulars who arrived. Earl Sheely, first baseman, Hollis Thurston and George Connally, regular pitchers, and Bill Barrett, outfielder.

Adolfo Luque put in his appearance at the Orlando camp of the Cincinnati Reds and declared himself fit and not bothered by an appendicitis operation in January. The game with Cleveland was called because of the morning's downpour, but the belated arrival of the sun kept the Reds on the field during the afternoon.

The Detroit Tigers spent a brief session on their muddy Georgia diamond but the monotony of the cheaper games was broken by a telegram from Ty Cobb, recuperating in Baltimore, saying he would arrive Monday and take charge of the third week's practice. Kenneth Holloway reported for work.

A light drill occupied the Cleveland players. It developed that George Burns, first baseman spiked yesterday at Lakeland, will be out for several days at least.

Six hundred San Antonio, Texas, fans braved football weather and watched the St. Louis Cardinals beat the local Bears, 12 to 2.

The St. Louis Americans in Tarpon Springs Fla., delved in the mysteries of bunting and had a long infield drill. The Browns play their second exhibition of the season Saturday with Brooklyn at Clearwater.

Los Angeles doctors, examining X-rays of Grover Alexander's right ankle, expressed belief that the fracture reported discovered is an old one, possibly slight strained.

Boston University Wins Again.

BOSTON, March 11.—(AP)—Boston University's rifle team defeated University of Vermont 1,944 ot 1,879 in last week's match, telegraphic results show. B. U.'s score is the highest made in the New England intercollegiate rifle league this season.

DANIELSON TAKES FAST GAME FROM WEBSTER

(Special to The Bulletin)

DANIELSON, March 11—The snappy St. Joseph's team of Webster which has earned an enviable record in Massachusetts by the fine brand of basketball they have been playing met defeat in town hall tonight at the hands of the flashy Danielson town team, 28 to 22, before a large and ardent crowd of fans. The Webster boys were outplayed throughout the game and although they put up a fine game were rather rough in the last half but found Danielson with them at all times. The refereeing in the last half was rather lose which was the cause of much of the roughness of play.

Teddy Reeves of Danielson, an ex-Connecticut Aggie man, who has been playing a snappy game at forward for Danielson came through with 4 field goals and three fouls to his credit which was a big factor in Danielson's victory. The remainder of the Danielson team played a good brand of ball and the honors were equally divided.

Kujawski of Webster played a smashing game and was credited with five baskets. Many of the fans considered this the fastest game of the season. The summary:

MOVIES REMOVE TEDIUM OF MUSIC LESSON HERE

ROCHESTER, N. Y., March 11—(AP)—The youngster who has no liking for music lessons but finds keen delight in the movies, would find the agony of the lesson reduced and the pleasure of the movie augmented were he to attend this institution where the two are combined.

The lessons are given in a miniature motion picture theater, and the embryo musicians, as he practices, can erase simultaneously upon instrument and pictures. More than that, he can make his own music for the pictures, and possibly select the pictures to suit his mood and his music.

In the Eastman School of Music, a department of the University of Rochester, a course is given for motion picture organists. Of course there is some work in connection. The would-be organists must study technique, theory, take piano lessons, learn the elements of harmony and acquire for themselves an extensive repetoire of selections.

But the movies are underlying and essential and the students spend no little time each week in playing an organ in a miniature movie theater. There is a tiny screen at one end of the auditorium upon which are thrown films of various types taken from the school's library of seventy reels—scenics, news reels, cartoons, feature pictures and the like. About a dozen seats accomodate the "audience," usually members of the class.

Across the rear of the hall is a desk for the teacher, and at one side is the practice motion picture organ, with all the "trick stops" which produce "orchestral effects" to suit the action of the picture.

An optimist is a man who insists upon believing that every one is comfortable because he is.

Trend Of The Labor Movement In Italy

ROME, March 11—(AP)—Declaring that capitalists really are captains of industry and that capital and labor are not necessarily antagonistic entities, but that the one is the complement of the other, Premier Mussolini today obtained the senate's approval of the bill, introduced by the fascist government, establishing labor magistrates, compulsory arbitration between employers and other labor reforms. The vote on the bill was 139 of 27.

The premier described the bill as "the most audacious, most courageous and most revolutionary reform yet made by the fascist government during its tenure of power.

After rapidly sketching the history of the fascist trade union movement, the premier stated that the fascist syndicalist organization now counts over two million members.

Replying to Senator Professor Achille Loria, who had stated that the modern trend of the labor movement was toward internationalism, Mussolini asked: "Was not the whole doctrine of Gompers (Samuel Gompers, president of the American Federation of Labor, who died in December 1924) in America the most egotistical expression of proletarian chauvinism, leading to manifestations of uncompromising exclusion against all peoples, all races?"

"Fascism," continued Mussolini, "recognizes and approves the function of capitalism in the state, being convinced that capitalism with all its virtues and defects still has centuries of life before it.

"Capitalists are today captains of industry, swaying the fate of thousands of workmen and asking in return for their efforts nothing but the success of their industries, which means the well being of the nation and thus have the right of the utmost protection the government can give them.

"The government, therefore, must take measures to insure class collaboration, because capital and labor are not two necessarily antagonistic entities, but one is the complement of the other."

Signor Mussolini predicted the success of labor legislation because it was the intention of fascism to educate the masses by expelling the unworthy and lazy and by encouraging those showing ability.

He reminded the senate that the struggle for life was becoming ever more difficult and no nation could afford the luxury of oft-repeated strikes.

"A single hour lost by a great factory," he said, "is a serious loss to the whole nation."

BURGESS BEDTIME STORIES

Bobby Coon Goes Back to Bed

Who stays at home in bed will be
From danger in a measure free.
—Bobby Coon.

Bobby Coon has a way of waking up once in a while in the winter and coming forth to see if it is time to stay up; but until spring really arrives he usually goes back to bed again after a short look around. It happened that Bobby felt the touch of spring in the air. Perhaps he heard the sap going up in the tree in which he had been spending the winter, for although that tree was hollow, it was not dead, and it was a maple. Anyway, Bobby Coon awoke, yawned a few times, stretched and finally climbed up to his doorway. The sun was shining; the air was soft. For a long time Bobby sat there, enjoying both. What he didn't enjoy was the sight of the snow which still covered the ground.

"Mistress Spring isn't here yet, after all," mumbled Bobby. "No, sir, Mistress Spring isn't here, after all. Just the same, I think I'll take a little walk. I think I'll look around a bit."

Bobby started to climb down from the doorway of his home, when suddenly he heard a familiar voice. It was the voice of Sammy Jay. Sammy was screaming "Thief! Thief! Thief!" as only Sammy can. Bobby paused. He knows Sammy Jay so well that he knows when Sammy means a thing and when he is trying to fool some one. He knew that now Sammy saw some one and that this was a real danger signal.

"Probably he sees Reddy Fox or Old Man Coyote," mumbled Bobby Coon to himself. "I never saw such a fellow as Sammy Jay. He is forever crying 'Thief!' Whoever it is that Sammy sees is coming this way, for Sammy is following, and he is coming nearer. Perhaps it is Buster Bear. I'll stay right here until whoever it is has passed."

So Bobby, without changing his position waited and watched. "Thief! Thief! Thief!" cried Sammy Jay, a little nearer. A few moments later it was nearer still: "Thief! Thief! Thief!"

And then Bobby Coon very nearly lost his balance and fell. Yes, sir, he came very near doing that very thing. His eyes looked as if they were going to jump right out of his head. His mouth hung open as if he had lost the power of closing it. Moving silently, easily, came what looked to Bobby like Black Pussy, Farmer Brown's Cat, with a yellowish coat instead of a black coat, and grown to be a giant. Bobby hadn't believed that such a big Cat lived in all the world. Of course, you know who it was. It was puma the Panther, the Mountain Lion.

Just then Puma looked up and saw Bobby. Bobby saw the hungry look in Puma's eyes. With a bound Puma was at the foot of that tree. Then, and only then, did Bobby Coon move. He turned and scrambled back into his house, and he wasn't any too soon in getting there. He heard the claws of Puma the Panther on the bark as Puma came up the trunk of that tree. He heard Puma sniff at the doorway. And as Bobby listened little cold chills played tag all over him. He felt very small and helpless. He hadn't had such a feeling of fright since he was a very little fellow. He heard Puma snarl with disappointment as he bore at the edge of the opening and failed to tear it larger. It was then that Bobby Coon decided to stay abed. He decided that he would stay abed just as long as he possibly could sleep. He hadn't any desire to go outside.

Wet Leader Accepts Dry Challenge

Congressman John Philip Hill, who has been leading the congressional fight in the House of Representatives for the modification of the Volstead act, accepted the challenge of Congressman Blanton of Texas and offered to go through a proposition to test the potency of Baltimore beer. Congressman Hill in the House of Representatives during a spirited debate on prohibition offered to prove how far from being "Near" the city's beer is by drinking all that he could hold and if he was inebriate when he got through, he would donate $100.00 to the Anti Saloon League.

Paris shopkeepers still talk of "putting up the shutters" at closing time, but actually they pull them down. The quaint, many-paned shop windows familiar in the old illustrations to the "Songs" of Beranger and the Cruikshank and Phiz drawings for Dickens' works, have disappeared to make way for great solid iron "curtains," which are hauled down with a lever. The old windows, charming, cob-webbed and gaslit, remain in a few out-of-the-way parts of Paris.

Celluloid windows in arched gothic style admit light and a canopy extends outward from the doorway.

After Sickness Get Strong Quick

New Pleasant Way to Take Cod Liver Oil—Puts On Weight.

Nothing like the wonderful vitalizing vitamines in Cod Liver Oil to help convalescing people to quickly get strong and well—everybody knows that.

But nobody wants to take the fish-smelling, horrible tasting, stomach upsetting oil itself, so nowadays up to date medical men are ordering a tablet of Cod Liver Oil and it surely has proved a blessing to thousands of people who have been sapped of their natural strength after a severe illness and especially after the Grippe or a stubborn cough or cold.

Ask Lee & Osgood or any druggist for a box of McCoy's Cod Liver Oil Compound Tablets. They cost but little, are sugar coated and as pleasant to take as candy.

Skinny men and women take them to speedily put on plenty of good healthy solid flesh and for this purpose they are so extremely good that thin men and women often take on 5 pounds or more in 30 days. As a matter of fact, your druggist is authorized to return your money if you don't take on 5 pounds in 30 days.

Be sure and ask for McCoy's the original and genuine Cod Liver Oil Compound Tablets—60 Tablets — 60 cents.

JEWISH RELIEF DRIVE SPEAKERS STIR WORKERS TO GREAT ENTHUSIASM

Norwich United Jewish Relief committee held its first campaign supper at the T. M. H. A. rooms on Wednesday night, with an attendance of over 100 people, who enjoyed a spiritual treat never to be forgotten. The honored guests of the supper were Samuel J. Weil, of New Haven, Connecticut chairman of the $15,000,000 United Jewish Campaign, Joseph Ullman, one of New Haven's leading citizens in civic, charitable and political activities, and Rabbi J. Levenberg head of the New Haven Rabinical college. The supper was prepared under the direction of the women of the relief committe and was served by the young women of the Y. W. H. A. Abner Schwartz the general chairman of the Norwich United Relief committee opened the ceremonies, by welcoming the guests and the entire gathering, and thanking them for the fine enthusiasm and readiness to come to the assistance of the afflicted Jewish people in Europe. He then turned the meeting over to Max Hanover, who is in executive charge of the drive.

Mr. Hanover, in outlining the campaign, said that the purpose of the gathering was to unite all the Jewish people in town, into one great moral and charitable force, to stand solidly in support of the great men who have undertaken the noble and humanitarian duty of raising $15,000,000 in the United States—the most charitable land in the world. He also said that in this fateful hour when the Jewish people in Europe are facing a great calamity, there ought not and should not be one dissenting Jewish man who will stay away from this great cause. The toastmaster paid a tribute to the honored guests by saying that they possess the experience, learning and eloquence to produce the inspiration, which will move the moral and charitable forces stored up in the heart of every man and woman present. This statement proved literally true as each speaker was introduced.

The first speaker of the evening was Samuel J. Weil. Introducing Mr. Weil, Max Hanover said that he was confronted with a difficult task, not knowing the titles attributed to Mr. Weil's name, however, he knew of one title which ought to thrill the heart of every man and woman present, and that was, that Mr Weil, as chairman of the Connecticut state, promised to bring in the state solid, for the $15,000,000 relief campaign. As Mr. Weil came forward to speak, the audience rose and gave him a great ovation. In a few brief words Mr. Weil told that he had been planning a much earned vacation, with a trip around the world, but instead, he is working harder for this drive than he ever did in his life. He could not at this crisis in the history of the Jewish nation in Europe, go out for a good time and that duty has first call upon him. He assured the gathering that he is very confident that Connecticut will do its whole duty in this drive

Joseph Ullman spoke next, exhorting his hearers to do their entire duty for the sake of humanity. He said that since the great World war, the people of the United States have taught the world a lesson in giving charity on a scale never heard of since creation. But the reward for this charitableness of our people is that the Lord made our nation the richest, noblest and most powerful nation since the beginning of time. Mr. Ullman also said that the people of Norwich are known as the most charitable people of any city in Connecticut.

The dramatic climax of the evening was by Rabbi Levenberg. The rabbi possesses most extraordinary powers of eloquence and a line of learned reasoning, which is astounding. He also possesses a very dramatic and forceful delivery and for about an hour held the audience spell-bound by his oratory. While picturing the terrible plight of the unfortunates in Europe, strong men and women present broke down, shedding tears for suffering humanity. As Rabbi Levenberg finished his address, the toastmaster said that no words of his are adequate in praise of such wonderful oratory and that the only fitting reward to the great effort of the rabbi, would be the answer to the question "how many of those present are willing to enlist as active workers in this drive?" Let them signify by rising. In answer the audience rose to a man, amidst great and enthusiastic applause.

An organization of captains and workers was then formed out of those present who volunteered. Each captain is to have a team of five workers and those whose teams were not completed at the meeting, promised to have their teams completed at the next organization meeting. Captains and workers are as follows: Captain, Harry M. Land; workers, Morris Sussman; captain, Dr. Charles W. Solomon; workers Simon Solomon, Mrs. Belle Solman, Josiah Greenstein and Miss Thelma Solomon; captain, Dr. Meyer S. Goldberg; captain, Simon Rosano; workers, Rabbi Stam, Nathan Weisinger, A. CONFLICT OF WOMEN CAREERS STUDIED BY STORM JAMESON

NEW YORK, March 11 (AP)—Women of the present generation need to have called to their attention the conflict between a career at home as a wife and mother and a career in the business world, believes Storm Jameson, the author, who devotes much of her writing to the problem.

"Too many of the best of modern women undertake to make a success of all three phases of their life without realizing that they must sacrifice the most important—a successful mother," she says.

"The results are of wider scope than just an individual tragedy here and there for they affect the future of the race. We find that the women who might be the best mothers and might give us the finest children are prevented from fulfilling that function because they enter upon the struggle for career without realizing the conflict that exists between success in business and success at home."

In her latest book, Miss Jameson, who is herself married and has one child, considers this question

The man who is constantly in the public eye is apt to get an occasional rub from the public knuckle.

McCoy's Rinolin Greatest Help When Constipation Is Chronic

Why Purge Yourself Daily When This Modern Emulsion Will Establish Regular and Natural Bowel Movements In 10 Days or Money Back?

Seems too good to be true, but after you thoroughly remove the waste deposits and expel every particle of poisonous waste from the intestines, the active peristalsis that results will make you forget pills and salts and calomel and all purgatives and cathartics for weeks to come.

And when your bowels move regularly as nature intended they should move, what a difference it will make in you—and all for the better.

Your skin will be clearer and cleaner for one thing and your eyes will sparkle with healthy brightness; for constipation surely does cause dull eyes and sallow skin.

Yes; and your mind will be keener, too, and vigorous physical activity will take the place of lassitude, tiredness and lack of ambition.

For habitual constipation is a condition that is so unnatural that often the blood becomes polluted with the toxins that seep into every fibre of the system—often causing auto-intoxication.

But now McCoy's Rinolin, the new, pleasant to take emulsion, tells millions of unfortunate victims of constipation that if they will follow directions for ten days—perhaps less—that bowels will become regular and natural and stay that way for many days to come.

McCoy's Rinolin is the new Emulsion that Lee & Osgood Co. and druggists everywhere are selling so much of. It is guaranteed to rid you of habitual constipation in 10 days or money back—just follow the directions. Rinolin tonight—Pep tomorrow.

NEW LONDON-GROTON FERRY BOAT TOO BIG FOR DWINDLING BUSINESS

(Special to the Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, March 11—This city has been supporting the operation of the ferry between New London and Groton to the extent of paying 50 per cent of the cost and assuming the same proportion of the expense that appears each year in the audit of a board. That expense at one period of the business of the ferry has remained by the members of the Common Council body has endeavored to keep expenses down and has succeeded, but at best the boat cannot earn anything like what will pay for the cost of operation. It was proposed some months ago that a smaller boat be placed on the line since a boat would accommodate all the travel except that of vehicles, which furnish but a small portion of the ferry business. The boat the city now owns it is proposed to sell. It has been admitted though, that the winter season is not the time to dispose of a boat to the best advantage. City Manager Hall and George Chapman, the latter captain of the ferry boat are in New York today looking over the prospects that may answer this city for a ferry boat. It is proposed to sell the Mohegan and operate a steamer on the line that will carry only foot passengers. An open boat will not answer the requirements of the patrons of the ferry and it is doubtful whether Groton selectmen would consent to pay any portion of the expense of the operation of such a boat, so the craft that displaces the Mohegan will be a boat with a cabin. There will be some expense involved in the reconstruction of slips on either side of the river to accommodate a smaller boat, but that expense will be assumed by the city. The highway bridge over the Thames took the cream off the ferryline milk, for the patronage of that structure is many times greater than is that of the ferry. Indeed there is no automobile business for the boat.

WEST MYSTIC MESSENGER STOLE RADIO SETS, THE CLAIM

(Special to the Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, March 11—Walter P. Swan, messenger in the employ of the American Railway Express company and residing in West Mystic, will be in the Groton town court Monday morning next, charged with theft. Swan was taken into custody late yesterday at his home by Inspectors Haney and Given, of the express company and an officer from the state police barracks Groton. He was admitted to bail and furnished a surety on his bond of $500 for his court appearance.

Swan, it is alleged, is guilty of having stolen several radio sets in transit between New London and Providence. The alleged thefts occurred last October and November, at which time Swan was a messenger between the two cities. Company inspectors became suspicious of Swan and precipitated the arrest after tracing Swan's activities for a number of weeks. The officers state that a part of the stolen radio outfits was found at the residence of the accused.

Toney Aronchuk has kept away from the police court a long time, but he appeared this morning, charged with intoxication and breach of peace. The second offense grew out of Tony's drunken condition. He became abusive to his wife and she would not stand that, so she asked for his arrest. There was no doubt as to the guilt of Tony so he admitted the offenses.

Probation officer Mansfield has had considerable experience with Tony and he expressed the belief that the accused man could do better than he was now accused of doing. The court sentenced him to spend ten days in jail on each offense and then suspended execution of the judgment.

Herbert Levy was charged with violation of the traffic ordinance in parking his car on the east side of Bank street in a restricted area. He admitted the offense, but explained that he was not intentionally guilty. Judgment was suspended in his case, but he was fined against another offense.

Commissioner of Motor Vehicles Robbins B. Stoeckel today ordered the operator's license of George Halbedachi of State street, recently suspended, to be returned to the owner.

Mrs. Frederick Hornbeck, of Old Lyme, a patient at Lawrence Memorial Associated hospital, was able to return to her home today.

Station House Keeper Frank Corcoran, who has been confined to his home, 57 Garfield avenue several days because of illness, resumed his duties today.

Policewoman Jane Cassidy, ill at her home on Franklin street for a week, reported to Captain Charles A. Pfitney for duty today.

Frances Lena Hamilton has sold a building lot on Vauxhall street to Manuel Vera.

Members of the city council are realizing how wisely they decided when they abandoned the scheme to sewer outer Broad street and latteral streets. That plan would have cost the city a tremendous sum of money and it would have been very expensive for the persons owning real estate in that section. The land that would be benefitted is not such as would be built upon soon if indeed it would ever come into the market as desirable for building sites. That would have necessitated the placing of leins upon the land and there the incumbrance would have been likely to remain until the land was taken for the taxes upon it. The whole project it is estimated would have cost the city between $40,000 and $50,000 and very little property would have received direct benefit. The scheme was a wild one and is so recognized now.

What view the committee of the council will take of the matter of assessing the cost of an outfall sewer upon property in the Riverside Heights section, in the event that sewers are constructed there, is not known. There are two members of the council and perhaps others who are inclined to the opinion that the city cannot reasonably assess the cost of construction of an outfall that carries sewage to the river channel. There is doubt also whether the property should be assessed for a filtration plan that the state requires the city to provide when sewage is carried into the river. There is no doubt that the outfall is a part of the sewer system and that it must be provided, but it is doubtful whether the city can lawfully collect from property situated where the sewage must be carried directly into the river, when the custom has been to assess other properties only for the construction of the sewer directly in front of the premises which are served by it. In no instance, it is believed, has the city charged any part of the cost of the outfall sewer, that accommodates the sewage from properties in the heart of the city, against the properties sewered. The city must provide the outfall. It is held that the city and not the property must furnish that outfall as part of the method of taking care of the sewage. In the case of the Riverside Heights sewer the expense of an outfall sewer and the filtration scheme would be very large, indeed it would be perhaps 25 per cent of the cost of digging the trenches, for barges must be hired and the pipe must be laid under water, which work would be slow and costly. Divers would also be necessary in the placing of the sewer pipe and all the apparatus that goes with the employment of the diver must of necessity be paid for.

It was predicted when the aerial ladder was purchased for the fire department that some accident would occur because the men who are using it were unaccustomed to that work and because the ladders were so long that they could only be handled with difficulty. But the ladder has now been in use at several fires, and, thanks to good work, no mishap has occurred.

The New Haven railroad is hauling some very heavy freights through this city at present, but there seems to be little coal in the cars except on Sundays. That is supposed to be by arrangement either for the convenience of the road or for the mines accommodation.

Mrs. Rufus Church, 57 Lewis street, and Mrs. George Rowley, Waterford, patients at Home Memorial hospital, were dismissed today.

Frederick Beauchamp, 17, 14 New London road, Mystic, died at Lawrence hospital last night where he had been under treatment but a few days for typhoid fever.

William Leckie, Brookline, Mass., formerly of New London, was a visitor to this city today.

Dr. Ross E. Black, Montauk avenue, is at Huntington, Pa., to which city he was summoned yesterday by the death of his brother-in-law, Oscar H. Irwin.

Death came to the two days old son of Mr. and Mrs. Blaie Sallese, 45 Orchard street, this morning at Lawrence hospital.

Mrs. Harriet O. Brooks, 81, widow of John C. Brooks, died this morning at the residence of her nephew, Alfred O. Colby, West Mystic, following an illness of seven weeks. She is survived besides her nephew, by two grandnieces, Alice and Elizabeth Burrows Colby, both of Mystic. Mr. Brooks was born in Old Mystic, the daughter of the late Alfred Avery Olsen and Alicia Brown. Mrs. Brooks had been a member of the Mystic Methodist church many years.

Mrs. G. A. Keeney and Miss Constance W. Bragaw, 27 Blinman street are spending a few days with friends in New York.

Miss Mary Grippo, 64 Shaw street, and employed as supervisor at the local telephone exchange is visiting in New York and Philadelphia.

Director of Finance Carey Congdon, 43 Granite street, is confined to his home suffering from a severe attack of the grip.

Edward Cody, clerk at the New London post office, has been transferred to duty at the Groton post office. Robert Kelley, letter carrier, Groton, has been transferred to duty at the local office.

At a special town meeting in Groton town hall last night it was voted that tax of 26 mills on the dollar be levied to take care of expenses of the borough for the coming year. The only other business of importance to be transacted was the acceptance of Starr Hill road from Grove street to Lester Town road, together with the appropriating of $3,000 to permit a further reconstruction of that highway.

That officials of the town of Groton are determined that delinquent personal tax payers shall pay the annual tax of $2, there is not the slightest doubt, for today Personal Tax Collector J. Morgan Adams, caused another list of names of delinquents to be handed to Prosecuting Attorney Warren B. Burrows and if the delinquents do not make payment prior to next Monday they are scheduled to be presented in the town court. Despite the fact that seven prosecutions of delinquents were made in the town court last Monday, but a very few of the delinquents have made payment to the collector.

Desk Sergeant Frank Howard, who has been ill at his home, Walker street, a fortnight, will be able to resume his duties at the police station next week. It is believed, for his condition has vastly improved the past few days.

Louis Kaplan, Bank street merchant, is confined to his home, Bydenberg avenue, as a result of a severe attack of the grip.

A new flooring in the garage of the state police department, Groton, is being installed. There are about a dozen automobiles stored in the garage and for some time the floor has needed repairing. Believing that it would be the better part of economy to install a new floor that course was decided upon.

Willis Jones, one of the watchmen employed in visiting the numerous banks every hour during the night, is again confined to his home, Ocean avenue by illness, he having been stricken while on duty early this morning. During his absence from duty his place is being taken care of by Benjamin Rogers.

The police received a telephone communication shortly before 9 o'clock this evening that a fellow was lurking in the shadow of trees on Vauxhall street. Patrolmen Augustus Ray and Clarence Wells were dispatched in the police car to the location where the fellow was reported to be loitering and there found a young man, generally believed to be weak minded, who declared that he was in that vicinity to keep an appointment with a young lady acquaintance. He was informed to remain in the open and not in the shadow of the trees if he was to stay there.

The cold snap of this evening caused the tramp room in the police station and the B. P. Lear ed mission lodging house to be over-taxed. At the latter place all of the bunks were occupied before 9 o'clock and at the police station it became necessary to place vagrants in cells because of the tramp room being over-crowded.

PETER ATHINEOS COMES FROM PERTH AMBOY THURSDAY

(Special to the Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, March 11—Peter Athineos, of Perth Amboy, N. J., formerly of New London, was taken into custody in the former city Tuesday at the request of the New London authorities, who hold a warrant charging Athineos with larceny in connection with the alleged $10,000 robbery and fraud of the Patterson, Inc., 71 State street. The accused declared when arrested that he would fight being brought back to New London unless extradition papers were issued, but he changed his mind yesterday when he decided to return here and face trial. He arrived in New London this forenoon, accompanied by his counsel, a Perth Amboy attorney. Both went to the police station after Athineos had arranged for a surety on his bond of $1,000. Athineos was placed under arrest at once and James Saltoganes qualified as surety on the bond. The accused will be given a hearing in the police court Tuesday morning next. At the same time Frank Tudisco, of Archer court, a former employe of the Patterson corporation, together with Max Goldstein, one of the proprietors of the Mohegan dairy, on Jefferson avenue, the former charged with larceny and the latter with fraud, will also be arraigned. Tudisco and Goldstein are at liberty in bail of $3,500 each.

MISSING BAD BOYS HID ON A FARM IN MONTVILLE

(Special to the Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, March 11—Two youths, each 14, one residing op Bank street and the other on Connecticut avenue, who were arrested by Sergeants Nelson Smith and John Cavanaugh Tuesday charged with burglarizing the bicycle store of Robert N. Turner, 438 Bank street, and attempting to burglarize the fish market of the Cheney, Packer company, 442, and who ran away after they had been ordered to appear at the police station yesterday morning, were rearrested this afternoon by Sergeants Smith and Cavanaugh and will be presented in the juvenile court the latter part of the week. One of the boys has been an inmate at the State Reform school at Meriden and there is a possibility that he may be returned to the institution.

Following the liberation of the boys, Tuesday afternoon, and after the plunder they had stolen had been recovered, the boys, instead of returning to their respective homes, ran away. They went to Montville to the Tobin farm, near Fire street, where they sought lodging. They were promised shelter if they performed certain chores about the farm, including the cleaning of a hen house. This they did and they were then allowed to go to a barn on the premises and sleep for the night. The youths remained until this morning when they were ordered to leave the premises and they started for New London at 5 o'clock. In the meantime Sergeants Smith and Cavanaugh had obtained information that led the officers to believe that the boys were at the Tobin farm. This afternoon a visit was made to the farm where it was learned that the boys had started early in the day for this city. Returning to New London, the officers went to the home of the Bank street boy and found him there. He was taken to the police station. A visit was then made by Sergeants Smith and Cavanaugh to the home of the Connecticut avenue youth, but his mother declared that she had no knowledge of the whereabouts of the boy, declaring that she had not slept the past two nights because of her worry. The officers did not believe that the woman was telling the truth and started to search the house. When they reached the cellar the boy was found secreted behind two sleds. He was arrested and soon joined his companion at the police station, where the boys were later given into the custody of Probation Officer R. W. Mansfield.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

Palace Theater

Marty Dupree and her musical merry-go-round opened at the Palace yesterday and while all Marty's shows in the past have been recognized as the best of traveling tableaux, Marty is offering this year a show that surpasses her previous attempts. A chorus of real pretty girls who are talented dancers, a comedy that was a sensation last night, special dances by Marty and the comedy bits by Benny Drohan and Frank Murray made up an hour and fifteen minutes of real entertainment. Judging by the way Marty's show went over last night you are going to have a hard time getting a seat at the Palace today and tomorrow. The screen offers a picture from Paramount called "Lord Jim" with Percy Marmont, Raymond Hatten, Noah Berry and Shirley Mason, from the pen of Joseph Conrad. It is a sea story with all the thrills that go with a sea tale and is an unusual good offering. The Scarlet Streak is nearing its end and getting more interesting every week. The finals of the Kiddies Charleston contest will be run off Saturday afternoon and all those who have won in any of the contests are requested to report.

Breed Theater

The Jolly Roger Blood, Boy's thrilling picture story of one of the greatest disasters of the world, which comes to the Breed theater today and Saturday is one of the finest things in screen history. It was directed by Irving Cummings, who has scores of successful and entertaining productions to his credit. It has a cast that can be catalogued in no other manner than brilliant.

George O'Brein, star of The Iron Horse, The Roughneck, The Dancers, The Man Who Came Back and Three Bad Men, is seen in the leading role.

Florence Gilbert and Janet Gilbert are cast in the principal feminine portravals. Paul Nicholson and Paul Panzer interpret the menacing influences with Anders Randolf, Max Davidson, Walter Perry, Georgie Harris and Elmo Billings in feature roles.

The dramatic action is of the swiftest moving variety ever witnessed in a production, due to the concentraness of the story, immense settingremarkable acting, sterling direction and a great wealth of production value.

The Green Archer, the Pathe news and a comedy complete the bill; coming Sunday, Sally, Irene and Mary with Sally O'Neil.

Palace Theater

The special engagement of the photodrama, Tell Me Why will be the offering at the Palace theater, March 14, 15, 16 and 17. Special showings for women and men during the afternoon at 2.15, 7 evenings, women only will be admitted and at nights starting at 8:30 o'clock, men only are admitted. Children under 16 years of age admitted only with parent.

Tell Me Why is a subject dealing with Birth Control, one of the most important and problematical questions of today, as well as being a highly entertaining drama of real life and mother love.

It is not the lack of knowledge, but the knowledge of our sex laws that make a modern marriage a success. Ignorance does not mean virtue. Is birth control right or wrong, who is to decide this great question? Many important questions are answered and you will see a vision of life before birth in Tell Me Why?

Following is a copy of a letter received regarding the picture:

Sanuho, O'h.

Mr. D. Arnold Kohn
Manager Tell Me Why picture.
Dear Sir:

In company with several prominent people of our city representing various clubs and organizations, I witnessed the exhibition of your picture. I have in the past been somewhat suspicious of the sex pictures shown over the country, but I wish to say you have a picture in a class by itself. Since it is conceded that there is much ignorance on the part of parents with regard to some of the most important truths regarding human life, and that boys and girls generally get their information from impure sources, I believe your picture has a mission in that it deals with matters never before put on the screen. As many mothers and fathers do not impart this information to their children it seems to me that you are doing a much needed work in educating the public in these matters.

My regret is that the film could not be shown to our high school students and be followed up with some lectures emphasizing the truths of your picture, but since our schools have not begun their work it made showing impossible except at regular show house.

Yours very truly,
(Signed) S. W. MOORE,
General Secretary, Railroad Young Men's Christian Association.

Broadway Theater

Time and Tide wait for no man. But a role in a motion picture will wait for an entire year if the actor is deemed necessary to the success of the film play.

Vaidkerson was forced to wait 12 months to secure the service of Charlie Murray for one of the leads in The Cohens and Kellys, the picture which will be shown at the Broadway theater, beginning Sunday.

Having purchased Aaron Hoffman's comedy stage play, Carl Laemmle felt that no man was so suited to the role as Charlie Murray, so it was decided to hold up production until Murray was available.

At that time Murray was busy and also had five contracts in his pocket to play in other pictures. Universal got next in line and after patiently waiting a year for the great comedian, Harry Pollard, was assigned to direct the picture. George Sidney and Vera Gordon, meanwhile, had been signed to play the other featured roles in this comedy-drama of a Jewish and Irish family.

Carl Laemmle saw the picture immediately after its completion and was overjoyed at the result. "Wait five years next time, if necessary," he said.

Others in the cast of this picture are Kate Price, Jason Robards, Olive Trebrouck, Bobby Gordon and Micky Bennett.

It is the biggest laugh of the year. Another feature on the same program is Ken Maynard in The Haunted Range. Admission price is only 25 cents at night. Read the advertisement elsewhere.

United Cigar Agency.

On Monday, March 1st, after a term of service covering 18 years as manager of the local store of the United Cigar Stores Co. of America, George N. Chappell resigned that position in favor of taking over the company's interest in this city and continuing business under the Agency Plan.

This is one of the rare cases appearing on record, where a man of so many years service, at all times remaining in the same store and location has been privileged to take over the business that he, himself, has seen grow from infancy.

To Mr. Chappell's friends and past patrons this change is of much interest and cause of words of best wishes for a prosperous future and to those not personally acquainted with the new owner assurance is given of cordial and efficient service in the particular line he has so long been engaged.

Although, no difference in the location of store or service as taught in the United School of Salesmanship will be noticed by the numbers who patronize any of the 2500 United Stores throughout America, there will appear that atmosphere of local ownership.

The same full line of United Cigars will be carried, but in addition will be stocked any brand or class of merchandise that will prove service to the smoker, including a full line of Happiness package candies, razor blades, toilet articles, novelties and sundries.

Valued coupons will be given and redeemed as before, and Herbert Adams, who has been with Mr. Chappell the past year will continue his services.

TELL ME WHY? AGAINST BIRTH CONTROL

TELLS ALL SHOWS ALL IN TRUE FORM

APPROVED AND ENDORSED BY PULPIT, PRESS, AND ALL RIGHT THINKING CITIZENS.

MAYOR ANGELO PAONESSA of New Britain, said—

To Whom It May Concern:

Through the courtesy of Mr. D. Arnold Kohn, manager of the motion picture, "Tell Me Why," I was one of an enormous throng who witnessed its first playing in this city last Sunday evening.

I firmly believe that the playing of this picture at this time when the practice of "Birth Control" is gaining so much headway, is very opportune. Everything to counteract this headway should be done, and I think that this picture cannot fail to be a wonderful help toward this end. For this reason I do not hesitate to heartily endorse this picture.

COMMON SENSE, GUMPTION, THRIFT

(Written Specially for The Bulletin)

I have been young and now am old. I have seen a good many farmers fail. I have seen a good many more just manage to 'make a live of it.' I have seen a few succeed. I do not mean by that that I have ever known a farmer to get really rich. But getting rich is only one form of success, and not the highest, by any manner of means.

I mean that I have known a few who have earned a competence and, while doing it, have brought up families in comfort and under wholesome conditions; have educated their children at least to a degree enabling them to meet their world on even terms; have made their farms steadily better year by year, and their homes brighter and happier; have won a spreading reputation for sound judgment and public spirit;—have, in short, left their communities better for having lived in them. That's what might be called real success.

Yet, for one who has attained it, I have known 20 who have fallen short. Why should an old man, summing up his last judgment of his fellow-farmers, be compelled to such a confession? I'm wondering a good deal these days, just what it is that makes the difference between a successful and an unsuccessful farmer.

The court isn't closed, yet; the evidence isn't all in; but as the case stands now I am inclined to think that there are three things which are absolutely essential to farm success. There may be more, but there are at least three. Those three are, as I see them:

Common sense.
Gumption.
Tarift.

Webster defines Common Sense in two classes, as follows:—

"A supposed sense which is held to be the common bond of all others. (obs.) Sound, practical judgment; the instantaneous decision of unperverted reason."

As the first definition is admittedly obsolete, we are compelled to take the second for our guide. "Sound, practical judgment; the instantaneous decision of unperverted reason." Don't wonder why Webster insists that the decision be that of "unperverted reason." That is the very heart of the definition. A perverted reason is no better guide than a perverted conscience. It makes no difference what has perverted the reason, whether a false education, or an army of bad examples, or a life time of bad habits, or overweening self-conceit, or simple natural contrariness, sometimes called "pure cussedness." Unless one's reason is unperverted by these or other causes it is not capable of forming "sound practical judgments."

That's also why the decisions of common sense are "instantaneous." The decision of an unperverted reason are always and necessarily reasonable. For the same reason that sunshine is white light. Unobstructed it can't be anything else and nobody needs a college professor to tell him when he sees it. Obstruct that light with a prism and it separates into a spectrum; obstruct it with a cloud and it turns into shade; obstruct it with 8,000 miles of earth and it becomes night. In much the same way various perversions of reason may lead to exceedingly strange and even monstrous perversions of judgment.

Most men get mad if you accuse them of lack of common sense. Yet most men do lack it. Its absence from the majority is so obvious as to have given rise to the old gibe that it is called common sense because it is so uncommon.

Nor do I see any way given under heaven among men by which it can be inoculated into or grafted upon those who lack it. For here comes in the funny part of it:—the very men and women who are most strikingly lacking in common sense are the ones most cockily certain that they are chock-full of it! The first step towards knowledge is the conviction of one's ignorance. You can't teach a man anything if he is already assured that he knows it all. Similarly, you can't suggest the use of common sense to a man who is certain beforehand, that he is in himself the imbersonation and incarnation thereof.

Common sense, for example, would lead a farmer whose work it is to produce foodstuffs to ask two questions. First, What sort of foodstuffs do my possible customers want most?

Second, Which of the sorts they call for can I raise on my farm and get to them most profitably?

Yet I could name, this minute, a dozen farmers in my own bishopric who are raising hay for which the demand is practically nil on land that would grow fine asparagus of which there never is enough to satisfy any city or village market. And several others who are planning to plant an extra acreage of potatoes, just because the present price for last year's scanty crop is high.

Gumption, I remember that we've already talked about that, and I'm not going to repeat myself more than necessary. A farmer without gumption is like a balloon without gas, he'll never rise high nor fly far. Gumption is not quite the same as genius, but is a sort of humble half-brother. It's the know-when and the know-how that not only can see through the hole in the millstone but can see where the hole ought to be and make it, if necessary. Gumption is the readiness of resource that can make a temporary repair without proper tools or parts. It is the capacity to take two pieces of bad luck, knock their heads together, and get a day's work out of them. It involves mental quickness and manual dexterity and the ability to turn an accident into a windfall of profit.

Moreover, gumption never lays its weight on others. It is more apt to be the one carrying than the one carried. It isn't all the time enveloping over its handicaps, because it is too darn busy turning them into cartwheels or snowshoes or something else of service to get over the hard places with. It doesn't call on any sidewalk committee for help, but bids the loafers stand out of its light and give it a fair chance. It sees in difficulties simply something to overcome, and digs out of disasters salvage with which to frame success.

Talk about farming as fit occupation for "the fool of the family!" There isn't another calling in which there is such daily, nay, hourly demand for gumption as that of managing a New England farm. The man who can do it and come out ahead of the game isn't any family's fool. He's got to have common sense to steer him and gumption to push him.

And Thrift. That's the third essential. Just at present, thrift is highly unfashionable, not to say unpopular. One reason for this is a too wide spread misunderstanding of what thrift is. Nine out of ten of the young people of today have some how got the idea that thrift is the same as stinginess or miserliness. Nothing could be farther from the truth. Thrift isn't the going without proper food and decent clothing in order to hoard money in old teapots and ginger jars. It isn't the burying of one's talent, napkin-wrapped, in a corner of the garden. Thrift is the son and heir of Common Sense and Gumption, with the characteristics of both.

Some shallow witted "colyumist" recently said that thrift was doing without what you want, today, in order to have a chance to get what you may want 50 years hence. And that is just about the idea a lot of my young friends seem to have of it. Which is where they show, as the origina "colyumist" did, their lack of sturdy common sense.

Thrift is simply the adaption of available means to desirable ends. It recognizes the difference between mere desire and actual need. It weighs a present luxury against a probable future necessity and foregoes the temporary delight for the sake of the coming need. It regards its judgment as a better guide than its appetite. It sacrifices the unimportant for the sake of the essential and paramount. It lives its today in the light of yesterday's lessons and tomorrow's promises. It steers its course by the lighthouse of reason rather than by the lanifatuus of whim.

It does not go without real needs for the sake of imaginary future benefits, but takes thought of the morrow and makes the present serve it. Of course, thrift is relative. What would seem parsimony in one may be wise thrift in another. The man is thrifty who, with an assured income of $2,500 spends but $2,000. The man is unthrifty who spends $901 with an income of only $900.

The farmer who has but ten tons of hay to carry his stock through the winter is unthrifty if he feeds five tons out before mid-February. The farmer with 20 tons may feed nine tons by that time and still show thrift. But the principle remains the same.

Thrift is just that application of common sense which bids one make hay while the sun shines, coupled with that other admonition which advises the laying by, in fair weather, of some provision for the inevitable rainy day.

Our dads and grand-dads made New England by a combination of common sense, gumption and thrift. Their grandsons and granddaughters are seeing its supremacy pass.

Why?

We think we know more than they did. But they "got thar," while we are being crowded out.

Telephones and radios and flivvers are undeniably nice things. But common sense and gumption and thrift are even more serviceable and effective.

THE FARMER.

Two men were arrested ...id 12, 50 gallon kegs and four 100-gallon cases of alcohol were seized when State Troopers Stephen Stanton and Edward Mugavero stopped a truck on the Boston Post road near Westport, Conn.

FRATERNITY

I ask not how thy suffering came,
Or if by sin, or if by shame,
Or if by Fate's capricious ruling:
To my large pity all's the same.

Come close and lean against a heart
Eaten by pain and stung by smart;
It is enough if thou hast suffered,
Brother or sister then thou art.

We will not speak of what we know,
Rehearse the pang, nor count the throe,
Nor ask what agony admitted
Thee to the Brotherhood of Woe.

But in our anguish-darkened land
Let us draw close, and clasp the hand;
Our whispered password holds assuagement—
The solemn "Yea, I understand!"

—Anna Reeve Aldrich.

One by one AMERICA'S great cities have been captured by this flavor

A SHADE of difference, a little extra goodness—and it has won the first real nation-wide fame that has ever come to any coffee.

Not long ago only a few discriminating families knew of its special mellow richness.

Now from coast to coast, in all America's great cities, the number of families who serve it is daily growing by the thousands.

In New York, in Washington, in Cincinnati it is by far the most popular coffee. From Boston to Los Angeles its full-bodied flavor is awakening a new enthusiasm.

Yet it was only five years ago when this blend of fine coffees became available generally. Since then the news of its goodness has been carried all over America.

Today it has pleased more people than any other coffee ever offered for sale. Six great plants have had to be built to supply the demand for Maxwell House Coffee.

Your very first taste of its rich liquor, your first breath of its aroma will tell you why it has won America. When you first serve it, you will see new interest in the faces at your table. Try it tomorrow for breakfast or for dinner. Your grocer has Maxwell House Coffee in the famous blue tins. MARKET WAS STRONG

NEW YORK, March 11—(AP)—Revival of activity and strength in the railroad shares featured the resumption of the upward movement of prices in today's stock market. More than a score rails showed net gains ranging from one to nearly six points while lagging apparently influenced by reports of heavy car loadings, large earnings and prospects of special dividend and merger developments. Buying of the industrials was of a more selective character with a tendency noted to take profits on the rise particularly in the issues which had registered a sustained rise in the week. Gains made the best of a swing. Trading showed a moderate increase in volume, the day's transactions totaling 1,500,000 shares.

Specific strength developed in Chesapeake and Ohio issues on hinting indirectly at the long term current earnings justified a substantially higher level irrespective of whether the dividend policy would be revised. Pere Marquette preferred was featured by a special meeting of stockholders to consider the fact that a large amount of bonds is maturing and the company's stock at $60 a share to April 1. Other New Englands rails were Boston & Maine common advancing 2 points on a few sales from the Maintenance and Equipment preferred showed fractional recessions.

Norfolk and Western was another outstanding strong spot, also soaring six points to 165 and closing within a fraction of the top. "Katy" preferred improved four points to 91 1-2 and Missouri Pacific Pacific preferred and Texas and Pacific were also in demand. Other rails which were conspicuous for gains were Atchison, Southern Pacific, Reading, Southern Railway preferred, Rock Island preferred and Union Pacific preferred, the latter making a new high record for the year at 144 1-2.

Chrysler was the feature of the motor issues, soaring 3 points to 103 on the announcement that the addition of the stock would be made in the three of Railway Steel Spring under the plan approved by directors for the merger of those companies. It closed 3-4 net lower at 105 after selling between 106 and 104 1-8. Railway Steel Spring was run up over two points to 68 3-4 but eased to 67 1-4.

Good buying was noted in such issues as Air Reduction, American International Corporation, American Linseed Commercial Solvents B, Federal Mining and Smelting preferred and Standard Milling un 3 to 6 points. On the other hand American Can, American Sugar Refining and National Cloak and Suit common and preferred were conspicuously heavy.

A sharp rally in wheat prices featured the commodity market. May wheat closed 3 cents a bushel higher at $1.62 7-8 with more moderate gains in the other active options. The cotton market held steady in dull trading. Sugar and coffee prices showed little change.

Call money renewed at 4 1-4 per cent. which rate was maintained all day. Time money and commercial paper rates were unchanged.

With the exception of Danish krone, which rallied 16 points to 26.10 cents, the principal foreign exchanges moved within narrow and irregular limits. Demand sterling and French francs ruled slightly easier around $4.85 11-16 and 3.62 cents respectively.

GERMAN REPRESENTATIVES REJECT COMPROMISE PROPOSED BY THE ALLIES

Crisis in European Political Situation Becoming More Acute —Compromise Would Give Poland a Non-Permanent Seat in the Council of the League of Nations—Contending Parties Declare They Have Gone the Limit in Concessions—German Delegates Are Willing to Meet M. Briand, Austen Chamberlain and Other Delegates Today.

GENEVA, Switzerland, March 12—(AP)—The crisis in the European political situation growing out of the deadlock over the question of enlarging the council of the league of nations, took a more grave aspect tonight, for the foreign statesmen presented the compromise offer made by the allied delegates, whereby Poland would be given a non-permanent seat on the council. According to information from reliable sources, this compromise also included the rejection, temporarily at least, of the Spanish and Brazilian claims for permanent seats. The announcement of the compromise immediately caused the declaration in official circles that Spain would remain out of the league unless her demands were recognized.

Senor Mello Franco, representing Brazil, would not comment beyond the statement that he would at all events oppose Brazil being given the permanent chair which has always been held by the United States.

Aristide Briand of France, looking grave and downcast, made known the decision of the delegates in the negotiations in somber tones of solemnity as to the announcement deeply tragic.

"The Germans have not accepted," he said, "yet the compromise which we offered them today represented the utmost limit of our concession. I know nothing about the future, but I sincerely trust the conversations will be continued."

The German delegates confirmed M. Briand's announcement saying they had gone to the extreme limit. Nevertheless they denied that they were contemplating leaving Geneva immediately tomorrow. They were going to await counter proposals from the other signatories of the Rhine pact. They thought that perhaps they might remeet M. Briand, Sir Austen Chamberlain and other delegates today.

The exact proposal made to Germany was first that Germany enter the league immediately; second, that Spanish and Brazilian claims go before a commission for study, and, third, the creation of a new non-permanent seat with election by the assembly of the state to fill it. No specific position was made of Poland.

The Germans would have to agree to an increase in the non-permanent seats. However, they felt the proposal would be contrary to the spirit they have been trying to follow, namely, to make no promises or pledges in advance of their entry into the league.

Their position is that just as at Locarno there was a gentlemen's agreement for execution of the Rhineland pact on other matters, so the allies should agree to the German contention that Germany's representatives are loyal towards all just claims once Germany becomes a member of the council.

GERMANS TO MAINTAIN POSITION TO VERY END

GENEVA, March 12.—(AP)—Receiving the German newspapermen today, Chancellor Luther declared the German delegation would maintain its position to the very end, and that, moreover, he had told this to Sir Austen Chamberlain, the British foreign secretary, tonight.

Chancellor Luther reiterated that Germany could make no commitments as to what she would do after entering the league before being admitted. He added that in a spirit of accommodation the Germans on Sunday suggested that the council appoint a sub-committee to study the question of reorganization of the council. That was the limit to which Germany could go at present.

CRISIS HAS REACHED THE PROPORTIONS OF DISASTER

GENEVA, March 13.—(AP)—Sir Austen Chamberlain, the British foreign secretary, indicated his belief in a confidential talk with the British newspapermen early this morning that the crisis over the question of increasing the number of league of nations council seats has reached the proportions of a disaster, with paralyzation of the atmosphere created by the Locarno accords.

Sir Austen announced that it was useless to continue the conversations with the Germans, because he was convinced they would be fruitless. Hence, it had been decided to turn over the whole problem to the council of the league of nations, taking it out of the hands of the representatives of the countries who signed the Locarno pacts and who have been meeting throughout the week in an effort to reach a solution of the difficulty brought on by the demands of Poland. Spain and Brazil for seats on the council and the stand taken by Germany that she must enter the council alone at the present time.

The British foreign secretary declared he had been hopeful Friday morning, but that after he had received a communication from the German chancellor, Dr. Luther, rejecting the allied proposal, he felt certain of a further meeting between the Rhine pact signatories. This proposal described by Sir Austen as embodying extreme concessions, provided that Poland should be given a non-permanent seat on the council.

"We are faced with a real tragedy," said Sir Austen, "and it is impossible to predict what the reaction will be. The tragedy is also that Germany has done this thing."

Sir Austen showed much emotion, and it was apparent that his nerves were temporarily shattered by the quick succession of days of momentous events. He supported the allied compromise proposal as entirely reasonable and just, because the assembly must fill the proposed new permanent seat in the council from the list of candidates, and Germany was not committed to the election of Poland.

It was pointed out in some league circles that the refusal of the council to elect Germany to a permanent seat should not be discarded as an impossibility, while others feared a new crisis in the affairs of Europe.

CABLED PARAGRAPHS

Passed Disarmament Bill.

COPENHAGEN, Denmark, March 12.—(AP)—The folketing (house of commons) today passed the third reading of the disarmament bill, which calls for virtual abolishment of the Danish army and navy, leaving only frontier and customs guards and a number of vessels for coast duty. The vote was 75 to 71.

Campaign Against Communism

SHANGHAI, March 12.—(AP)—The newly organized Constitutional Defense league, comprising 14 nationalities including the Chinese, launched an open campaign against communism today. Mass meetings were held in the international and French settlements. Also in the French community. Speakers asserted that labor outbreaks were ascribable to communistic activities and predicted that a revolution would result unless they were checked.

POSTAL MESSENGER HELD FOR MURDER OF HIS WIFE

BOSTON, March 12—(AP)—Frank O. Smith, a special delivery postal messenger, was held without bail tonight charged with the murder of his wife, Elizabeth, in their South End lodging house last Wednesday night. Smith, who was discharged from the regular postal service for drunkenness after 25 years of service, said he had "been on a bat for 10 days" and remembered nothing about Wednesday except that he and his wife had been drinking together.

Mrs. Smith's body was found in her room today and Medical Examiner Timothy Leary said she had died to death. She apparently had been beaten over the head with a liquor bottle, fragments of which were found scattered about the room but none of the blows had been heavy enough to cause death.

Smith told the police he remember nothing of what transpired in the apartment Wednesday night. He woke up in his room yesterday morning, he said, and in the living room found his wife lying on a couch. Noting she was not covered, he tossed a portiere over her and went to the home of his sister, Mrs. Frank Brown, of Marblehead. He insisted he had no idea that his wife was dead, but thought she was sleeping.

Medical Examiner Leary said he believed the body had been moved. Smith he thought, found the body on the floor and placed it on the couch before leaving.

CONDITION OF COLONEL COOLIDGE IS IMPROVING

PLYMOUTH, Vermont, March 13.—(AP)—Colonel John C. Coolidge, father of the president, rallied today after a sickness of many months had developed critical symptoms. Tonight his physician, Dr. Albert M. Cram of Bridgewater, announced that the condition of Colonel Coolidge showed definite improvement.

Battling against illness which has held him bedridden at his farmhouse home here for months, the president's father on Thursday night weakened to a point which alarmed his physician and neighbors. A comfortable night's rest won him a new advantage, however, and Dr. Cram said the danger point seemed to have been passed for the time.

As a physician late in the afternoon left the Coolidge home after paying his second visit of the day, he gave a reassuring bulletin to a group of neighbors and newspaper men.

"Colonel Coolidge's heart action is much sower than it was last night, and his heart action is stronger," the physician said. "I feel that his condition is better than it has been for several days. His pulse is regular, and he seems cheerful. He is not suffering pain."

PRESIDENT TALKED BY TELEPHONE WITH FATHER

WASHINGTON, March 12.—(AP)—President Coolidge talked by telephone today with his father, who is ill in Plymouth, Vt., and was encouraged over the improvement shown.

Unless Colonel Coolidge's condition should become worse, the president does not intend to go to Plymouth, now reported to him as virtually snowbound.

The word received today over the private wire to the White House was that the colonel was brighter and better, with his pulse and temperature almost normal.

While the president is prepared to leave on a minute's notice, he believes it safe to take a short cruise tomorrow on the Mayflower. He plans to go only a short distance down the Potomac and will keep in touch with the capital by radio.

GENERAL BUTLER IN HOSPITAL AS PATIENT

SAN DIEGO, Calif., March 12—(AP)—Brigadier General Smedley D. Butler, who a few days ago preferred charges of intoxication against Colonel Alexander S. Williams, thus taking him from command of the fourth regiment of marines, returned to San Diego today after a short stay in Los Angeles and entered the navy hospital as a patient.

General Butler told reporters he had several infected teeth which were to be extracted in a few hours, his blood pressure was "dangerously low" and he would be in the hospital for several days. Captain Raymond Spear, commanding at the hospital, said General Butler would have to remain in bed for a week.

General Butler declined to discuss the case of Colonel Williams. He also declined to talk about a letter sent to Secretary Wilbur of the navy department and to Attorney General Webb of California by the San Diego County Federated Trades and Labor Council. This letter criticized a speech made by General Butler at a meeting of the American Legion here Monday.

GIRL DIED OF PNEUMONIA WHILE ATTENDING SCHOOL

WEST SOMERVILLE, Mass., March 12.—(AP)—Beatrice J. Morse, 11, a pupil in the Brown school here, died of pneumonia while in school today. The child had been out of school a few days because of illness, but returned today.

Committee Named For Tariff Inquiry

"Young" Lafolette of Wisconsin Will Represent the Insurgent Republicans.

WASHINGTON, March 12—(AP)—The youngest member of the senate, LaFollette of Wisconsin, will represent the insurgent republicans in the senate's inquiry into the tariff commission, and the committee chairman probably will be Robinson of Arkansas, the democratic leader.

It was a combination of democrats and republican dissenters who yesterday amended the authorising resolution and gave the committee full rein to go into charges of undue interference in commission affairs by President Coolidge. Senator Robinson himself fathered the resolution after the acts of the president had been questioned by Senator Norris of Nebraska, one of the insurgent republicans.

Besides Senators Robinson and LaFollette, the committee as named today by Vice President Dawes consists of Senators Wadsworth of New York, and Reed of Pennsylvania, republican reculars, and Bruce of Maryland, a democrat. The senate itself stipulated yesterday that one "progressive republican" should be appointed.

Although the usual practice is that the first senator named on a committee shall be chairman, in this case the committee is expected to select its own presiding officer.

The committee will not be called together until after the return here Monday of Senator Reed. Senator Robinson said he was well pleased with the personnel, and that he hoped the investigation would get under way at once.

The vice president appointed the committee without consulting with any of the senators he selected, and some of them expressed surprise that they had been chosen. There were reports that one or two might decline to serve because of other business.

The inquiry promises to consume several weeks. Voluminous records are to be examined, and a large number of witnesses, including present and former members of the commission are to be heard.

Suggestions already have been made for the summoning from Rumania of William S. Culbertson, new minister to that country, and a former member of the commission. It has been charged in the senate that efforts were made to get him off the commission while the sugar case was pending, but these allegations republican leaders have denied.

STUDY OF POSTAL RATE REPORTED BY P. M. GEN. NEW

WASHINGTON, March 12.—(AP)—Postmaster General New today reported on his study of the postal rate structure in response to a senate resolution and at the same time Senator McKellar, democrat, Tennessee, introduced a bill to lower the rates.

Despite a decline during the last six months of 1925 Mr. New predicted that the postal business eventually would reach a normal status under the increased rates effected by the last congress to meet salary increases and estimated that the total revenue for the present fiscal year ending June 30 would be $673,570,957, compared with $599,691,477 last year, which was $49,455,090 less than operating expenses.

He explained that the estimate was based on actual receipts for the first six months and asserted that, since the first of the year, there had been a "slight decrease" in postal revenues which, if continued, would reduce the total "several million dollars."

The report showed that the department had handled 731,279,719 fewer pieces of mail in the latter half of 1925, when the new rates were effective, than during the same period in 1924 under lower rate schedules. Postal business took a sharp slump immediately after adoption of the higher rates, it said, but it has increased subsequently with indications that it will return to normal.

200 Barrels Marked "Crude Alum," "Sulphate of Aluminum" and "Colored Earth."

NEW YORK, March 12.—(AP)—Customs officials today announced the seizure of champagne estimated to value more than $100,000 "supper club" prices which was brought to this port aboard the President Polk and the President Hayes, both Dollar Line steamships now in the round-the-world tourist trade.

The champagne, totalling more than 400 cases, was in 200 barrels marked "crude alum," "sulphate of aluminum" and "colored earth."

The first consignment of 100 barrels was not claimed immediately at the dock after the arrival of the President Hayes and was consigned to warehouses. Discovery of their contents was made when one of them accidentally fell to the floor and broke. The others were immediately opened and two cases of champagne were found secreted under layers of colored earth.

The customs authorities then awaited the arrival of the President Polk, which, on arriving yesterday, unloaded about 100 barrels marked "crude alum" and "sulphate of aluminum." The first 20 barrels opened revealed 40 cases of champagne.

The customs men started a search for the consignee. They believed the champagne came from Marseilles, France, and that possibly hundreds of thousands of dollars worth of the beverage had been brought to the United States within the last year and delivered at this port.

NESBITT HAS CONFESSED MURDER OF HIS WIFE

Troy, Ohio, March 12.—(AP)—According to County Detective James Foote, Jacob C. Nesbitt tonight confessed the murder of his wife, Frances Drake Nesbitt, graduate of Ohio State university. The body was found in a bath tub of water at the Nesbitt home three weeks ago tonight by Nesbitt himself.

The confession came after five hours of questioning in the Nesbitt home according to Gen Slater, Cincinnati private detective.

He said Nesbitt broke down completely and made a clean breast of it. Nesbitt, according to Slater, declared he did not know with what he hit his wife.

The murder occurred Friday morning after Nesbitt and his wife had arisen.

"We have quarrelled ever since we were married," Slater quoted Nesbitt as having said. "We quarrelled over everything, business and personal matters."

"We quarrelled Thursday night and we got up Friday in the same mood.

"I got mad, and hit Frances in the face with my fist. Then everything got red.

"I have only a hazy remembrance of what happened after I struck her with my fist."

For three weeks, the Nesbitt murder has presented a baffling wall of mystery to officials who have worked feverishly to unearth a tangible clue.

The point had almost been reached where everyone concerned believed the murder would remain unsolved forever.

A MANIFESTO BY MARY MACSWINEY AND DE VALERA

DUBLIN, March 13.—(AP)—Eamon De Valera, who resigned the presidency of the Sinn Fein yesterday, told The Associated Press today that his resignation was necessary to obtain freedom to express his views and does not imply any change of his fundamental policy or a break with the republican cause.

The Sinn Fein leader resigned after the Ard Fheis, or republican general assembly, had rejected his motion favoring republican representation in the Dail Eireann and the Ulster parliament.

Mr. De Valera and Mary MacSwiney, who led the opposition which voted down his motion, issued a joint manifesto today framed to assure the friends of Ireland abroad that "although differing in policy we are united in our determination to break the alien power and secure the allegiance of the Irish people."

"We ask our friends to take no hasty action," the manifesto says.

Patterns of Progress.

An American home—its bathtub, breakfast foods, furnace—set down in the heart of Europe would be unmistakably an American home. An American man walking the streets of Europe is in all his obvious tastes an American.

Advertisements stamp American homes and owners of homes with a kind of national pattern. They create desire for the same kind of things. They set America right about all the up-to-date requirements.

We cut the patterns of our personal lives and surroundings from advertisements. We keep modern only with their intimate help. We go forward with them, as we would stand still without them. We form our taste and discriminate values by using their truths. Advertisements offer us patterns of progress that mean quick steps to the fore.

ANDREWS FORBIDS "PETTY SNOOPING" BY DRY AGENTS

Dry Enforcement Chief Has Issued a Ukase Against "Spy Systems" in Federal Prohibition Enforcement—Probable That the Whole Prohibition Question Will Be Aired Publicly by the Senate Judiciary Committee—Great Reduction in Diversion of Industrial Alcohol.

WASHINGTON, March 12—(AP)—Confidence that the whole prohibition question will be aired publicly by the senate judiciary committee was expressed today by authors of modification bills after a sub-committee to consider those measures had been appointed.

Coincident with these expressions, Assistant Secretary Andrews, of the treasury, issued a ukase against "spy systems" in federal prohibition enforcement. He called upon the state authorities to do the policing while the government concentrated on checking illegal sources of supply.

The judiciary sub-committee, with Senator Means, republican, Colorado, as chairman, was instructed to consider the modification bills and make recommendations as to public hearings.

When Senators Edge, republican, and Edwards, democrat, New Jersey, and Bruce, democrat, Maryland, appeared last Monday to urge public hearings, the judiciary committee was so hostile that the appointment of a sub-committee to take up the wet bills caused distinct surprise at the capitol. Proponents, however, never had given up hope that the senate would adhere to its long-established practice of granting hearings when asked.

Both senators Edge and Bruce expressed satisfaction with the personnel of the sub-committee, despite that it includes only one avowed wet—Senator Reed, democrat, Missouri.

In his ukase to the federal enforcement agents Secretary Andrews warned that "petty snooping" by dry agents would not be tolerated.

Declaring the recently organized alcohol squad was showing results, Mr. Andrews said the diversion of industrial alcohol had been reduced last month by 1,200,000 gallons in the Philadelphia district and 600,000 gallons in the New York district.

ON TRIAL FOR BEATING 5-YEAR OLD SON TO DEATH

BALTIMORE, March 12—(AP)—Apparently fighting against collapse on the witness stand, Mrs. Edna May Waight Coursey in Baltimore county circuit court at Towson today repudiated her confession to police that she beat her five year old son, Eldridge, to death with a broomstick. Testifying between sobs, she accused her husband, Ralph T. Coursey of flogging the boy, striking him in the stomach and in the face. Coursey, she testified, was not the boy's father. He is charged jointly with his wife with murder in connection with Eldridge's death.

In her confession, given police five days after the child died on February 6, Mrs. Coursey sought to absolve her husband from responsibility for the alleged fatal beatings, taking all blame upon herself and telling how she had whipped Eldridge when he was undressed ready for a bath, on the day of his death.

Today she testified that floggings took place on both February 5 and 6, and were administered by Coursey, starting when Eldridge failed to return promptly with some nails from the cellar of their home. Coursey whipped Eldridge "about five minutes with a toy broomstick down in the cellar and then my husband came upstairs and beat him in the stomach and struck him in the face, but Eldridge did not fall over," she said. Coursey "started to cry" when she remonstrated with him, she continued, and Eldridge said, "you needn't cry; you did not hurt me!" Another flogging, during which the boy screamed, took place upstairs the next morning, she said.

LIFE IMPRISONMENT FOR ROBBING MURDERED WOMAN

BOSTON, March 12—(AP)—Frank Crecorian, alias Frank Corey, of Worcester, acquitted last August on a charge of murdering Mrs. Mae Price, theatrical company wardrobe mistress in the Hotel Hollis here, was found guilty tonight of robbing the murdered woman. Judge David A. Lourie sentenced him to life imprisonment and pending exceptions to the supreme court, ordered him held in $100,000 bail.

The jury which has been hearing Crecorian's case since last Monday deliberated for more than six hours before reaching in a verdict. It was said to be the first time in the history of the superior court here that a man acquitted on one charge has been placed on trial and found guilty of another crime on practically the same evidence.

Unable to furnish the exceptionally heavy bail, Crecorian was remanded to jail while his counsel, William R. Scharman announced his intention of carrying exceptions to the supreme court.

Crecorian was arrested in Worcester June 22 for the murder of Mrs. Price on May 31. He was brought to Boston that night and formally charged with murder in the first degree.

The following day he was identified by several persons as having been seen in the Hotel Hollis, where Mrs. Price had been found, beaten and strangled, lying on her bed in the room.

The corporation is being investigated to learn whether it violated the Martin act by its stock sales activities in this state.

Page testified that he was willing to produce the books, but that the treasurer of the corporation, on advice of counsel, refused to relinquish them.

Milholland then notified Page that failure to produce the books under subpoena was sufficient grounds for a preliminary injunction.

"I tried my best to bring the boks," the witness asserted. "But I was prevented by conditions beyond my control, some of the directors objected also to sending the books out of the state of Connecticut and intimated that if I removed them from Connecticut I might incur serious legal obligation there."

GETTING YOUNG AND TOUGH GIRLS FOR MOVING PICTURE

LOS ANGELES, Calif., March 12.—(AP)—Casting directors for a film studio staged an after-dark raid on dance halls and night clubs of Los Angeles last night seeking realistic girls' figures "young enough and hard enough" for a scene in a woman's reformatory.

The raid was staged after the central casting office with more than five thousand women on its lists had found only 12 who were able to play the parts.

Paying their admission to a number of cheap dance halls, the casting director and his aides picked out the girls one by one, and asked them if they wanted an opportunity to work in the films.

The majority of them thought they were being hoaxed. "Gwan," one retorted; "tell the big butter and egg men have that line."

Others declared that they could earn more than the extras' $7.50 per day by continuing their dance hall life where they receive a nickel a dance for acting as partners for stray men, plus half the price of the soft drinks they induce the men to buy.

LAXITY OF SPRINGFIELD CHARITIES DEPARTMENT

SPRINGFIELD, Mass., March 12.—(AP)—Utter disregard and indifference in an urgent case where a baby lay more than a week without burial after a case had been brought repeatedly to its attention was charged against the municipal charities department today by the Springfield Red Cross officials headed by Hamilton Lewis. Statements that "We do not care whether the child gets buried or not," "It's none of your business" were attributed to charities officials by Mr. Lewis, who declared that only yesterday was the child who died a week ago Thursday, buried in a pauper's grave.

WEISBORD DICTATOR OF THE STRIKE IN PASSAIC

PASSAIC, N. J., March 12.—(AP)—Ties between silk workers in New Jersey mills and the striking woolen workers of the Passaic district were strengthened today, despite the previously proclaimed "hands-off" policy on the part of the silk workers, when leaders of the two groups conferred, and it was announced that some silk workers in Paterson had gone on strike.

Albert Weisbord chairman of the strikers' united front committee, and Fred Hoelscheran, secretary-treasurer of the Associated Silk Workers, of Paterson, were the conferees.

Hoelseher afterward announced that 50 workers in the National Silk Dyeing plant, in Paterson, had gone on strike.

Weisbord announced that tomorrow a committee will go to New York to consult attorneys there concerning the possibility of starting a congressional investigation of working conditions in the mills.

In Lodi, strikers from the United Piece Dye works, who were the first silk workers to join the strikers from the woolen mills, threatened to disrupt a meeting because Lodi police would not admit Felix Penarsl, a woolen worker and one of Weisbord's lieutenants.

They won their point and Penarsl was let in, but the meeting broke up before its purpose came to light. It was reported to have been called to offer the strikers a 10 per cent wage increase, but the mill owners denied they wanted to make any such offer.

Ministers of the Passaic Ministerial association and from the Catholic churches of the district met in Passaic with Weisbord, and appointed a committee of three to attempt mediation in the strike.

Six clergymen, including the Rev. George H. Talbott, president of the Ministerial association, withdrew from the conference, afterwards because Weisbord refused to admit newspaper men.

Thirty-three strikers were arrested in New York when they tried to conduct a "tag day" to raise relief funds. Two hundred came over in trucks for the occasion, and tried to collect funds on the street. They had no permit.

In Garfield two women, one carrying a revolver, were arrested for trying to intimidate workers entering a woolen mill. Strike officials said the women were not strikers, and had no connection with their picket lines.

V. W. PAGE DECLINES TO PRODUCE FIRM'S BOOKS

NEW YORK, March 12.—(AP)—Victor W. Page, president of the Victor Page Motors Company, of Stamford, Conn. testified at a hearing today before Deputy State Attorney General Milholland that his company would not permit him to comply with an order to produce books of the company.

The corporation is being investigated to learn whether it violated the Martin act by its stock sales activities in this state.

Page testified that he was willing to produce the books, but that the treasurer of the corporation, on advice of counsel, refused to relinquish them.

Milholland then notified Page that failure to produce the books under subpoena was sufficient grounds for a preliminary injunction.

"I tried my best to bring the boks," the witness asserted. "But I was prevented by conditions beyond my control, some of the directors objected also to sending the books out of the state of Connecticut and intimated that if I removed them from Connecticut I might incur serious legal obligation there."

STRIKE PICKET DRIVEN TO COVER BY BLIZZARDS

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., March 12—(AP)—Wintry winds, bitter cold and raging blizzards have proved too much for the striker who is believed to hold the world's record for picketing. For four years, ever since the Bookbinders' Union went out on strike in May 1921, James Smith has picketed the University Press. For eight hours every work day he paddled back and forth urging non-union workers to join the union.

Hat with the sleeves of a mode of old fashioned New England winter, Smith's long hours gradually fell to seven, six and then four hours. When the second worst snow storm in the city's history overwhelmed the city he failed to appear before 1 p. m. as the workers were leaving to resume his monotonous chant of "Join the union, join the union," and it became known today that the man, who has been made an organizer for this union, will no longer serve his time hours. He appears now only at closing time. The management of the plant claims that his efforts have been futile, that the workers are still non-union men.

AUTO HIT BY TRAIN; DRIVER HAS LUCKY ESCAPE

(Special to The Bulletin)

WILLIMANTIC, March 12—The fact that he was thrown out of his Ford touring car when it was struck by the east bound passenger train No. 114 at the Ash street grade crossing, about 10 o'clock this morning, probably saved the life of John Olszewski of 35 Yellow Row. The machine was badly wrecked and the driver suffered a bad gash on the forehead and several scalp wounds not of a serious nature. He was taken to St. Joseph's hospital. There were no known eye-witnesses to the accident. As far as could be determined the man was driving down the incline of Ash street and for some reason did not hear any signal. It would have been impossible to see the train until too late as the crossing has a blind approach and has been a constant menace to public safety and the butt of much fruitless criticism. The Ford was struck a glancing blow and thrown to the opposite track. Three of the wheels were ripped off and the top, radiator and section of the car near the driver's seat were demolished. The train, which was manned by Engineer F. E. Wilson and Conductor J. E. Sautter, was brought to a quick stop. Harry A. Blanchette, local agent of the New York, New Haven and Hartford railroad stated that the engine whistle had been sounded as the train approached the crossing and that a test of the bell tonal showed that it was in working condition. Rev. James G. Graham, pastor of the Windham Center Congregational church arrived at the crossing about one minute after the mishap and he stated that he had not heard any signal from the engine. He could not say whether or not the bell alarm had been ringing. The train is due out of Willimantic for Boston at 10.01 a. m. and it continued on its journey after several minutes' delay.

MANY FINE ADDRESSES AT DISTRICT MEETING

(Special to The Bulletin)

WILLIMANTIC, March 12—The Norwich district churches of the New England Southern Conference were represented by about 150 clergymen and delegates at the sectional world service conference held at the local Methodist Episcopal church today.

Morning, afternoon and evening sessions were held with programs to inspire interest in the home and foreign work. Notable Methodist divines discussed the problems of world evangelism and the scope of church work at home and abroad. The needs of the rural, city and industrial activities were pointed out.

Dr. George H. Spencer of Boston called the forenoon session to order at 9 o'clock. The first business was the appointment of a findings committee to report on the meetings.

Rev. Edgar H. Rue, former missionary in Singapore, Straits Settlements, was the first speaker. His discussion was on the problem of Missionary education and in his talk he explained that the missionary education movement located in New York is not a Methodist organization, but is supported by 34 boards of home and foreign missions of 17 different denominations.

Rev. David E. Kendall, up to recently pastor of the Methodist church in Sheridan, Wyoming, delivered an address on Every Member Canvas, which he termed the second most important thing in missionary education. He urged that along with securing information there be a consecration of the substance and went on to state that a Christian conscience is never cheap. If it is cheap it is not Christian for he said, a Christian conscience wants to do the thing God wants it to do.

Dr. Spencer, the third speaker, outlined the subject of The World Service Council of the local church, declaring that the plan now evolved by the World service commission of the Methodist church is the most democratic ever attempted and is carried out through the decisions of the church to the home and foreign mission cause, as well as the other benevolences of the church combined under the world service commission. The local church committee votes on the apportionment, the district does likewise and the area attempts to meet the share of the $18,500,000 budget for the work.

Bishop William F. Anderson of Boston, who was to have been chairman of the morning session, did not arrive until late in the forenoon, at which time he delivered his talk on The Supreme Motive of Our World Task. In his opening remarks he said: "We are feeling the end of denominationalism in the foreign field and the question now is whether or not we are willing to sacrifice leadership and to become advisory, helpful and brotherly instead of denominating. He told of the need for social modern interpretations of the gospels of Jesus Christ among the inhabitants of heathen lands.

During the intervals of the address prayer and song services were conducted by the Reverends Dr. M. C. Center, district superintendent, Dr. C. E. Spaulding, Joseph Cooper and W. E. Blanton.

The session closed at 12.30 o'clock and all adjourned to the vestry of the church where members of the church sorority served an excellent luncheon.

With a brief devotional service in charge of Bishop Anderson the afternoon session opened at two o'clock.

Rev. Dr. E. E. Tuck of India was the first speaker, his subject being The Christian Church and the India of Today. He traved the history of church work in the Orient and the existing barriers for permanent progress socially and religiously. He expressed his utter confidence, however, that India must win through the new spirit prevailing.

The final speaker of the afternoon was Dr. John M. M. Gray of Scranton, Pa., his address tracing the growth of modernism in the world.

In the evening Bishop Fisher delivered an inspiring address which brought the speaking program to a close.

The evening session of the World Service conference of the Norwich district of the New England Southern conference held in the Methodist church here Friday was made public and was largely attended. Rev. Myron E. Center, district superintendent was chairman for the evening. The speaker was Rev. D. D. Forsythe of Philadelphia who talked on "Home Missions", dealing with the frontier problems brought about by the development of new territories especially by government irrigation and the general shifting of population. He urged a strong interest in the alien population, emphasizing the fact that there is no advantage in sending missionaries to other countries if the natives of those nations are given no recognition when they come to our shores.

Rev. Sallis of Mystic led in the song service with Mrs. Clara Beebe at the organ. Prayer was offered by Rev Frank Gray of Rockville.

An act of incendiarism is believed responsible for a fire which caused damage to the large dwelling house at 486 Pleasant street, owned by Maryanna Mazzola, shortly before one o'clock Friday morning. A bell alarm was sounded from Box 19, at the junction of Bridge and Pleasant streets and Engine Company No. 1 responded. The fire started in the cellar near the bulkhead door and had worked through the first floor when the firemen arrived. Mr. Mazzola, who was eating a luncheon in another room, discovered the blaze. Hose connections were made and recall was sounded at 1:15 o'clock.

The building is a four-tenement structure, two of the tenements being occupied. Carpenters and masons have been engaged in making alterations in the two empty tenements and as there was no stove nor any electric wiring in that part of the house it became the opinion of Chief Henry J. Kelley that the fire was started by an incendiary. State Policeman Garrison J. Hulburt of the Stafford barracks is conducting an investigation.

Miss Barbara Kruger, state secretary of the Connecticut league of Girls' clubs spoke on the 14th biennial convention of the National League of Girls' clubs, to be held in Washington, D. C., May 3, 4 and 5 at the meeting of the Windham Girls' club Thursday night. The league has as one of its purposes to create a better understanding of our government and the responsibilities of citizenship among the members. The club voted to send President Miss Ethel Connor as a delegate to the convention. Mrs. James H. Ashton was chosen chairlady of a public social to be given soon. The hostesses for the evening were Mrs. George W. Fox, Mrs. James H. Anglewall, Mrs. Lucy D. Arnold and Miss Jane Ashton.

Following a service at the late home, 54 Round street, a requiem high mass was held at St. Joseph's church at nine o'clock Friday morning for Mrs. Mary Slaughter Wilson. Rev. Paul Bartlewski being the celebrant. Mrs. E. R. Portelance was at the organ and Miss L. Monica McKeon and Edward Fitzgerald were soloists. Burial was in the family plot in St. Joseph's cemetery, where Rev. Paul Bartlewski conducted the committal service. The bearers were John Healy, Patrick Dennehy, Charles Hirn, Jr., Jack Connell, Daniel Sullivan and Michael McGillicuddy. Arrangements were by Kilkenny Brothers.

Mrs. Agnes H. Wood, wife of John N. Wood died at her home in South Coventry early Friday morning. She was born in Norwich, May 4, 1840, a daughter of George W. and Sarah Northrup Colton. She deceased was a member of the First Congregational church and was affiliated with Anne Wood Eldredge chapter, D. A. R. Besides her husband she leaves one son, Burton N. Wood; one daughter, Mrs. William A. Tinker of Melrose Highland, Mass.; one brother, Walter N. Capron of Waterford, Mass., one sister, Mrs. William P. Wood of South Coventry.

State Policemen Edward Burnes and Henry Helmold of the Stafford Springs barracks were stationed at the intersection of West Main street and Columbia avenue for two hours Thursday night checking up automobiles not properly equipped with headlights or having other faulty arrangements. Two drivers were apprehended and they were placed in police court Friday morning.

JEWETT CITY

RECALL GREAT SNOW STORM OF MARCH, 1888

(Special to The Bulletin.)

JEWETT CITY, March 12.—"It's a wonder," remarked one of the borough's old timers, Friday, "that some of you newspaper chaps don't write of the anniversary of the greatest snow storm that Jewett City ever saw." Dating 38 years back from the time this Saturday morning's Bulletin is being read, the then village of Jewett City didn't get any to read nor did this welcome visitor arrive with news from the outside world for close to a week. No train was able to make as far north as this town for three days, and when the three engineers and plow did arrive it took all of the light hours of another day to buck through the drift that filled the cut just north of the present depot. The storm began Tuesday afternoon, in a sort of lazy, half-hearted way and some said it was too warm to snow. Before night came a sharp drop in the temperature and a shift of wind to the northeast, set the stage. Snow as fine as meal, driven by a steady cutting blast from the east and north, kept coming without a let up for three days and nights. People became bewildered and lost even at their own doors.

By the end of the second day all business was suspended, for indeed it was beyond human endurance to face the gale. This town, and all the surrounding section was buried under from four to six feet of solidly packed snow, with drifts, 10 and even 20 feet deep. People living in the outlying district of Griswold will recall, with Whittier in Snowbound, that "The well-curb had a Chinese roof; and even the long sweep, high aloof, in its slant splendor, seemed to tell of Pisa's leaning miracle."

Beginning next Monday morning, the Riverside grammar school will begin the custom of supplying milk for the use of its about 400 pupils, that an added pleasure may be available with such luncheon as they may bring from home.

The milk is to be the certified sterilized product of the Norman farm, and taken from registered inspected cows. It will be offered in sealed half pint bottles, for which the pupils will pay only its cost, and with it will begiven a sterilized commercial straw, so that no cups will be needed.

Superintendent F. H. P. Clement has not been slow in adopting this sanitary convenience.

To receive town taxes now due, I will be at town clerk's, Monday, 1 to 4.—U. E. Jodoin, collector.—adv.

The great flocks of English starlings to be seen about the borough are attracting attention on account of their unusually large numbers. A medium sized ash, to whose branches a large flock had flown Friday, when frightened from feeding in an open lot, was transformed into a veritable rookery. Conservatively estimated there were 300 birds in the flock. Within another month or six weeks the flocking will suddenly cease, and a spell of exceedingly jealous courting will begin, with much scrapping until each has selected his dusky affinity. Even now, as one comes upon a flock in a nearby tree, the plumage of the male will be seen to be taking on its nuptial beauty.

The Limited Mail at the Finn theatre, Thursday evening furnished fine amusement for a large audience.

Some may find certain signs of spring elusive and unreliable, but there is one from which there is hardly any escape. These forecasters are the town tax notices which are being posted about the town.

Mrs. Joseph Pepin, 57, died in St. Joseph's hospital, Providence, late Thursday night. She leaves her husband and eight children, Mrs. Celia McCafferty and Mrs. Flora Gilchrist of Greeneville, Mrs. Eva Fitzmaurice of Taftville, George and Fred Pepin of Springfield, Joseph, Peter and Leona Pepin of Jewett City. She leaves two sisters, Mrs. Mary Desperiers of Plainfield and Mrs. Rosanna Pepin of Taftville, and a brother, Xavier Cyr of Jewett City. There are ten grandchildren. Mrs. Pepin's home is on Lincoln square.

Everett Claypool, Ph. D., of Hartford, district superintendent of the Anti-Saloon League will occupy the pulpit of the Congregational church on Sunday evening.

NORTH WINDHAM

OBITUARY

Mrs. Martha Whitford

(Contributed)

Mrs. Martha Whitford, 84, who died at her home at North Windham Sunday morning March 7th, had been in very poor health for several years and confined to her bed most of the time the past winter. Although she was a great sufferer she was very patient, making it as easy as she possibly could for her daughters, Mrs. Walter Pike and Mrs. Frank Platt, who had tenderly cared for her in her declining years.

She was born in Eastford, Sept. 24, 1841, the daughter of Lorenzo and Mary Lyon, and a niece of General Lyon. She was the widow of John L. Whitford, a native of Ashford. In their early married life they resided in West Thompson and Mr. Whitford carried on the meat business. They later lived in Worcester, Mass., and in South Woodstock for a few years. Over forty years ago Mr. and Mrs. Whitford and their daughters went back to Ashford and bought a farm, living over twenty years on the place formerly owned and carried on by Mr. Whitford's father and mother. About twenty years ago they bought a home in North Windham, but Mr. Whitford lived but a few years to enjoy it. He passed away fourteen years ago. Since his death the place has been carried on by their son-in-law, Lemuel Platt.

Mrs. Whitford was a great lover of family and home and had a large circle of friends.

The funeral service was held at the home Wednesday afternoon at 2:30 and was attended by many relatives and friends. Rev. John H. Knott, of Chaplin, paid a tribute to Mrs. Whitford and spoke of the great loss to her home and the community through her death. Mrs. Nye and her daughter Ruth of Willimantic sang two hymns, "When the Comforter Came," and "Precious Promise," during the service at the home, and they sang "Beautiful Isle of Somewhere," at the committal service. The bearers were Charles Johnson, Arthur Johnson of Stafford, Chas. Lyon of Willington and her son-in-law, Frank Platt. There were beautiful floral pieces. Relatives and friends were present from Norwich, Putnam, West Thompson Stafford East Longmeadow Mass., Willington, Ashford, Eastford, Abington and Willimantic.

A beautiful tribute to "Aunt Martha Whitford" was written by her niece, Mrs. Lottie Wagner, of East Longmeadow Mass.

Mrs. Whitford is survived by two daughters, Mrs. Walter Pike and Mrs. Frank Platt, of North Windham and a brother Nathaniel Lyon of Eastford.

See how amazingly white your week's wash now becomes —in half the time no washboard rubbing

"I always looked forward to wash day with regret, for it meant hours of hard work before the washing could be hung out to dry. Now things are different for I use the modern way. Rinso not only does the hard work for me, but it makes the clothes snowy white. I simply complete the work by rinsing and hanging out the clothes. Rinso saves time and trouble, but I think its greatest value lies in its cleansing without hard rubbing."

Millions use Rinso. Thousands write us letters like this

Rinso
The new kind of soap
Soaps dirt out
Rinso
Rinso
Takes the place of bar soap

WOMEN everywhere are astonished at the new kind of soap that washes clothes by gently soaking out the dirt. It gets the family wash whiter than ever, without hard rubbing—and with absolute safety to clothes.

Rinso is an entirely new kind of soap—granulated. It dissolves quickly and loosens the ground-in dirt. It is all you need on washday, even in hardest water.

Just soak the wash in Rinso suds—overnight or an hour or two in the morning. Then rinse—and the clothes are whiter, sweeter, cleaner than you could ever rub them! Dirt and stains float off in the soaking. Even the most soiled places need only a gentle rub between the fingers to make them spotless.

Saves hands — saves clothes

No laundry soap is easier on hands or safer to use than Rinso. It contains no acids, harsh chemicals or bleaches—nothing to injure white clothes or fast colors.

Rinso makes clothes last longer—because it ends the wear and tear of washboard scrubbing.

Fine for washing machines

Rinso gives wonderful results in the washing machine. Recommended by 23 leading washing machine manufacturers for safety, and for a whiter, brighter wash. Fine for boiling—though boiling isn't necessary, as Rinso sterilizes as it washes. Get Rinso, for small cost, from your grocer. Follow directions on package.

NEW BOOKS SUGGEST GAY WOMEN BUT SOLEMN MEN

New York, March 13 (AP)—The sad young men and the gay ladies are ready for their spring parade. The New York publishing houses have announced ther seasonal lists.

The titles sugges a season of sober and disillusioned young men, with the ladies somewhat gayer. F. Scott Fitzgerald's contribution even bears the title All The Sad Young Men. It is a collection of stories of the younger generation. Meade Minnigerode lightens the pall with Some American Ladies, all of them wives of presidents; Cora Harries contributes Flapper Anne and A. P. Herbert, produces Laughing Ann And Other Poems.

Ring Lardner spans the gap between the somber young men and the bright girls with The Love Nest and Other Stories, concerning some very gay young men regarded in the corner.

BETTER THAN CALOMEL

Thousands Have Discovered Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets are a Harmless Substitute

Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets—the substitute for calomel—are a mild but sure laxative, and their effect on the liver is almost instantaneous. These little olive-colored tablets are the result of Dr. Edwards' determination not to treat liver and bowel complaints with calomel.

The pleasant little tablets do the good that calomel does, but have no bad after effects. They don't injure the teeth like strong liquids or calomel. They take hold of the trouble and quickly correct it. Why cure the liver at the expense of the teeth? Calomel sometimes plays havoc with the gums. So do strong liquids. It is best not to take calomel. Let Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets take its place.

Headaches, "dullness" and that lazy feeling come from constipation and a disordered liver. Take Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets when you feel "logy" and "heavy." They "clear" clouded brain and "perk up" the spirits. 15c and 30c.

PEOPLE PLAY CARDS WHILE BUILDING BURNS

(Special to the Bulletin)

DANIELSON, March 13.—Even as late as Friday, few people here knew that one of Danielson's centrally located business blocks had been endangered during Thursday night by a fire that broke out in the office of Dr. J. C. Maslen, on the second floor of the structure known generally as the Windham County Savings bank building, now owned by the Brooklyn Savings bank, and occupied for business purposes, offices and lodge rooms.

On the third floor of the building at the time the fire was discovered by Dr. Maslen, 125 people were playing whist at a party arranged by the Woman's auxiliary of Leo J. L'Homme post, American legion. Some of the players made mention of smelling smoke, but little attention was paid to this and the whist party went on without interruption.

Meanwhile, Dr. Maslen, who had been in Providence, returned to town about 9:45, and went to his office. He was unshrouded in smoke as he unlocked the door and entered. He was nearly choked by dense smoke as he groped about for lights and finally forced toward a window to get it open. In the meantime Thomas Beckett, a World war veteran, attending the whist, discovered Dr. Maslen fighting the fire alone, quietly went up a flight and informed Past Commander Ira A. Warren of the legion post of the situation on the floor below.

Mr. Warren, another overseas man, left the legion hall quietly and without any explanations, hurried to the central fire station on Academy street and with Qudon Withey, who was at the station, took out Chief Woodward's department car, equipped with extinguishers and went to Dr. Maslen's assistance. In the meantime the whist party continued uninterrupted.

Dr. Maslin, the firemen and Chief Woodward, who happened along after attending a theater, worked on the blaze that had eaten through a partition in Dr. Maslen's laboratory and subdued it insofar as its immediate danger was concerned. Meanwhile the fire was eating upwards through the partitions to the third floor. Going up there hookers of Orient lodge, K. of P., had to be forced open to get at a partition that was cut through and more chemicals poured in until the fire was put out. The damage to the building will be less than $100. Dr. Maslen's personal loss has not been computed Friday, but he has considerable damage in his laboratory. No alarm was sounded for the fire and the whist continued uninterrupted.

A theory as to the fire's origin is that an electric motor somehow was thrown into low speed and started, heated after a time and transmitted its surplus heat to a pair of wires touching woodwork on a window casing that eventually blazed. Dr. Maslen was pleased that the damage was no greater than it proved to be.

TO RUSH WORK ON NEW HIGH SCHOOL ADDITION

(Special to the Bulletin)

DANIELSON, March 13.—Nature and circumstances are now the only things standing between preparations for starting additions to Killingly high school and the actual undertaking of the work. The stage is set for the beginning of actual building operations. The construction company that has been given the main building contract might will be held up no more than a few days by nature. There is some frost in the ground, but that is coming out day by day and the present month should produce conditions sufficiently favorable to start excavations for the foundations. The builders will have the work to themselves for a number of weeks before the plumbing, heating and electrical contractors do anything at all. By midsummer such work will be underway to have the enlarged building in readiness for the opening of another school year in September.

With the work completed, Killingly will have a splendidly equipped high school, with accommodations for 500 pupils. It will have spade ample to increase the number of courses, a fine gymnasium and many other features in keeping with the educational requirements of this community, and the others the school serves, and should be adequate to care for another score of years the high school requirements of the town.

It is recalled that it was 15 years ago the coming spring that the present high school was erected, after much controversy as to the need of its the expense of maintaining it and so forth and so on. Killingly has gone on to see the wisdom of those who provided for the future educational needs of the town, and did so in the face of many obstacles and much opposition. Such conflict, happily, has not been in evidence when enlargement of the high school has been under consideration, though there has been some pulling and hauling of more or less inconsequential nature. Killingly maintains its heritage of good schools, ably administered, and still looks to the future in spending the money it is about to invest in high school development. No item that comes to mind can match a town's legacy of a real education to its children. It fastens upon them something apart from all that is trivial and frothy. There is ever a ready market for its powers in the marts of the world.

A great Boston newspaper gave space Friday to what may be considered in this town to a bit of good-natured spoofing of a graduate of Killingly high school and one of the most brilliant students of the senior class of Boston university. Here's the yarn, just as it appeared, minus, unfortunately, a picture of the young man in question:

Those dark eyed cynics who look with disfavor at the modern college student, who say that there is no hope for them, have found a ray of hope for the future of mankind in general and college students in particular at Boston university, home of globe trotting football teams and United States champion debaters. For lo, at this institution is that rarest of rare things, an unkissed senior.

There is obviously some excuse for a senior who is not too kood looking to remain unkissed, but when you find a senior who is one of the most prominent men in his class, an officer, a member of Skull, the highest of all honors at Boston university, the reason is veiled in mystery. The gentleman in question is Arthur F. Tillinghas of Danielson, Conn.

Moreover, he has attended junior proms and many dances. As a freshman, "Tilly", as he is generally called, was elected treasurer of the class and has held that position for three times since. He has been chairman of half a dozen of the more important social committees and committees in general.

No, "Tilly" is not a blushing, stammering boy. No one knows why he is unkissed. As for looks, he is one of the handsomest seniors at Boston university.

The Bulletin has a special communication thus morning from His Honor, The Groundhog. He writes: "Why wait for the Cloud Digger and his 725d semi-annual forecast to be issued next week? Listen to me. Didn't I tell you February 2, that there would be six weeks more of winter? I hope to tell you I told you — and everybody. Didn't I make good? It is to laugh. You should know. The six weeks I forecasted end next Monday. If you haven't had enough winter meanwhile, write and tell me, but I guess you have had plenty. I buried you under two big snowstorms within the first 10 days of February and I have kept you digging and slipping and shoveling coal ever since. I have even forced people to go out and feed the birds to keep them from starving. If the Cloud Digger thinks he has anything on me, let him prove it. I'm some weather prophet—but I only deal with six weeks of the year. I suppose it must be a tougher job to tell what is going to happen weatherwise for six months than it is for six weeks ahead, but I'll let you in on a secret. All us weather fellers guess at it. I guessed right this season and am broadcasting the fact. I am sitting pretty waiting for the Cloud Digger's effusion of next week. He's got to guess some to beat this baby!"

Men who have been sitting back quietly listening to the ballyhoo about equal rights for women may feel that they have been presented with a tremendous promotion as to residents of this state fishing on trout brooks leased by the state of Connecticut. It is set forth in Section 12, Chapter 123 of the Public Acts of 1925 that women who wish to fish in trout brooks leased by the state must take out an angler's license to do so, as does a mere man. No such requirement is made of women who fish in other streams meandering through Connecticut. Therefore, if you meet Aida or Jessica or Mary Jane fishing in Snake Meadow brook this coming spring and she is without a great big button pinned on the left breast of her outer garment and is without a fishing license that costs $2.25, you will be privileged to harangue her about it—and take her down to the police station to await court action, if she is not able to furnish bond. To a hard-boiled trout fisherman this looks like equal rights with a vengeance.

As to these leased brooks, not even youngsters under 16 years of age can fish them without a permit, though they are exempt from any state supervision in fishing other streams of the state. These permits are issued without charge upon application, either to the state Board of fisheries and game or the game wardens in a district. This information is imparted in justice to those who may benefit by it, and that the fishermen who have to pay a license may laugh at the expense of what sometimes has been called the unfair sex, though you never can tell about that.

An exception to the foregoing statute is that owners of lands and their relatives may fish without licenses or permits where leased streams run through such lands.

MRS. BASSETT ALWAYS TIRED

Now in Good Health by Using Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Lansing, Mich.—"I have taken Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound whenever I needed it. When I first used it I was so bad I could hardly walk across the room without crying. I was tired all the time. I think my trouble was coming on me for six months before I realized it. I read of your wonderful medicine in the paper, and my husband bought me a bottle, and after the first few doses I felt better, so kept on taking it until I was well and strong. I take it at times when I feel tired and it helps me. I will always have a good word for your medicine and tell anyone what good it has done me. I recommended it to my neighbor for her girl, who is sixteen years old, and it was just what she needed. She is feeling fine now, and goes to school every day." —Mrs. E. F. Bassett, 216 South Hayford Avenue, Lansing, Michigan.

Do not continue to feel all run-down and half sick when Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is sold by druggists everywhere.

DOG QUARANTINE LIFTED—WAS IN FORCE SINCE DEC. 28

(Special to The Bulletin)

STAFFORD SPRINGS, March 13—Town Clerk J. Carl Converse received a notice Friday morning from J. M. Whittlesey, commissioner on domestic animals, which is quite pleasing to dog owners in the town of Stafford. According to this notice the dog quarantine, which has been in effect here since Dec. 28th, will be lifted March 15th at 12 o'clock noon. After that time it will not be necessary to keep dogs tied or restrained. PUTNAM

TRIAL OF SUIT FOR UNPAID BILL OF $386

(Special to The Bulletin)

PUTNAM, March 13—There was one case tried in superior court today before Judge Edwin C. Dickenson, following which an adjournment was taken until next Tuesday, March 15, when the jury cases are called.

The title of the action today was A. Joseph & Bros., vs. Naizha, alias Naza Abood.

The plaintiff is a wholesale dry goods firm in Springfield, Mass., the defendant up until January, 1925 conducted a general store at Moosup. At the date mentioned he filed a petition in bankruptcy. All the parties are Syrians. The defendant speaks but cannot write English, and his wife had to testify through an interpreter.

A. Joseph, the first witness said that he was a salesman as well as a partner in the firm of A. Joseph & Bros. Prior to September 24, 1924, he had made regular calls on the defendant and sold him merchandise, and, as a result, collected for the previous consignment. On the September visit he told Mr. Abood that he had been directed by his firm not to sell him any more goods unless the payment was guaranteed by Mrs. Abood. She was in the store, he said, when he called there the latter part of September. He told her his instructions and she had agreed to be responsible. The godos he said, had been shipped to the Boston Dry Goods store care of Mrs. Abood.

When shown a manilla sheet of paper he said that it was a carbon copy of the order which amounted to $386. But, he declared, Mrs. Abood's name had been erased and he pointed to a place on the sheet where he insisted her name had originally appeared.

Michael Joseph verified the statements of his mother and partner. The defendant testified that he had bought the bill of goods on September 24, 1924 in the usual way and paid for it with a check for $86 and three notes of $100 each, due at short intervals. His wife, he said, was not in the store at the time, that she seldom came there, that she did not verify the order or agree to be responsible for its payment, that she had never seen Mr. Joseph until she went to her home after he became a bankrupt, and tried to get her to pay or agree to pay the $300 still due. This he said she had declined to do.

Mrs. Abood through an interpreter made the same statement as her husband and Miss Sada Abood, who was her father's bookkeeper, went into fuller details about the transaction. She said that she had drawn and signed the check of $86 for her father, as well as the three notes, and that Mr. Joseph had taken them away with him.

When recalled both of the plaintiffs denied that they had ever received or seen the notes referred to.

Judge Bill testified that a Mr. Haddad of Willimantic had visited him at his law office in Danielson after the insolvency of the defendant, had shown him the notes and wanted him to undertake recovery on them. He had advised him, he said, to file them with the trustee in bankruptcy.

In announcing that he would take the matter under advisement Judge Dickenson added that the case was almost wholly a matter of fact and not law.

OUTDOORS APPEALS TO MANY ACTORS OF MOVIE COLONY

HOLLYWOOD, Cal., March 12 (AP)—John Barrymore, who left Broadway this season to work in the movies, has become a typical Izaak Walton.

Whenever he finds a day away from the camera, he packs up and goes on a fishing trip.

There is nothing that gives me so much peace of mind and rest of body," he said.

Syd Chaplin and Monte Blue, who also are in the coterie of Warner Brothers stars, are athletes. They play tennis, golf, ride horseback and go in for regular gymnastics.

When Irene Rich is not working at the studio or on location, she utilizes many of her spare moments in designing costumes for new pictures. Her favorite out-door sport is horseback riding.

Dolores Costello, who appeared opposite Barrymore in The Sea Beast has danced since she was a child and she intends to keep it up with her work in the movies.

Not one but several are the bebies of Louise Fazenda. One is collecting ancient china. Another is reading and a third is the collection of ostriches.

Patsy Ruth Miller has a roadster and she spends hours in it.

DONOGHUE COULD NOT LOSE HIS RACE EVEN FOR MOVIES

NORWICH TREES

When it comes to the appearance of the streets and to the value of property among the important contributing factors are the trees. They transform our streets and they greatly improve residential property.

We not only need trees, healthy trees, but we need to take care of them, protect them against the ravages of disease and to treat them so that defects will be overcome.

Norwich needs the services of a tree warden who not only knows how to cut down a tree but who understands "tree surgery" for the latter frequently can be rendered without removing the tree and even when there is a certain amount of trimming that is demanded in the interest of appearance and safety.

For a long period Norwich has been without any provision for the care of its trees, except when it comes to removing them and an uncertain amount of spraying. There is need for much more effective work in the matter of spraying. Instead of making an attempt at it by means of inefficient apparatus and inexperienced workers there should be adequate equipment and real spraying provided. How much better it is to protect the trees against the various pests in an efficient manner and thereby preserve the trees than it is to do a job halfway and even find it necessary to cut down the trees. Replacement with new ones might be urged but in these days of hard surfaced streets and gutters it would be next to impossible to get new trees to grow, and even if they did under favorable circumstances it would be another generation before they approached those which were lost through neglect.

In addition to such provisions it would likewise be well worth while for Norwich to give consideration to the setting out of a definite number of new trees each year, not only as a replacement of those removed for different reasons but for the purpose of giving the city the additional benefit that comes from shade trees. It is time now not to preserve what we have but to provide for the future and the city should give the matter the much needed consideration.

Let it be included in the estimates for the coming year.

AUTOMOBILE DESCRIPTIONS

A warning that is probably much more important than it seems is that given by the department of motor vehicles concerning the necessity of the appearance of automobiles.

We don't take this to mean that the owner of the weatherbeaten car or the well spattered machine must report that condition to the motor vehicle department, since minor changes might make it difficult to identify from the original description. We don't believe that the polishing of a car needs to be reported to Hartford and we don't understand that a painting of a car calls for a report provided the new paint is of the same color both as to the body of the car and the running gear.

It is where changes are made in the colouring of machines that the law requires it necessary to notify the motor vehicle department. The reasonableness of this can be appreciated, and yet in all probability many car owners might easily overlook this requirement and do so innocently.

For that reason the reminder by the department is well timed. Cars will be coming out of the paint shop in large numbers from now on. There's no telling how many will require a different description from that previously given to the department, but where that is necessary the owner will do well to indicate that change to the department at Hartford. This not only straightens out the description but it will save trouble and a fine in case the car is traced for any reason. It is likewise a matter of no little importance to the owner for should the car be stolen the value of having the correct description in the motor vehicle department to which reference might be made can be appreciated.

On the other hand it is much cheaper to correct the description than to take a chance of being caught and paying a $10 fine.

THE TACNA-ARICA PLEBISCITE

Through no fault or its own but because of the unwillingness of Chile and Peru to lend their assistance to an amicable adjustment of the Tacna-Arica dispute, the effort of this country to bring about South American tangle seems to be making little progress. What is agreeable to one side is opposed by the other and vice versa. Let an impartial decision be rendered and it is at once countered by the childish claim, "I'm not going to play."

For some time the indications have been that the attempted solution through a plebiscite would not succeed. First one of the countries and then the other has kicked over the traces. General Pershing was worn out by it and even though there is an unwillingness to abandon the effort there seems little prospect of an adjustment under the present attitude maintained by the respective nations. They have maintained a fighting attitude for years and now are unwilling to do anything to bring about a change.

What the outcome will be no one knows. Intimations have been made though without confirmation, that this country was endeavoring to undertake a new solution. What it was was not disclosed. It has been suggested on various occasions that the districts of Tacna and Arica should be acquired by Bolivia, if that were done it would place a buffer state between Chile and Peru and it would give Bolivia an outlet to the sea, which it lacks at the present time. Such a disposition of the disputed territory would eliminate both unfriendly neighbors, and it would be a fine thing for Bolivia, it would welcome such an arrangement but there has always been the question of the purchase price when such a thing has been suggested and that obstacle still exists. If out of the goodness of their hearts the two countries could be prevailed upon to waive all claims in behalf of Bolivia it would be a generous plan, but thus far there has been no evidence that the disputants are at all inclined in that direction.

REFLECTS OUR CREDIT

While no one has had any doubt about the credit of the United States it has been clearly set forth by the response that has been made to the issue of $500,000,000 bonds at 3 3-4 per cent. which were placed on the market at 100 1-2. This issue will run for 30 years and was oversubscribed by $160,000,000. This is the lowest rate of interest that has been placed on any long term government bonds since before our entrance into the World war, and it is to be noted that the bonds have been sold at a premium despite the lowered rate. The issuance of such bonds indicated the confidence of the secretary of the treasury in its flotation, and the large over subscription shows how justified was that confidence.

These bonds have been issued for the purpose of meeting treasury certificates amounting to $615,000,000 which are coming due. In addition it will be necessary to employ part of the income tax receipts which will be received next week, but the handling of the government's finances under Secretary Mellon are displaying in this instance, as in those previously, the highest grade of financial service.

Through such cutting of the interest rate, through the buying up of government securities and through the handling of the government funds expert attention of a rare quality is being directed to the lowering of the nation's indebtedness. Already magnificent progress has been made in that direction, but it is apparent that there is going to be no let up. There is certainly need for its continuance. We still have a large debt to meet, other notes and bonds must be met and confidence prevails throughout the country that such a masterly hand as Andrew Mellon is directing our finances.

THE SQUABBLE AT GENEVA

The situation at Geneva is one that indicates the difficulties before the league of nations. Without any doubt it is highly desirable that Germany should be a member of the league. It is certain to be an important factor in connection with peace in Europe and the importance of having it tied up with the league rather than with some other combination needs no explanation.

It does not appear from Locarno that its entrance into the league and its seat in the council was made dependent upon council seats being granted to other countries. These demands have developed since that time but they have a bearing which cannot be overlooked. Germany is taking good care to protect its interests, as might be expected, while others are doing the same. The result is a situation which means that Germany will not enter the league unless there is some new arrangement. Negotiations haven't been terminated, and it may be that some new plan will be acceptable. The importance of an agreement demands the utmost efforts.

It is not a time when the results at Locarno should be allowed to go for nothing, and it is not a time when the effect upon the disarmament conference, which has been called for May 31 should be ignored.

There are times when the league has been put to severe tests but perhaps none quite as severe as the present one. Others have had to do with the exercise of authority by the league, while this is a struggle between members for advantageous positions within the organization. Germany cannot regard it as the warm welcome it had previously been led to expect.

The best time to investigate crime is in connection with preventive measures.

The selection of Briand to form a new cabinet in France occasions no surprise. The astonishment is that he was ever denied the necessary support.

While it is claimed a gentleman may dress adequately on $450 a year there's no doubt whatever that he might spend less and still be a gentleman.

THE MAN WHO TALKS

There are no phases of human experience in which the law of compensation does not function. If any one of our five senses becomes defective the remaining take on additional duties. We can carry this out—not alone along physical lines—but in the intellectual and moral realms as well. It may seem strange but it sometimes enters state affairs and relieves the tautness of the international strain. For illustration: The question of rubber supply in this country has become acute, and the question is raised if the government of Great Britain is justified in making it such a costly monopoly for this country. In other words, how far is any nation morally justified in putting a fictitious value on any commodity? But after all are not "honors easy?" It is reported that motion picture films made in this country are so far superior to any thing manufactured in England that film producers over there are driven to the wall. Does not that make up for rubber?

As these lines are written everything that is typical of March is being experienced. The word "ideal" exactly applies if you understand it as taking in everything possible in winter's break up. It is that kind of weather in which Miami is on the south side of your house and Montreal on the north; that kind of weather in which men appear in shirt-sleeves in the sun, but wear their ulsters in the shade. But is there not a vigor in the air when the temperature is midway between the north pole and the equator? Isn't it that penetrative quality of the atmosphere that gets into the lower diaphragm, or rather, into the lower region of the diaphragm? This is one of the redemptive features of a month otherwise roundly abused. The man insulted March who said: "I always notice if I live through March I some how manage to get through the rest of the year."

Who wouldn't be president of this great and enlightened United States of America! Whatever action the poor target in the white house takes on any conceivable question it is "damned" if he does, "damned" if he doesn't! The latest is a tirade against his tax reduction scheme, on the ground that it cannot be carried out without incurring a debt which will call for increased taxation next year. There isn't a city, town or even an obscure hamlet anywhere between Plymouth Rock and The Golden Gate that hasn't wisecracs who could run the finances of the country better than the president and his cabinet. It is amazing how many country stores there are in the United States that could furnish secretaries for the treasury for superior to Mellon and men of like caliber. In the reconstruction of many departments connected with the government much wastage has been cut out, and in so doing many birds have been hit, and it is the "hit bird that flutters."

This world of ours is full of great ideas, and judging from past history, at the right time as it would seem the right men have been raised up seemingly to make them known to their fellows. Carlyle in his significant book, Heroes and Hero Worship makes this clear. He says: "We have repeatedly endeavored to explain that all sorts of Heroes are intrinsically the same material; and that a given soul, open to the Divine Significance of Life, then there is given a man fit to speak of this, to sing of this, to fight and work for this, in a great, victorious, enduring manner; there is given a Hero." In this book Carlyle shows that when the time was ripe for world expression of ideas a world character came into prominence. Such names as Jesus, Mahomet, Luther, Knox, Cromwell, Napoleon and others were to express some great world ideas."

Apart from the supreme object up on which the Lenten season would fix our attention, the fact that so many people are willing to have their attention fixed upon it is not without its value. The problems of this world are at least half settled when people are willing to look at them seriously. In the Lenten period we are looking at the great fundamental facts upon which the Christian system is based. If we can only get the attention of the rank and file to examine the claims of the Great Founder to their faith and service, a mighty impetus would be given to the betterment of civilization. The object of the Lenter season can be summed up in this expression: "Behold the Lamb of God that taketh away the sin of the world." If the unusual is resorted to in gaining the attention of the people upon things that are spiritual, the end would seem to justify the means.

This leads us to generalize in the matter. We wonder if any honest effort in any direction is ever wholly lost. Is there not here the working of a natural law? While forces may change the channel of their operations, they neither lose their power nor are they destroyed. A mechanic toils for years on a device which if perfected would be a blessing to humanity. But the work stops just short of full realization. Has this labor of years been a failure? Has it not become a basis for another to carry on to perfection? Has not the idea which he sought to develop reacted on himself? Has the boy who at the last moment finds that he cannot go to college lost what his preparatory studies have done for him? Every honest effort to add something useful to the physical, mental or spiritual world, even if it is not carried to the highest decree, is not, and cannot be, wholly lost.

In seeing clearly the differences in values, and putting the highest value just where it belongs, one needs to have a clear-cut and well-balanced judgment. This seemed to the writer to be the outstanding feature of the series of addresses recently given in our city by Dr. Charles O. Judkins of Glen Falls, N. Y. He struck the right note in his initial address in declaring that we are living in an unbalanced age. He did not berate the times as indicating that we were headed straight for perdition. He clearly saw the many things that make this generation outshine all others in the variety of living. But emphasis is being put where it does not intrinsically belong. The things that make for the highest good are not material but spiritual, and hence the supreme emphasis should be put on spiritualizing humanity, and the real place to begin this is with the young.

It was refreshing to hear a clear and experienced thinker say that the main things in religion did not consist in emphasizing the differences between fundamentalists and modernists, because it does not get one anywhere. Discussion of this does not convert anybody. Whichever side has the better of the argument does not change the historic facts about Jesus. Whatever explanation is given to the phenomenon of his life and character, the record will stand the test of the ages. We can take nothing from what the four gospels say about him. Whatever views may be held concerning his virgin birth, the effect of his amazing personality upon the successive generations for nearly 20 centuries will stand for exactly what it was. It is less subject to change than the granite foundation of the earth itself.

Provaricate to help a man out of a scrape and he will always remember you as an accommodating liar.

NEW ENGLAND AND THE NEW SOUTH

Plans have been made for the simultaneous launching this month of nine great ships at the plant of the Newport News Shipbuilding & Dry Dock company. At the same time, the keels of three other vessels will be laid. The launching by wholesale is one of the many evidences of industrial expansion in the southern states enumerated by the Manufacturers Record of Baltimore. Expatiating upon the significance of the shipbuilding plant at Newport News, it recalls that the Leviathan was reconditioned there and says that of the ships to be launched and to be built, some are commercial vessels for New York companies, and several are yachts for New York men.

The record points out that President Ferguson of the shipbuilding company is a native of North Carolina and that many of the workmen are southerners. Similarly attention is directed to the fact that George Gordon Crawford, who will have charge of the expenditure of from $10,000,000 to $15,000,000 in the improvement of the plant of the Tennessee Coal, Iron & Railroad company at Birmingham, is a native of Georgia and the first graduate of the Georgia School of Technology.

The two cases are striking illustrations of the advance of the new south in industries dependent upon its resources in coal and iron. That the production of steel in the south should be supplemented by the fabrication of ships is natural. But the growth of the shipbuilding interest has been largely unnoticed in the north except by those directly concerned in the business. With this development it can no longer be said that the construction and repair of ships on the Atlantic seaboard is a regional activity. The northern concerns engaged in such business must meet the competition of the southern. They cannot afford to wait for business to come to them. They must go after it advertising the advantages and facilities they have to offer.

Taking Furniture to Grand Rapids

Taking furniture from Mebane, N. C., to Grand Rapids might seem suggestive of carrying coals to Newcastle, yet we have it on the authority of the Manufacturers Record that the White Furniture company of the southern town put in a bid for the equipment of a hotel in the city famous as the home of the Michigan furniture industry and took the job away from the Michigan bidders. Perhaps not in the same class, but serving to show how southern manufacturers are sending their wares far afield is the case of the rubber company at Charlotte, N. C., which recently received an order for 1000 tires from a company operating a fleet of motor busses on the Pacific coast.

Of course, Florida comes into the picture. Some of its newer business activities serve to show that the south is to become the home of diversified industries. There is the story of the man who established a plant near Daytona for putting up guava jelly. The business has grown. It is stated that a traveler on an English steamship recently found that the jelly from Daytona was on its bill of fare, and was told that it was the best that could be obtained. It is sold by groceries in New York, Boston and other northern cities and the business has been broadened to include the making of preserves from watermelon rind. Grapefruit rinds are used in making confections by another manufacturer near Daytona.

Here again is evidence of the fact that what were once regional industries in this country are so no longer. Their products must meet in the competition of similar products produced in many other parts of the country. The food packing industry got its start in the northeastern states. It spread to the middle west. The far west came in to the business. Now we find southern concerns engaged in this art preservative. There will be condition of increasing competition in consequence. Periodicals of national circulation and the newspapers of all sections will print more and more advertising of food stuffs contained in cans and glass jars. The products of farm, orchard and mine will have been succeeded by a multitude of products.

The preserving industry is of importance to New England. It is believed that Ezra Daggett introduced the industry to this country about 1815. It is known that in 1820 William Underwood and Charles Mitchel combined in Boston for the purpose of packing food in containers, beginning with pickles, jams, jellies, sauces and mustards enclosed in glass jars. But it is significant of New England's opportunity that the first foods packed in this country were sea products—salmon and lobster, to be exact. In the century since then, the packing industry in New England has grown to its present proportions, but if it continues to grow it is apparent that it must do so in the face of increasing competition.

Advertising the Cans of New England

In these modern days there are New England packing houses which recognize the value of advertising beyond the borders of this part of the country. There is canning concern in Gloucester which regularly appeals to buyers in distant portions of the country, who are told of the fish that is packed in convenient form to enable it to reach the tables of homes many hundreds of miles from the sounding sea. A Maine concern has made its canned clam chowders likewise famous at points far distant from the habitat of the clam. There are others who have followed the same course in promoting the New England canning industry. But how much more could be done in that direction?

It has been recently announced that a movement was on foot looking to a combination of sardine packers who do business on the eastern Maine coast. It is significant that one of the great advantages claimed for such a union was that it would make possible the advertising of the product on a national scale. It was recognition of the fact that the business which would grow in these days must make widespread appeal to the ultimate purchaser of the product. With the spread of the preserving industry throughout the country the battle of the cans will become of increasing vigor. It may be a far cry from the guava jelly and the candied melon rind of Daytona to the little fishes of Eastport, but the real significance of the Daytona enterprises is found in the fact that they may be taken as the forerunners of other endeavor to make foodstuffs available at distant points and after preservation for long periods.

The Awakening of the South

To return to the Manufacturers Record's enumeration of evidences of the awakening of the south to its industrial opportunities. The magazine explains that it has mentioned in the shipbuilding, the furniture and the guava jelly as indications of the progress that the south is making in "practically every line of human endeavor."

After that somewhat sweeping statement, it is natural to find mention of the cotton mills and the rayon plants. In another article in the same issue of the Record, is account of new hotels erected in 1925 in sixteen southern states. Their cost is placed at $200,000,000. They are said to constitute one third of the total hotel construction in America during the year. And it appears that he who attributes this showing almost entirely to what has been going on in Florida is mistaken. The Florida hotels cost $45,000,000 more than the new hotels of California, but they were far from being the cause of the major expenditure in the sixteen states.

Even in these days of the motor car, great hotels are placed where they can be reached by rail, and we read that "railroad expansion in the south is on a scale greater than that in any other part of the country." There is similar note of exultation in the reference to the tendency of the railroads of the country to combine. "The recent combination of the Frisco and Rock Island," says the Manufacturers Record, "making an aggregate of about thirteen thousand miles, now the largest single railroad system in the United States, means that so far as can now be seen Pensacola is the one gulf outlet for that vast aggregation of railroad traffic. Back of Pensacola, to which the Frisco is now building its line, there stretches out into the west and southwest this tremendous thirteen thousand railroad mileage which must inevitably pour an immense traffic through that city. The Atlantic Coast Line and the Louisville & Nashville and the other roads controlled by Mr. Henry Walters, will it is understood, be compacted into a single system, which, in mileage, will just about equal that of the Frisco, possibly exceed it slightly."

The Lesson for New England

Time was when it was customary to speak of New England's supremacy in certain lines of business. Talk of that kind is occasionally heard today. But this awakening of the south suggests that the days of the "supremacy" of any one section of the country in industry are passing. Manufacturers are becoming more and more diffused. The middle west long ago ceased to be distinctively agricultural. The far west considers the possibility of furthering manufactures. The south has its cotton mills, its metal industries and its other activities unknown in the days when cotton was king and reigned alone. The new order means that there must be increased effort to sell the products of one part of the country in competition with similar goods produced elsewhere. It gets back to that question raised here before whether there is sufficient advertising of New England products throughout the country.

In that connection there is aspect to the case which should not be overlooked. Take the new south for example. Its industries mean that thousands of workers have more money to spend than they need for a bare existence. They are prospective purchasers of a vast variety of manufactured articles. The new south ought to furnish good markets for New England products, as New England doubtless affords a good market for southerners. But New England concerns with things to sell that are wanted in this new south must make the fact known in accordance with things to sell that are wanted in this new south must make the fact known in accordance with those methods of publicity which have been demonstrated to spell prosperity.—F. G. Fassett in Boston Transcript.

Sunday Morning Talk

LOOK TO CHRIST

Look unto me, and be ye saved, all the ends of the earth, for I am God, and there is none else, Isaiah 45:22.

This declares not only the omnipotence of Jehovah, but His love, and is as broad in its promises as the Whosoever texts of the New Testament. It takes in the whole earth in its sweep and no one, whatever his sins may have been, is too far gone in iniquity to escape the touch of it. In Christ we find our salvation. It is very simple, yet it is God's way. How much of a contrast it is with the way of men. Men would toil and struggle and suffer, but God would simply have us look, not that we can see God with these natural eyes in a visible way, but in order that we might see Him by faith. I once heard one of my friends turn to a blind man who was sitting on the platform with him and say "Can a blind man see Jesus Christ?" Quick as a flash came the answer: Indeed he can, for I think I never saw Him until my eyes were closed, from which we learn that just in the proportion as our eyes are blind to the world we have them open to see the things of Christ.

On the rocky coast of Wales a company on shore were watching a ship going to pieces on the rocks. At last they descried still clinging to the broken vessel a single sailor. There was no chance to save him, or no boat could live in the rough sea. They brought a speaking trumpet, hoping to convey to him some message. They handed it to the old village preacher. He wondered what to say. He thought over his sermons but could think of only one thing appropriate, but one thing that he dared to utter at such a time. Raising the trumpet to his lips, he shouted, "Look to Jesus! Can you hear?" and back came the faint answer almost drowned by the noise of the wind and waves. "Aye! Aye! aif" Then they watched and listened, some one exclaimed, "He is singing!" and to their strained ears there came over the waves the murmur of the lines.

Jesus, lover of my soul,
Let me to thy bosom fly,

And it thrilled them as again faintly they heard.

While the nearer waters roll,
While the tempest still is high.

Then fainter still,

Safe into the haven guide;
O receive my soul at last.

Fainter yet came the opening of the next verse.

Other refuge have I none;
Hangs my helpless soul to thee!

Then his frail hold on the broken wreck gave way, and the singer dropped into the sea; while on shore they said, He passed to be with Jesus in the singing of that hymn.

From Small Beginnings

Joseph Turner, the Barber's Son, a Great Painter

One of the very greatest of English painters, Joseph Turner, a man whose mastery of color, of the delicate melting away into the dimness of distance, and of overwhelming poetic effect, was so great that he has never had an equal, began life so handicapped that it is a miracle that he ever even succeeded in gaining reputation at all.

As a boy Joseph Turner was frail and undersized, delicate and sensitive. He had almost no opportunity to go to school. At home he was scolded and berated. Apparently he was good for nothing. The one place where he found happiness at all was in his father's barber shop in London. There he sat quietly and tried to draw pictures. Strangely enough he drew surprisingly well, and his father had the intelligence to send him to men who could teach him more about drawing and painting. Now, a little older, he hid away in rooms at home or in the corner of the shop and devoted himself to painting. Very timidly, but proudly, too he put his pictures in the barber shop window and offered them for sale at what we should call 50 or 75 cents a picture.

The years rolled by and the boy grew into the famous Joseph Turner, one of the most brilliant members of the London Academy, and one of the painters whose works most deeply affected the English people. Today in London there is a great gallery given over entirely to the pictures painted by him. In the libraries of the world are many books that comment on his work as an artist, and on the walls of countless galleries and homes are copies of the paintings he made. The most noted of these are scenes of Venice, where the mists melt into the distance. One powerful picture that is seen everywhere is "The Fighting Temeraire," a battleship towed away through a harbor, worn out and useless.

The barber's boy simply kept on drawing and painting. He cared for nothing else all his life. He did hack work for little money, painted pictures of scenery, and was content with a poor place in which to live and with simple fare. When he died at 76 he left a fortune of over $700,000, all made by his art, but he himself had remained as plain and unassuming, as kindly and patient and hard-working as he had been when he was only a small boy in his father's barber shop. He had glorified English art because he had concentrated all his ability on his one great gift.

Stories That Recall Others

Why Do Galoshes Flap?

Quite an argument has been going on in certain circles over the question: "Should a man take off a woman's hat before he strikes her?"

Arthur J. has been much concerned with the question: "Why do galoshes flap?" He decided to settle the matter by a contest and he got these answers:

"They think it looks sporty and draws attention."

"To make it snappy."

"They think it smart."

"Because they are too dilatory to fasten them."

"To catch the ear of those who might fail to see."

"I asked the first ten I saw and they all said 'because.'"

"They let their galoshes flap for want of sense."

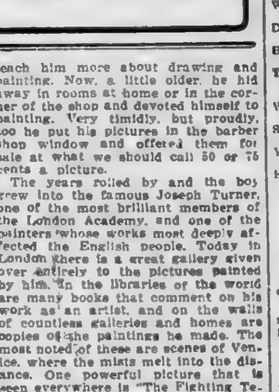
"They don't want to choke their calves."

"To keep their knees from knocking together."

"Why, mother, all the girls do it."

Her Sentiments

The four year old daughter of this household takes considerable pride in keeping her playhouse in order. However, her baby brother seems to take delight in scrambling things for her, and after one of Billy's sprees in the forbidden corner she was heard to remark: "Bill, don't you ever dare to meddle in my things again. The worse you make 'em the badder they are."



HOW DO YOU KNOW?

"My eyes are strong. I can read anything," is the boast of many suffering from a form of eyestrain which if permitted to go unchecked develops into a serious case of poor vision. An optical specialist can tell when you need glasses. Have us examine your eyes regularly and take no chances.

POETRY

My Birthday

"My birthday!" What a different sound
That word had in my youthful ears!
And how each time the day comes round,
Less and less white its mark appears!

When first our scanty years are told,
It seems like pastime to grow old:
And as youth counts the shining links
That time around him binds so fast,
Pleased with the task, he little thinks
How hard that chain will press at last.

Vain was the man, and false as vain,
Who said, "Were he ordained to run
His long career of life again,
He would do all that he had done."
Ah! 'Tis not thus the voice that dwells
In sober birthdays speaks to me;
Far otherwise—of time it tells
Lavished unwisely, carelessly;
Of counsel mocked; of talents made
Haply for high and pure designs,
But oft, like Israel's incense, laid
Of wandering after Love too far,
And taking every meteor fire
That crossed my pathway for his star!
All this it tells, and could I trace
The imperfect picture o'er again,
With power to add, retouch, efface
The lights and shades, the joy and pain,

How little of the past would stay
How quickly all should melt away—
All—but that freedom of the mind
Which hath been more than wealth to me;
Those friendships in my boyhood twined,
And kept till now unchangingly;
And that dear home, that saving ark,
Where Love's true light at last I've found,
Cheering within when all grows dark
And comfortless and stormy round.
—Thomas Moore.

March

Wild birds winging, green grass springing
Underneath the snow;
Days a-lengthening, sun a-strengthening
Things that try to grow;
Brooklets dancing, laughing, prancing
On their joyous way;
Young buds swelling, pine woods smelling
Sweet as new-mown hay;
White clouds whirling, winds a-skirling
Through the tree-tops bare;
Sap a-running, suns a-sunning
In the morning air;—
Yes, it is the same old story,
Told in accents clear,
Ever new and full of glory,
Spring is very near!

HUMOR OF THE DAY

Teacher—Willie, what is sinc?

Willie—That's the French pronunciation for think.—Good Hardware.

"Give me a glass of water, please," said the man in the barber's chair, feebly.

"You aren't going to faint, I hope."—Life.

Said the bank teller to the new girl who was making a deposit: "You didn't foot it up."

"No," she replied innocently, "I took a taxi."—Framingham Philosopher.

Sympathetic Friend—Banged your finger? Dear me. I always think that hurting one's finger sets one's teeth on edge all down one's back.—Tit-Bits.

Father (to son returning to college)—Don't you want some money?

Son—No; thanks just the same, Dad. I have some left from last term.—Judge.

A girl at the seaside was having a very dull time.

She stopped a good-looking man and asked him the time.

She had a very good time.—London Mail.

The doctor applied his stethoscope to the young store-boy's heart.

"Does angina pectoris trouble you at all?" he asked.

"No," said the clerk, "but Dolly Green does, a lot."—The Progressive Grocer.

When Willie's father arrived home from the office the other evening he was very angry. He called to his son and said, "I thought I told you to clean up the yard."

"Well, pa, I did," said Willie virtuously. "I fired everything over the fence as soon as I could, but the kid next door threw everything back again; when I went to the store for mother."—Boston Transcript.

The bell on the church at Phippsburg Center, Me., was bought by one of the McCobb family and was on the ground near the church when the donor was taken suddenly ill and died. The Japanese are to be taught etiquette by means of moving pictures. Officials of the department of education are planning to start a cinema campaign of instruction next spring. A committee composed of 30 leading educators will adopt standards of social etiquette which they believe should be taught the public and which has been somewhat neglected in Japan because the emphasis of education has been placed on family rank rather than upon social contacts.

Breeders of race horses and blood-stock generally are of the opinion this industry has developed into one of Britain's best. Export demand has grown to such an extent of late years that England is said to be supplying the world with bloodstock. At the December sales in Newmarket, England, there were buyers from no less than 15 countries, including the United States and South America. American buyers are said to be the keenest and buy only the very best thoroughbred animals.

By a high vacuum process, invented by a Swedish engineer, fresh cut lumber is now "seasoned" in a day or less, sufficiently for the carpenter's bench. Thus green birch boards become ready for the finest furniture in 10 hours; spruce and pine in 30, and oak in 40. Such artificially "cured" lumber, moreover, is free from cracks, warps and "blue" spots. On sliding rollers the planks are put inside the long, airtight chambers, where they are first heated by steam coils and then pumped dry by vacuum process which is 99.9 per cent perfect. This procedure is repeated according to the nature of the wood.

SECURES DIVORCE FOR HIS WIFE'S DESERTION

Judge Allyn L. Brown in the superior court at New London Friday morning granted divorce to Abraham Jacob Meyer, of New London from Lizzie Meyer formerly of that city.

Mr. Meyer had twice before been refused divorces.

In the presentation of her husband's suit Friday it was shown that the couple were married Oct. 20, 1919, and that Mrs. Meyer, who was 19 years younger than her husband, had deserted him in March, 1920.

Meyer testified that in his opinion, when he was granted a verdict of $7,500 for the death of her former husband, she intended to leave Meyer, saying that he was too old. Later the verdict was set aside, he said, and she did not receive the $7,500.

In May, 1920, Mrs. Meyer brought suit for divorce naming her husband on the grounds of cruelty and after three days of trial Judge Hinman denied it in favor of Meyer. She again sued for divorce in June, 1920, alleging desertion and after a trial of two days Judge Christopher L. Avery granted it. Mrs. Meyer was given $1,500 alimony. There is one minor child, which has been in the custody of Mrs. Meyer and on Friday's action there was no move made to change that course.

The divorce suit of James F. Clarke of Groton vs. Mabel Jeffrey Clarke of Groton, a similar proceeding, April 15, 1925, was pendente. They were married Oct. 4, 1911.

The sum of $25 was voted to the Home Industrial and Normal Institute at St. Augustine, Fla., and the league voted to send the weekly calendar of the church to the shut-ins of the congregation.

An entertaining play, Queens and a Kingdom, was given by the Gleaners class of Trinity Methodist Episcopal church. Those taking part were Rita Greenlaw, Fay Hill, Evelyn Wheeler, Mary Boardman, Grace Murphy, Luvenia Elliott, Mary Phillips, and Mary Sauter, assisted by four younger girls, Myrtle Browning, Ruth Genter, Grace Sauter and Nellie Elliott.

ACADEMY STUDENTS SHOW TALENT PRESENTING THREE-ACT FARCE

The students of the Norwich Free academy entertained an audience of about 500 Friday evening at Slater hall when they presented a three act farce entitled Making Daddy Behave. The production, which was for the benefit of the N. F. A. Athletic association, was an unqualified success and the members of the cast fully merited the unstinted applause given them by the delighted audience. Preceding the farce there were several numbers by Zim's orchestra. The time of the production was the present and the scenes were laid in San Francisco, California. The cast was as follows:

Burgess Lukens, lumber king — Frederick Schwartz
John St. Clair, his lawyer — Louis Grover
Marian, Luken's daughter — Mary Elizabeth Durie
Grandma Tilden, his mother-in-law — Sadie Schwartz
Becky, Luken's daughter — May Dorothy Campbell
Alberta, butler — J. Kenneth Connell
Byron Cleveland, his secretary — Paul Driscoll
Ardita, factory girl — Gertrude Hamill
David Standing, the stranger — John Kelly
Windham, chauffeur — James Moore
Mrs. Alberta — Alice Pounch
Mrs. MacLaren — Mary Dodd

It would have been difficult indeed to have selected another as equal to the role of Burgess Lukens than Frederick Schwartz. He carried the role faultlessly and with vim. Louis Grover was an excellent selection for the part of John St. Clair, the family lawyer. Mary Elizabeth Durie and May Dorothy Campbell carried the roles of Lukens' daughters with characteristic ease while Sadie Schwartz was equally well cast as Grandma Tilden. Kenneth Connell was a show all himself in the part of the butler, Alberta. He not only looked the part but acted it in faultless style.

Gertrude Hamill made a decided hit in the role of Ardita, the factory girl. She brought down the house with her rapid fire of slang and her care-free netting. John Kelly was excellent in the part of David Standing, well versed in Shakespeare but in little else. His was a difficult role, but he carried it off to perfection. Paul Driscoll, as Lukens' secretary, James Moore as the family chauffeur, Alice Pounch as Mrs. Alberta and Mary Dodd as Mrs. MacLaren were excellent choices for the various roles.

The first act of the farce was laid in the Lukens' dining room, the second in the living room, the morning after, and the third act in the living room, the following day.

The music was furnished by Zim's orchestra, the scenery by members of the "N" club, the furniture by Schwartz Bros., the gowns by Mandell's Waist Shop and the farce was directed and staged by C. G. Whitney and W. F. Gallagher. The following members of the athletic association acted as ushers: Edmund Fedeli, Jack Marks, Edward Brewer, Serphino Tombara, Daniel Polski, Charles Sargent, Earl Cramer and Thomas Vitliano.

CLAIM MAN FELL IN FRONT OF AUTO

(Special to The Bulletin)

WESTERLY, March 12—John Pendleton of Potter Hill, mill worker sustained severe injuries to his head, bruises, cuts and lacerations, when he was reported to have lurched about 8:30 o'clock this evening into the Studebaker touring car of Gardner Arzarmaski, keeper of the Hopkinton town farm, Pendleton was proceeding toward Ashaway on the Hopkinton side of the meeting house bridge over the Pawcatuck river, when the Arzarmaski car in which were Mrs. Arzarmaski and Thomas Brown of Ashaway, came along. MUST NOTIFY DEPARTMENT OF CHANGING PAINT COLOR

This being the season when many motor vehicle owners prepare to bring forth their cars from the paint shops and garages with new coats of paint, the state motor vehicle department calls attention to the state law which requires all those in whose name such cars are registered to notify the department of any substantial change in their appearance or mechanical equipment of their cars.

The law applies to the painting of cars if the color of the body or running gear has been changed or the appearance altered in any way "so that such motor vehicle shall no longer conform to the description contained in the application for or certificate of registration." The notice to the department must be given within 48 hours of the change. It is usually done by writing a letter to the commissioner of motor vehicles stating in what particulars the appearance of the car has been changed, and the records of the department are changed to conform to the new description and a revised certificate of registration is issued. The law provides a $10 fine for violation of this section.

For purposes of identification, the department requires accuracy of description. It has a unique device by which cars which have evaded responsibility or are sought for other reasons can be detected by the furnishing of certain combinations of characteristics, even when there is uncertainty about one or more figures of the registration number. The system employed has been of great value in tracing stolen cars.

ARRESTED WHEN CALLING AT PRESTON CONSTABLE'S

Welcome guests one week when they came with their musical instruments and a gallon of cider to the home of Constable G. P. Spicer in Preston, but unwelcome when they came again the next week for an evening of music was the tale unfolded in the Preston justice's court this week when Tyler Eccleston was before the court on a charge of drunkenness and breach of the peace. Eccleston was fined one dollar and costs on the breach of the peace charge by Justice Appleton Main.

According to an official of the court, it was brought out in the testimony that Eccleston was one of a group of young men who had a good social time a week ago when they went to the constable's house with their musical instruments and a jug of cider that was consumed while they were at the constable's. A week later when seven young men appeared at the Spicer home ready for another evening of music the constable was "peeved," it was said, and words ensued, as a consequence of which Constable Spicer arrested Eccleston and brought him before the justice last Monday.

ELLINGTON FATHER SUES—RUSTY PIN THE CAUSE

Alleging that her employers were negligent in failing to call a doctor and that they ordered her to continue in spite of the pain, Catherine Schanal, 14, has brought action for damages of $15,000 against Mr. and Mrs. Harry Rock of Eastford street, Hartford, by her step-father, Jerry P. Dellin of Ellington, as a result of an accident caused by a rusty pin.

The girl was engaged by the defendants as a mother's helper, in September, 1925, under an agreement by which they were to board her, give her a home and about $25 a month for her services. In November it is charged, the girl was ordered to remove old and rusty pins from curtains, in the course of which one of the pins cut her right index finger. Although she called the matter to the attention of her employers, and although her finger became infected, she charges that a doctor was not called. Her right index finger, is disfigured.

SKUNK FOUND WEDGED FAST IN SEWER PIPE

Everybody has heard of it raining cats and dogs but raining skunks is a new one. So thought Fred G. Prothero when a fine specimen of the black and white "kittens", weighing six pounds, was extracted this week from the sewer pipe outside his home at 51 Greene avenue.

Discovery of the animal was made by plumbers who were called to see why the pipe was blocked up. Going down beyond the iron pipe that leads from the house they came to the cement pipe to which it is connected and upon breaking through this, the plumbers came upon the skunk, dead and wedged fast in the pipe.

It is believed that the animal came down the manhole in the street, crawling along to seek a way out until it stuck fast in the pipe and perished there.

COLCHESTER BOY HAS BAD GUNSHOT WOUND

The state police are investigating the shooting of William Kuchran, 13, Colchester, who has been a patient at the W. W. Backus hospital since February 21. As the result of the boy's declining condition, grave doubts being held of his recovery, the state police were notified of the case and started an investigation Friday.

The boy received a bad gun shot wound in the thigh February 21st, the flesh being torn away leaving a muscle exposed. At the time he was admitted to the hospital his condition was not considered serious and the matter was not reported to the authorities. However, the boy's condition Friday resulted in Sergeant Clifford Gorgas of the state police barracks at Groton, being notified, and he detailed Officer Frank Kulowski to make an investigation.

There was little change in the boy's condition up to an early hour this (Saturday) morning.

THREE SLAIN IN RELIGIOUS DISORDERS IN MEXICO

NAYARIT, Mexico, March 12.—(AP)—Three representatives of the state of Nayarit were killed and a number of persons injured, one girl probably fatally, in a riot today resulting from orders to close a Catholic church at Jalisquello, a neighboring town. The officials were met by armed opposition from church followers.

This is believed to be the first bloodshed in the nation as a result of the stringent closing laws imposed upon churches by the national government and is the first on the west coast of Mexico.

A Catholic priest at Jalisquello had failed to comply with the closing law of the government and was standing his ground against presidential orders with the backing of his flock. Upon the appearance of the representatives of the government at Jalisquello, they were met by an infuriated mob of men, women and children, which demanded their withdrawal. These representatives were the town's mayor, whose name was not learned, Congressman Porres and a friend, Sr. Ortega.

Undaunted by the mob confronting them which was armed with all sorts of weapons, the three men faced the gathering and read the authorization of the government's closing of the church. Soldiers in sufficient numbers to protect the dignitaries were not available. In the emergency, the mayor of the town was called upon to back with his authority the representatives from the state capital.

At first he sided with the demands of the worshippers, that they not be molested. Later, being convinced of his obligation to back up the orders of the president and of the state governor, he reserved his decision and also demanded the closing of the offending church.

When the mayor turned against them, the people fell upon the trio. Before calm was restored, the three dignitaries had been so badly mutilated that they died before medical attention could be rendered.

Several women and numbers of children received serious injuries. The body of the slain congressman has been removed to this city, where it lies in state.

Sanguinary encounters between Catholic church adherents and state and governmental military powers are becoming acute in Nayarit.

A petition of the church in this instance, sent to Governor Pina asking pardon for the offense, has resulted in the church's being allowed to open its doors again and function.

COOLIDGE NON-COMMITTAL ON SHIP CANAL PROPOSALS

WASHINGTON, March 12.—(AP)—Despite appeals to him by both sides, President Coolidge does not intend to take sides in the dispute over a route for a Great Lakes-Atlantic canal until he has investigated.

The white house announced today that he was remaining neutral in the midst of the barrage of arguments showered down upon him. To this barrage Secretary Wilbur added today an open letter denying indirectly a charge that he was playing politics when he recently pointed out the benefits of the all-American Ontario-Hudson route. This route has been declared impracticable by army engineers, but Chairman Dempsey of the house rivers and harbors committee favors it.

"The navy department," said Mr. Wilbur in a letter to Mr. Dempsey, "has expressed no opinion whatever upon the feasibility of this canal or the desirability of its construction, other than the opinion that if such a canal is constructed it would be of incidental value to the national defense."

SO. KINGSTON TEAM TAKES LEAD FROM PLAINFIELD IN CHAMPIONSHIP SERIES

(Special to The Bulletin)

PLAINFIELD, March 13—The South Kingston team went into the lead in the championship series with the Plainfield town team here tonight by defeating the local five 31 to 16 The five-game series now stands South Kingston two victories and Plainfield one. The series is for the champion ship title of southern New England and for the Cashman trophy emblematical of the title.

The game tonight was much faster than the score would indicate and Plainfield although handicapped by the loss of Mondi Normandin one of the best forwards in the east played good basketball, especially during the first half The score was close during the first half and at half time the game stood deadlocked at 11 points all. In the second half the South Kingston team launched a flashy attack that completely took the locals by surprise and before the hair was three minutes old Wilbur had scored twice from the floor From then on the local five was completely outpointed and the invaders had everything their way

Normandin's absence was severely felt as illness prevented the star forward from performing but it is expected that he will be in form to play against Kingston at the Rhode Islanders home floor next Thursday evening

RUTH'S FAILURE TO HIT BOTHERS YANKEE FOLLOWERS

NEW YORK, March 12—(AP)—The failure of Babe Ruth so far to show anything approaching his old-time clouting consistency in the training camp battles is beginning to worry the Yankees' followers.

The big fellow's more ardent supporters feel that it is too early to become alarmed: that it is only a question of time before the Yankee star strikes his real stride. These boosters point out that Ruth was never in better playing trim than now and that his determination will make his comeback efforts a success.

Other critics incline to the belief that the Babe faces a harder struggle than many anticipate despite his good general condition. Over-anxiousness to make good, they point out, may be a handicap. In addition, pitchers who gained confidence by subduing Ruth last season are expected to be less shy of the big fellow's hitting powers during the coming campaign.

The entire and highly-touted slugging cast of the Yankees thus far has not distinguished itself, judging from reports. Tony Lazzeri, the Coast league cannonader and infield candidate, is playing fiddle for the present while Mark Koenig occupies the shortstop post and Spencer Adams plays the keystone bag. These, the critics aver, is finding the Florida climate less conducive to home run hitting than the rarified air of Salt Lake city.

While these mournful notes are being struck by Yankee correspondents, reports from the camps of other clubs which occupied second division depths in 1925 are more encouraging This is especially true of two National league trailers of last season, the Boston Braves and Phillies Under the hustling leadership of Dave Bancroft and Art Fletcher, two former lieutenants of John McGraw these clubs are convincing observers they will be stronger pennant factors than was anticipated.

AGGIE QUINTET HAS VERY SUCCESSFUL SEASON

(Special to The Bulletin)

STORRS, Conn., March 13—Connecticut Aggies closed one of the most successful basketball seasons in the history of the college last Saturday night when Rhode Island State was defeated here by a 43-29 score.

It was the fourteenth game of the season for the Nutmeg quintet and the eleventh victory. Under the coaching of Summer A. Dole, the Aggies had more than justified the hopes of its most optimistic followers, for considering the calibre of teams played and the limited amount of material available, Connecticut's record this year is outstanding.

As the season got under way last January, Dole had four seasoned men, Captain Makofski, Bitgood Allard and Schofield with which to start the campaign His schedule was admittedly one of the usual difficult slates, which are the rule here, especially for football and basketball teams.

From last year's freshman five came Eddy and Watson. Eddy made a forward berth from the start and his work has been consistently good throughout. Watson was one of Dole's few dependable subs. Williams, another sophomore, became eligible following mid-year and the work of this man has greatly aided the team in tight games. Greer, a senior who has been a member of the varsity squad for four years, was also a dependable player at center.

Starting with this material, then, the season got under way for the Aggies. Harvard, Springfield, Trinity, Vermont as well as all the teams in the New England Conference were among the quintets that fell before Connecticut's attack. Wesleyan gave Connecticut its first setback overwhelming the Aggies at Middletown by a 49-26 score. Union defeated Connecticut at Schenectady the same week, and the third and final defeat came as a distinct surprise at the hands of Rhode Island at Kingston some two weeks ago. This latter defeat was minimized, however, when the Storrs outfit gave the Rhody five a decisive licking on the home court.

Captain-elect Schofield was Connecticut's high scorer with a total of 161 points He connected for 64 field goals, and 33 foul goals. Incidentally, last year Schofield was selected a forward on the mythical "all-New England" team. Points scored by other members of the Aggie squad are Captain Makofski 136, Eddy 124, Allard 33, Williams 17 Watson 16, and Bitgood 8. So far as team totals are concerned, Connecticut outscored its opponents 496-402

No team was able to defeat the Aggies on its own court.

AGGIE FRESHMEN LOSE HARD GAME TO R. I. FROSH

(Special to the Bulletin)

STORRS March 12—Connecticut Aggies freshman lost a hard fought basketball game here tonight to Rhode Island, the final outcome being 24 to 16. The game was marked by rough playing on both sides, Rhode Island scored several times from the floor before the Aggies succeeded in chalking up any points. At the quarter the score was 7 to 0 in favor of the Rhode Island boys. Playing took on an increase of pace in the second quarter and at half time the count was 14—to 6 with the Aggies in the rear. Both teams went at it strong in the second half, spectacular shots being made from all points of the floor. The Aggies freshmen missed shot after shot, while Rhode Island was able to find the hoop and piled up the score This game brings to an end the basketball season for both teams. The summary:

MISS WILLS MEETS AMERICAN OPPONENT IN NICE FINALS

NICE, France, March 12—(AP)—The finals of the Nice tennis tournament tomorrow will be an all-American affair—one between the west and the east. Miss Helen Wills of California, will meet Miss Isabella Lee Mumford, of Boston.

In a one sided match today, in which Helen frequently experimented with her racquet to improve certain of her strokes, the California girl eliminated Mme. Peterie of Hungary, 6-3, 6-2.

The outcome of the other semi-finals match between Miss Mumford and Miss Eileen Bennett of England was something of a surprise, for although the New England girl has played at Wimbledon, her game was not considered strong enough to overcome Miss Bennett. Using a slow stroke, which apparently puzzled Miss Bennett, Miss Mumford succeeded in winning the match 4-6, 6-4, 6-0.

Miss Wills and her English partner in the mixed doubles, Charles S. Kingsley, reached the semifinals of this part of the tournament by defeating Mlle. Bourgeois and M. Garon 6-1, 6-3. The Anglo-American pair now will meet Miss Mitchell and Charles F. Aeschlimann, and, if they win, they will play Mme. Vlasto and Henri Cochet in the finals.

NEW YORK MAKES BID FOR TUNNEY-STRIBLING BOUT

NEW YORK, March 12.—(AP)—The state athletic commission took a hand in the bidding for the Gene Tunney-Young Stribling match today when it announced the bout would be sought as a headliner for a charity program to be held at Madison Square Garden, May 17, for the benefit of the Catholic Sisters.

At the same time the board placed its offical stamp of approval on the Mickey Walker-Pete Latzo welter weight title match at Scranton, Pa., May 7 and granted permission to Madison Square Garden to change the date of the Young Stribling-Jimmy Slattery bout from March 26 to March 26.

Dan Skilling, a deputy of the boxing board, is aiding the matchmakers of the city in arranging the card for the charity show, which has the support of Governor Al Smith. He said today arrangements for the match between Tunney and Stribling, whose scheduled bout at Miami, Fla., has been called off, will depend upon Stribling's 10 round contest with Slattery. Skilling intimated he would confer with Billy Gibson, Tunney's manager, and "Pa" Stribling, at the earliest possible time.

RICHARDS BEATS HARADA FOR FLORIDA TENNIS TITLE

PALM BEACH, Fla., March 12.—(AP)—Vincent Richards, Yonkers, N. Y annexed the Florida singles title today when he defeated Takeiichi Harada, Japan, in a four set match, 4-6, 6-1, 6-1, 6-3.

Harada outplayed Richards in the first set, breaking through the New Yorker's initial service and winning the next three games to lead at 4-0.

Richards, however, gaining control and bringing speedier shots into play won the fifth game after double fault twice. He added two more games, lost the next and won another to bring the score to 5-4. Harada, however, won his last service and the set, 6-4.

The initial defeat served to steady Richards. He placed his drives accurately in the second set and his forcing shot frequently brought wild returns from the Japanese.

The third set went the way of the second with Harada trying various tactics, intermingling soft shots with wild efforts at placement.

The deciding game of the final set came with Harada serving and the score, 4-3, against him. He scored four wild errors and lost service at love. Richards ended the match by taking the last game at love.

STECHER SAYS HE STILL HOLDS WORLD'S WRESTLING TITLE

PHILADELPHIA, March 12.—(AP)—Joe Stecher, scheduled to wrestle Stanislaus Zbyszko here tonight for the heavyweight championship of the world, said he refused to pay any attention to the claim that he lost the premier title through his failure to meet Joe Malcewicz, of Utica, N. Y., in Boston last night.

Stecher, on his arrival here this afternoon, said he was ready to meet any man in the world for the heavyweight title, provided proper terms are agreed upon. He declared he refused to wrestle in Boston when his guarantee was not forthcoming.

"As for forfeiting my title, that's all bunk," said Stecher. "If all a promoter has to do is to refuse to pay the champion and then take his title away then we have reached a pretty stage. No, it's not done that way."

SHERIFF'S ORDER PUTS STOP TO TUNNEY-STRIBLING BOUT

MIAMI, Fla., March 12—(AP)—Sheriff Henry Chase this afternoon wrote "finis" to Promoter Baugh's half completed dream of a ten round no-decision bout here tonight betwsen Gene Tunney and W. L. (Young) Stribling. The sheriff terminated three days of futile efforts to put on the fight when he appeared at the last of the many conferences and emphatically asserted that he would enforce the orders of Governor John W. Martin and not allow the fight to be held even though a way out of the tangle was found.

Almost on the heels of Sheriff Chase's order, the Abbott Electrical company of Miami, entered suit against Jess Baugh, the promoter, for $3,500 to recover electrical fixtures installed in the stadium.

City officials and leading sportsmen of Miami closeted themselves with Billy Gibson, manager of Tunney and Stribling three times during the day, at the third conference Sheriff Chase appeared and delivered his message. After that the argument concerned only the manner in which ticket holders would be protected.

"Tiny" Parker, Miami agent who handled the advance sale of tickets, said that about $22,000 worth of tickets had been sold up to the time the fight was called off. Steps are being taken by city officials to handle the matter of refund in such a manner as to assure the ticket holders of a full refund.

Neither Gibson or Stribling would comment on the offers to stage the fight in New York or Los Angeles, which Tex Rickard and Joe Levy made Stribling goes north in a few days for a bout with Slattery in Madison Square Garden. Gibson would make no statement regarding the future plans of Tunney.

Considerable discussion is being caused in the English golfing world by the decision of the Royal and Ancient Golf club to make a charge for admission to the open and amateur championships this year. This step has been made necessary by the great increase in public interest in the game. It has been found more difficult each year to control the great crowds who now turn out to witness a championship; and on occasions the spectators have even interfered with the play.

PHILADELPHIA, March 12—(AP)—Using his famous body scissors, Joe Stecher, claimant of the heavyweight wrestling championship, threw Stanislaus Zbyszko after 5 1-2 minutes of grappling here tonight.

The bout ended in a wrangle, Zbyszko protesting the decision. The contender, near the end of the bout had Stecher in a corner with what he claimed was a good hold. The men were ordered to the center of the ring by the referee and while Zbyszko was arguing about the order, Stecher grasped him and in a flash had pinned his shoulders to the mat.

IN NORWICH FIFTY YEARS AGO

Fifty years ago this week the Blackstone Hose company elected James McGuire foreman of the company and J. D. McDougall first assistant. The same week there were reports about the city that plans were being made for the construction of a "first class hotel". Subscriptions had been offered by capitalists and sites had been discussed and surveyed. Interested extracts taken from the files of The Bulletin of March, 1876, are as follows:

Monday, March 6, 1876—We regret to learn that Messrs. Johnson will leave the Wauregan house April 1st. They have been connected with hotels in this city for eleven years and took the Wauregan when it was badly out of repair and under circumstances which would render it almost impossible to maintain it as a first class hotel.

On Monday evening the employes of the Fitchville Manufacturing company assembled at the hall and appointed a committee of two to invite Supt. John W. Money to meet them. On his arrival he was presented an elegant silver set of eleven pieces by Mr. John McManus on behalf of the employes of the company. Mr. Money expressed his thanks in a few brief and appropriate remarks On one of the pieces was engraved "Presented to John W. Money by the employes of the Fitchville Manufacturing company, 1876"

The building of a wharf from the city property on the cove in the rear of Central wharf has been begun. It will extend toward the west side to the channel and will aid materially in facilitating the proposed filling of the middle of the cove.

Tuesday, March 7, 1876—A meeting of the ladies committee connected with the entertainment in aid of the Otis library was held at the mayor's office yesterday afternoon. It was decided to give an entertainment of some sort for the benefit of the Provident association after Lent. The entertainment will probably continue for several nights.

Yesterday was another lovely day, the air mild and spring like. Men were about without overcoats and doors and windows were generally open. The streets were filled with people who loitered by shop windows and enjoyed the pleasant weather.

We understand that there is a good prospect of a first class hotel being built here, something of which the city has been long in need. Several subscriptions have been offered by capitalists and sites have already been discussed and surveyed. It is to be hoped that the gentlemen having the matter in hand will accept the assistance which has been freely offered them.

Wednesday, March 8, 1876—The Blackstone Hose company elected the following officers last evening: Foreman, James McQuire; first assistant, J. D. McDougall; second assistant, C. M. Converse; secretary, M. W. Beebe; treasurer, James McQuire, Jr.; steward, Charles Totton.

Among the localities which have been surveyed for the proposed new hotel, is the corner of Washington street, opposite Breed hall, which would furnish a very convenient and eligible site.

Henry H. Saunders, an employe of the Norwich pistol company, had one arm badly injured in the machinery at the factory, Monday.

Thursday, March 9, 1876—Orders issued from headquarters C. N. G. yesterday, change the headquarters of Company H., Third Regiment, from Jewett City to Plainfield and appoint William I. Hyde, captain of the new company. The company property will be transferred in a few days.

The Hon. Joseph G. Lamb had a narrow escape from drowning yesterday morning. He was walking on the railroad bridge over the cove and losing his balance fell into the water. A number of people went to his rescue and he was rescued with some difficulty. He was much exhausted by the shock and exposure but will sustain no serious injury.

Work on the new railroad to Narragansett Pier is progressing favorably. The laborers employed in the work struck for an increase of wages from $1.12 1-2 a day to $1.25 a day, which was refused and men from New York will be engaged.

Friday, March 10, 1876—A delegation from the Excelsior Hook and Ladder company of Willimantic, will visit the Wauregan Hook and Ladder company next week to present them with a testimonial as a mark of appreciation of courtesies received.

People are looking forward with much interest to the production of the new operetta entitled the Romance of the Magic Mirror which will be brought out in aid of the Provident association some time in May. It will be put on the stage with elaborate spectacular effects.

A correspondent this morning suggests the property known as Sunnyside on Laurel Hill, as a desirable location for a family hotel. The place possesses advantages for this purpose, the only objection to it being its distance from the central part of the city.

Saturday, March 11, 1876—Meetings were commenced in the Broadway church on Thursday evening, under the direction of a delegation of the executive committee of the Young Men's Christian association of the state. The interest developed at the first meeting steadily grew through the day yesterday until last evening the Sunday school room was largely filled with an interested and sympathetic audience.

At half past two this morning Officer Sullivan found the old house on Cove street, opposite the New London depot to be on fire. An alarm from box 14 brought out the firemen who got control of the fire in a few minutes, though the roof and upper story were pretty well burned. The building was a very old one and was unoccupied. It was owned by the Northern railroad company. The fire was as incendiary one.

Some inquiry has been made as to whether the popular lecturer, Dr. John Lord, could not be engaged to come here and deliver several of his lectures on "the great benefactors of the world". As a result it is ascertained that he can be secured about the middle of April, and at quite reasonable terms.

PLAINFIELD

At a meeting of Plainfield school board held recently at Central Village high school, plans were started for the building of a new school building in Plainfield. Danielson Smith of Moosup, chairman, Fred Tillinghast of Central Village, John Jolicoeur of Plainfield, and John L. Chapman, superintendent of schools were appointed to consult an architect and to go over the requirements needed at Plainfield for proper school facilities.

It is the opinion of the board, that the most practical solution, is to build a new addition on the present brick schoolhouse, as the present demand is for four additional rooms. These would be filled up immediately by the pupils of the two grades of the portable school, which was destroyed by fire. The primary grade, which has been attending on a half session schedule since the beginning of the school year, and by the excessive number now crowded into the other grades. At a meeting of the board held last fall, a delegation from Plainfield presented a petition for a school on the west side of railroad tracks. It was shown at this meeting that the annual increase was about 22 pupils. With this in view it is probable that an addition of six rooms, instead of four will be asked for at the next town meeting. Should this grant be made the problem now existing at the Old Plainfield Academy would be suitably taken care of, as at this building there are now two grades being taught in each room. The building is in need of repairs but due to the fact that it belongs to the Academy association is considered by the board as foolish to make any expenditure on it. The sanitary conditions are very poor and the water used has to be carried from the neighboring well of Mrs. Charles Kennedy for which the town has to pay $5.00 a year. There are outside toilets and the heating system is not of the best. A new heating plant will be required at the Brick school according to the report of a member of the board. The report of the finding of the special committee, will be read at the next regular meeting of the board to be held on next Tuesday evening.

The members of the Lawton Dramatic club have planned to hold a social on the first Wednesday in April. Three short monologues will be presented during the evening to which each member is to bring a guest. A play, which will be followed by a dance will be presented by the club during the latter part of April.

The Plainfield library has received the following new books and has put them into circulation: Oregon Trail: Parkman; Quentin Durward, Scott; Niagara in Politics, Mayor; Idol's Side, Sabilini; Old Youth, Dawson; If Dreams Come True, Oliver; They Lived Happily Ever After, Nicolas; Man Under Authority, Dell; Scarlet Sings, Gibbs; Double Thirteen, Wyatt; Surplus, Stevenson; Fires of Ambitions, Gibbs; Humoresque, Hurst; Redemption, Wilson; Wonder Book of Knowledge; Strolling Saint, Sabatini; American Anthology, Stedman; Kincaid, Smith; Coral, McKenzie; Blue Ranger, Bindloss; Yellow Fingers, Wright.

Mrs. Helen Dawson, worthy matron of the Rebecca chapter, No. 27, O. E. S., attended the meeting of the Chepachet chapter of this order, on Wednesday night, accompanied by Mrs. Knox and Mrs. Burdick of Sterling.

A bowling match has been arranged to be held on Wednesday evening, March 24th at the Community house between the Girls team of Plainfield and the Girls team of Good Year. A return match will be played at a late date. At the weekly match played by the Plainfield team Miss Teresa Sullivan is spending a few days with relatives in Providence.

Superintendent of Schools John L. Chapman gave a very interesting address on Washington, D. C., and the educational conference he recently attended there, at the weekly assembly of the high school. He spoke with the interest of the Smithsonian Institution, the libraries the session of congress and other points of interest he visited whilethere. Following the address a program by the school and orchestra was given. Medals were awarded for speed in typing to the following members of the typing class: Gold medal, Irene Bellevance 69 words; silver medal, Grace Mawoka, 52 words; silver medal, Edith Parkhurst, 50 words; bronze medal, Evelyn Govern, 45 words; bronze medal, Anna Dion, 42 words.

The teachers of the upper grades of the schools of the town were given a demonstration in class room work at the high school this month.

TRUE FRIENDSHIP SHOWS UP BEST AT THE DARKEST HOUR

SOCIAL CORNER POETRY KEEP-A-GOING!

Be you strike a thorn or rose
Keep-a-going!
Be it hails or be it snows
Keep-a-going!
Tain't no use to set an' whine
When the fish ain't on yer line,
Bait your hook an' keep on tryin',
Keep-a-going!

When the weather kills yer crop,
Keep-a-going!
When you tumble from the top,
Keep-a-going!

Suppose you're out o' every dime,
Doin' so ain't no crime;
Tell the world you're feelin' fine,
Keep-a-going!

When it looks like all is up,
Keep-a-going!
Drain the sweetness from the cup,
Keep-a-going!

See the wild birds on the wing,
Hear the bells that sweetly ring,
When you feel like sighin', sing,
Keep-a-going!

THE STINGY MAN

He lived on thirteen cents a day—
Ten cents for milk and cracker,
One cent for dissipation gay,
And two cents for tobacco.
And when he wished an extra dish,
He'd take his pole and catch a fish.

And if his stomach raised a war
'Gainst his penurious habit
He'd go and kill a woodchuck, or
Assassinate a rabbit.
And thus he'd lived in sweet content
On food that never cost a cent.

And that he might lay in the bank
The proceeds of his labor, He'd hanker round at meals (the cranks)
To dine upon his neighbor;
And then he'd eat enough to last
Until another day had passed.

He bought no pantaloons or vest,
No silk expensive jacket;
He had one suit—his pa's bequest—
He thought 'twould "stand the racket."
He patched it thirty years, 'tis true,
And then declared 'twas as good as new.

He owned but one suit to his back,
And minus cuffs and collars,
He died and left his nephew, Jack,
Nine hundred thousand dollars!
And Jack he run this fortune through,
And it only took him a year or two!

ON THE SEA

Daily, daily o'er the sea,
Onward, onward travel we,
Heaves our bow in giant swell,
Tops our stern in boiling dell.

Deep y white and azure blue,
Sombre gray or darker hue,
In the sea and in the sky,
Endless sweeps for roving eye.

On the bridge the captain stalks,
On his mate on lookout walks.
Bells at one and two and three,
Tell the watches of the sea.

Now and then, by whisk of smoke,
In the long horizon broke,
Or a sail on bended mast
Floats with bellied canvas past.

Possibly a blustering whale
Works his bulk into the tale
Or some porpoises give chase
With the ship in glee to race

Onward, onward o'er the main,
Days and days always the same;
Nothing much to see or do,
Hours long and pleasures few.

COSMOS: Your name has been added to the Social Corner list.

SAILING THE MATRIMONIAL SEA

Dear Social Corner Friends: It is nearly time for the Easter brides to set sail on the matrimonial sea, so I am sending the following, hoping it may benefit somebody.

Marriage is very much like voyaging on uncharted sea.

You embark with a good mate to aid in guiding your ship through the unknown waters. Plenty of advice is always available from those who have set sail before you. But how different the advice from different individuals. One person will claim all is smooth sailing till you come to the reefs of debt. Another will maintain that rocks of interfering relatives are hidden all along the way and that constant watch is necessary to avoid them. Still another will tell you to always look for a rough sea just before you get to Cape Quarrel and so on.

You embark! You have no fear! The great adventure lies before you! You trust one another and are happy—surely you have no need of such advice.

Then the first small of dissension rises. You pass through it into fair weather once more. But by and by were storms threaten the safety of our craft or at least threaten to drive it out of its true course. This is the testing time. Do you stand firmly by your mate to aid in every way or at the time you should be tending strictly to duty are you fretting lest someone learn of your plight? Perhaps you have concerned yourself about getting someone's advice when all that was needed was your own helpful hand to steady the ship. Were you ready to desert your mate and let the ship sink when a little aid from you would have made it possible to set the ship go as to reach a safe port? Think it over matrimonial voyagers! Don't mistake a small squall for a hurricane. "Stick to the ship" like a good mariner when danger arises and remember "it's the set of the sails and not the gales" which determines the way it goes.

Best wishes to all.

ENJOYED CLUB NO. 2'S MEETING

Dear Social Corner Sisters: I had a claimant and a fine visit with Club No. 2 on March 3, meeting new and old Social Corner sisters as well as old friends. The dinner was just splendid, with those oysters and all the good things. The entertainment was the best ever. That yes chorus, and the witty sayings, all was good.

Black-Eyed Susie: You are there. Those piano and violin solos were great. I did enjoy each minute. The day was not long enough. As for the eats, wasn't that thoughtful and kind?

SOCIAL CORNER EVENTS

March 16—Shore Line club meets with Tatting in Summit street, Stonington.

I do hope that it will never see or be in any more fires.

EFFIE M.

FIRST MEETING OF SHORE LINE CLUB

Social Corner Friends: If I don't get busy, I shall break my resolutions not to be called a slacker. Listen, who said snow, snow, beautiful snow? It is beautiful all right to look at when it glistens in the sunlight, but to wade through it is another thing, although I used to enjoy it when the roads were well broken out, and I held the ribbons over the back of a high stepper, that would take a sleigh along at 12 miles an hour. Now doesn't that sound funny when we roll along now at 30 to 70 miles an hour? But as one sister said, nothing like good old Dobbin in a bad place.

I have read about the sisters piecing quilts. I, too, am interested in quilts. Last winter I finished four. I had begun, cut and pieced another. This winter I have begun four. I cut the largest pieces into the largest blocks, the next size into the next blocks and so on planning and fastening the blocks together, packing them in a box and then I can piece them at my leisure, usually evenings, when I am listening in to the excellent music or lectures on the radio.

I am very much interested in the first meeting of the Shore Line club. Last spring I had planned to extend an invitation to all members of the Social Corner in this section to come to meet at my home to see what could be done about starting a club, but owing to sickness I had to give it up and since have not felt able to do it. Now I hear Tatting, a near neighbor, has decided to extend an invitation to all members in this section to meet at her home to start a club. The time is March 16 for all day and the place Summit street, Stonington. Ask the motorman to let you off at that street if he will. If not get off at Hyde's or Bayview. If from Westerly get off at Bayview, if from Mystic get off at Hyde's and follow the trolley either way it is going until you come to Summit street. Look down the street a few houses and you will see the sign on the corner of the piazza. Dinner will be served at noon by the hostess and helpers. Bring your work, and something to help out on the program and all the fun you can think of.

E. L. M.: I know you will get busy now as you have long been interested in starting a club and will be at Tatting's early.

Billie: Sorry you are so far away. I suppose you have the Bulletin every week so you know what is going on?

Noank Brownie: Be sure to come and bring your friends. I have forgotten the names.

Crimson Rambler: Now is your chance.

Silent Stranger: Dismiss those kids, take Eva G. and make tracks.

O. D.: Come on, let's get acquainted. Tatting and I have seen you but you didn't know who was who.

Hoping for success for the new club and long life to Social Corner. I remain

INTERESTED READER. (March 16.)

ANNIVERSARY A GREAT SUCCESS

Dear Corner Sisters: What a good time we had at our anniversary meeting and such a crowd. I hope they all will come every time. Everybody was so jolly and full of fun. My how the feet did go when the two sisters played on the piano and violin. We all felt like dancing.

I took two of my sisters and they were very well pleased to think they went. They said, "You might think we had known the sisters all the time." That is the way we want everybody to feel when they are at our meetings.

Strawberry: I bet you were surprised when you saw the bella. Did not think I would wear them did you? I certainly had a very good birthday party.

Eca: I thank you for the present; it is lovely. Also the valentine card. Why don't you come to our meetings some time? Would like to see you.

True Blue: I was disappointed in not seeing you Sunday, but I know it was too wet. I thank you and your sister again for the presents. They were lovely. Hope to see you all soon.

Golden Glow: I am going to buy something when I have time and it will be something I can keep to remember you by.

Aunty No. 1: I suppose you are all moved by now. You had a good day for it. I thank all the sisters who remembered me on my birthday with cards. Best wishes to all.

GREETINGS FROM LUCY ACORN

Dear Editor and Social Corner Sisters: I felt as though I must write and not put it off any longer. There are so many nice letters I love to read them all—that is when I get the papers. The first week in January I got no papers, but they say a bad beginning makes a good ending, so I expect I shall get every one of them after this. I think we have had a nice winter and a short one. Have been busy all winter and on the go most of the time. In the meantime I caught the grippe, was sick three weeks and that was just awful.

Crimson Rambler: I have hooked in three rugs this winter. Yes, I make my own design. I sell all my rugs and I have made over $60.

Whirlwind: I have just pieced a bedquilt, very pretty. The name is Whirlwind.

Ma of Greene Gables: Have you commenced to clean house yet?

We had our house wired last month and of course the floors had to be taken up, so I took up all the matting and carpets up stairs. "This is just like cleaning house," I said to myself. "I guess I have got ahead of Ma this time." Well the electric lights are lovely, we had the three hencoops wired. At four o'clock in the morning just push the button in our kitchen and the hencoops are all lighted, the hens are singing and laying eggs for us before daylight.

March 3rd we had a thousand baby chicks come by parcel post, so you see sisters I could not get up to the Norwich meeting. Will come next month if nothing happens.

Starlight: Do you live in W? If so I know you. Was thinking you wrote under the name of Young Mother.

LUCY ACORN.

ANOTHER CORNER MEMBER

Dear Social Corner Editor: I attended the 16th birthday anniversary and enjoyed it very much, and if there is room for one more member, would like to join, and will take the name of

SUGGESTS COOK BOOK FOR CORNER RECIPES

Dear Social Corner Members: It has been rather a long time since I wrote to the Corner, but not from lack of interest. I am afraid from procrastination.

I read the Corner page every week and always find the letters interesting and helpful. They nearly all contain that "little touch of nature that makes the whole world kin".

I always look to see if there are any letters from anyone I know and if so I read those first. Club No. 4 has been doing pretty well lately and that stirred me up to do my duty.

Then last Monday evening I was talking with a lady who said she was one of the first writers. She wouldn't reveal her pen name or I mine, but we both agreed to write this week so we will have the fun of finding out each others identity.

I also saw Plain Nancy Tuesday evening at a whist club to which we both belong. She has good intentions about writing so we may expect to see a letter from her soon.

There were many good letters in the anniversary number. I was especially interested in Gusta's fine letter and her tribute to the old soldiers.

My father was a Civil war veteran, and I have always heard him tell about his experiences. Some were humorous, some pathetic and sad and some tragic.

He always enjoyed going to the Post meetings and seeing the "boys" as he called them as long as he lived and he never missed attending the reunion of the 18th Connecticut regiment at the Buckingham.

Up in the attic is a box full of old letters written to him when he was at the front. Such good letters his mother wrote to him! They breathed of patriotism. She would tell him he "must remember he was fighting for a right cause," that he must be a good soldier and do right, that the curse of land" and many such expressions with many anxious inquiries for his health. How heartening such letters must have been to the men at the front! The old soldiers are rapidly growing fewer in number. They were a noble army of men and did their part for the world's advancement.

I have been thinking what a good idea it would be to have one cook book especially for Social Corner recipes. There are good ones in every week and most of them are tested ones. It wouldn't be much trouble to copy one in after one had read one they thought they would like and then it would be all ready when we were ready to use it.

I will have to be like the minister who told his flock "Don't do as I do, but do as I tell you." I haven't one now, but am going to have one right away. The need of one is what suggested the idea. I wanted a recipe for a pineapple pie. I had seen and looked and looked till I had used up all the time I could spare but it was was not "among those present."

I want to thank a Social Corner Member for remembering me with a calendar. I know I am late in doing so but am sincere just the same. I wish she would sign her name as I would like to return the favor.

STATIC

Hello Folks: This is station P. D. Q. and if the government or somebody don't do something about this fuzzy static there will be a revolution for sure. If any of you girls are thinking of running for congress or any other soft political job this fall take that issue as a platform and you'll be elected. Between static and the sort of bunk some speakers are putting out over the air, listening to the radio is about as futile a job as I used to have, in my unregenerate days, giving prohibition speeches in a long-shore saloon, old style, on a Saturday night after eleven, to an audience of sailors, stevedores, truckmen, general riff-raff and a couple of cops off beat with a drunken fiddler, and a cat fight in the back yard. It's a great life if you don't weaken.

But anyway static would be a great political issue if properly staged. You could "View with alarm," the growing tendency to cuss in the average radio listener in when some sonorous voiced speaker is saying, "And of all the weird mysterious things in this land of Thibet the most wonderful and awe inspiring is Blah-Blah, Yeow, Wowk, S'awful Mario," and something ought to be done about it, or the country will be in the throes of bootleg cussing, for a chap can't do full justice to the subject when there are ladies present, or the minister has just dropped in.

ADAM RUFFNECK.

THE RHODENDRON

Dear Social Corner Sisters: If any of you have a rhododendron in your yard do you know what a good barometer it is? When it's below freezing the leaves are almost black and bend towards the stem. When the weather moderates they grow a lighter shade of green and stand out from the stem. They do not shed their leaves as most other shrubs do.

E. L. M.: So pleased to meet you at our last meeting. Only wish I had found out sooner that you were present.

K. DooMttie: Did not know where you were or how to address your letter. Hope you are back in this city and will return my call.

Papa's Boy: I well remember that snow storm you wrote about. I shall never forget the poem you sent to the Corner long ago about the rural mail carrier Gid-ap Nelly. Guess you can remember it too. We had some nice times on Valley street, Willimantic. Of course you remember that fruit salad the Mansfield sisters made.

Best wishes to all

JOAN.

SAMANTHA IMPROVING

Dear Sisters: Inasmuch as I am still having to stay in bed, I feel that you will excuse me if I don't reply separately to each one who has sent me cheery messages, Betsy Bobbit Ready, Pink Rose, Balsam Fir, Lavender, Aunty No. 1, Aries, Huldy, Wandering Jew and others have remembered me.

And what a grand surprise it was when Biddy and Theoda came to see me, bearing "yellow" gifts. And I think there must have been magic in the capsules Biddy had prepared. For after taking a few of them and opening one or two of the packages in the sunshine box, the fever which had been with me for weeks, left me. Every one has been so kind. Neighbors have kept my room supplied with flowers, and brought daintily prepared food for me to eat, until I said to Josiah, "What can I do when people are too good to me?" I have had a radio in my room and was able to hear Fred Paton and Marion Talley sing. Of course I am hoping that with the warmer weather I shall be able to ride, and call on some of the sisters.

Best wishes from

SAMANTHA.

THREE IN ONE CAKE

Dear Editor and Social Corner Sisters: Here I am again trying to keep my new year's promise and not get into the slacker list. Am sending a cake recipe that is very good.

Three in one Cake: Take 2 eggs, one cup sugar, half a cup of milk, 2 tablespoons melted butter, 1 1-2 cups sifted flour, 1 teaspoon baking powder, divide in 3 parts. To the first part add 1-4 teaspoon lemon extract, to another part add 2 teaspoons melted chocolate, to the remaining part add a bit of red vegetable coloring. Bake in Washington pie tins, and when cold put together with jelly or other filling. Frost with a bit of green vegetable coloring added to the frosting.

SUCCESSFUL DONATION DAY, BY CLUB NO. 1

Dear Corner Friends: First I want to thank the editor for the yellow slip for which I was gratefully surprised; also for the pin which was promptly received. I am sure the members must appreciate our editor's thoughtfulness in supplying us with the much talked of pin to all that apply for one.

In the list of those that passed away during 1925 I omitted the name of H. M. L. whose death came in such a tragic way early in January. That brings the total number to 18 that I have knowledge of. As I had charge of the Donation day program, that was postponed on account of the weather and attendance from February will say we had a very satisfactory offering which was equally divided between the Welfare bureau and Salvation Army to be distributed to the unfortunate and needy families in the city. The total amount that was contributed was $19.62; that is, the contributions of groceries, canned food, jelly, etc., the value of which amounted to that. As was our custom, one dollar was forwarded to Diano.

We have exceeded this amount but once in the ten years that we have observed this custom which we have adopted from the suggestion of our departed sister Tidy Addly who left a worthy object to her memory. As this rounded out ten years of what was no hardship to us it is an illustration of how "every little helps" as I find the total value of our gifts for this decade has been $118 lacking a few cents. It would be interesting to know how many families it had helped and in just what way, but we that we cannot know.

Perhaps some of you may not know how unfortunate two of our members in Club 1 have been. Roxanna Wines had a fall and dislocated her shoulder and Betty is in St. Joseph hospital with a broken limb. I am sure she would be delighted with a card from you. Her address is Mrs. Daniel Tucker, care of St. Josephs hospital, Willimantic, Conn.

Glad to hear the good news concerning your improvement, Samantha.

THEODA.

NEARLY 18 YEARS A MEMBER

Corner Sisters: What a nice anniversary page on March 6. Theoda, one of our first writers, was again to the front with her year's necrology report. Like Rural Delivery I too shall stick as long as I live and the page lasts. My 18 years as a writer comes the last of May. It has been a very pleasant spot in my memory to sit and quietly review those past 18 years, the many and lasting friends I have made, people perhaps we never would have been so friendly with had it not been for our Corner page and the clubs. I like every one. As a young friend of mine says, I love everybody and I can truthfully say so regardless of faults and expressions.

Yes Strawberry, we had a lovely anniversary gathering. As to extra tables, eight extra settings, yes, you saw me and others at it. What a wonderful lot of helpers I had and right here I just want to say thank you to each and everyone who worked to hard to keep on the dinner. The program was unusual and the minstrel was a complete surprise, well taken off and a lot of good laughs.

Country Sister and Black Eyed Susie: Your parts together and separate were well rendered. The violin was a nice addition. To all those who praised our special dinner and program we thank you for it. I want to thank all those who donated money for our even dish for dinner.

To Pocahontas and Onondagus 1602 for their special notes with money enclosed. To the sick and shut-ins who would have been there, try and come to our next.

Dom Pedro: Thanks for your gift by mail. It's very pretty.

Will close with a radio recipe which was tried.

Baker's Custard Pie: 2 egg yolks, beat very light, mix 4 tablespoons sugar, 1 tablespoon level flour, pinch salt, together dry, then mix into egg yolk. Heat hot, don't boil, 1 pint milk, let it cool, add 1 teaspoon vanilla and little nutmeg, beaten whites of 2 eggs, put in milk cooled. Pour this slowly mixed together pour all in greased into yolk of egg mixture. When well crust and bake from 25 to 35 minutes in a moderately hot oven. Put coconut over top or not as you like.

I have a nice lemon pie filling if wanted.

Remember Me: Hear from you through your daughter's landlady. Sorry you are a shut in.

CALLA LILY.

"WEDDING CAKE"

Dear Social Cornerites and Editor: The old saying that in the spring a young man's fancy turns to thoughts of love and perhaps also a maiden's fancy does the same—and if both are serious it usually ends in a wedding. I thought it an appropriate time to send in a recipe for Wedding Cake.

It's a bit old fashioned but none the less useful.

Superior Wedding Cake: Devotion, three pounds, faithfulness, four pounds; heartfelt satisfaction, four quarts; prudence, one pound; confidence, two pounds; forbearance, two pounds; modesty, eight ounces; gentleness, eight ounces; enjoyment, two pounds; patience, two quarts, (or a little more if necessary); economy, one pound; wisdom, ten pounds; sweetness, 16 ounces; milk of human kindness, one gallon; common sense, 100 grains.

This is mixed thoroughly with cheerfulness, poured into the bowl of domestic happiness, lubricated with oil of gladness and baked in the oven of double blessedness which is well heated with the fire of love.

Aries: Received your very good letter, suprised to know you were in that as a business. Must have a reading sometimes.

Stanza: For heaven's sake, where art thou? If you could see me now you could hold me up as an example of your daily dozen and say "I told you so."

What very nice letters we are getting in the corner—so instructive.

Kochie: Do I know you? Do you live on a high, high hill or down in the valley? Won't you give me an idea to work upon? I am a good detective, Ha, Ha.

My heartfelt sympathy goes on to Sister Delilah Deal, though I haven't the honor of her acquaintance I know where she lives in Jewett City.

With best wishes to all the sisters and a cordial welcome to the new ones.

Cornerites: Won't you all please add your natal date after your letters. I would so love to add them to my birthday book.

ANOTHER CORNER MEMBER

Editor of Social Corner: At a meeting held by Social Corner Club No. 5 Wednesday March 3 at the Buckingham Memorial I had the pleasure of being present as an invited guest. I surely enjoyed every moment while there. My desire is to become a member. I have taken for my pen name,

INVITATION TO JOIN SHORE LINE CLUB

Dear Editor and Sisters: I wish to say that next Tuesday March 16 I invite all who would like to form a Shore Line club to meet at my home on Summit street, Stonington. The Groton and Stonington cars go right by the street and so tell the conductor to let you off there and walk down a ways until you come to the house with a big yellow bow on it. I think those who could come by auto will easily find the place for it is just a step or two from the state road. Come in the morning and stay all day. A nice dinner is all planned, with my willing helpers so I shall look for quite a few.

You will enjoy looking out of my windows at the great Atlantic ocean and Watch Hill looks as though you could just take a big jump and you would be over there.

O. D.: I shall be looking for you and may we get better acquainted.

E. L. M.: Be sure and come now for you can help out as you are a very sociable woman indeed and I think you are interested in our club.

Interested Reader: As you are a near neighbor of mine I only hope you will be feeling fine on that day and doctor yourself up so you can surely come.

Black Eyed Susie: Would like very much to have you come too as we haven't met as yet. A good chance to get acquainted and you can help us out in our entertainment.

Silent Stranger: Hope you can meet with us for we surely would enjoy having you.

Pansy: As you can sing so will hope you will be among us. I shall be looking for you.

Billie: Very sorry to hear that you are away for. I would like the pleasure of having you meet with us at my home.

Chic-a-Dee: Why don't you drive down this way?

Hope to see you all Tuesday. With best wishes to all.

CAME NEAR GOING ON A RANCH

Social Corner Editor, Brothers and Sisters: Was glad so many attended the anniversary March 3rd.

Joan: I thank you so much for your kindness in sending in the old song, Gypsy's Warning.

J. E. T.: Was glad to get a letter from you. Never mind the snow, spring will soon be here in all its beauty so you can get out and enjoy it.

Majestic: Your recipes are very tempting. Shall try them some day.

Peter Prose: Your skillet pie makes me hungry for a piece of it right now. Can one use granulated sugar with molasses as a substitute for brown sugar? It is hard work to get brown sugar?

Potlatch: Glad to see your letter. They are always so interesting. I came very near coming out your way, only I think a little farther on was told it was. Think I would like it on a ranch. If it is as nice as it sounds, for I love horses and cattle. To see so many must be just grand. On account of illness in my family I gave up going.

Kitty Lou: Your April Fool party is nice to read and must be better to be there. No blues for one evening. How are all your folks? I often think of you all and the happy hours spent at your house eight years ago.

Did not mean to write again so soon, but am so pleased with verses I wished to thank Joan and when my pen gets started it is hard work to stop it. Best wishes to all.

SHORE LINE CLUB TO MEET

Dear Social Corner Sisters: I wrote you the other week that Interested Reader had been spending the day with me and we had formed a Shore Line club with only ourselves as members. Interested Reader had planned in a short time that we should meet at her house and see if we couldn't round up some more members in this section. As she is having quite a bit of trouble with neuritis it is hard for her to plan ahead so I got Tatting on the telephone and as she is much interested in the S. L. club she has offered her home as our next meeting place. The time is Tuesday, March 16, the place, Summit street, Stonington, Conn. It is only a few steps from a Groton and Westerly trolley car stop. Go down the street until you find the house with the yellow bow and you will be at the end of your journey. Interested Reader, Tatting and myself will furnish the refreshments which will be served at noon. Anyone who has anything to read, recite or sing we shall be glad to listen to. As there as sisters all along the line from Groton to Westerly and vicinity and in North Stonington we hope we will see a good number. Bring your fancy work and plan to help make a good time.

O. D.: Hope you will be able to come as from your letter your home is Westerly. You can wear those new shoes you made, if you want to.

At the anniversary meeting of Club No. 2 they took for their stunt for the new year the bringing of a new member to the next meeting and I think that's a good one for all of us. Hoping all sisters who can will come out and make the Shore Line club a success. We will be glad to welcome any Social Corner sisters who can spend the day with us.

DOROTHY PERKINS IN FLORIDA

To the Editor and Social Corner Sisters: I came to Florida the last week in October and left word for the Bulletin to follow me, so have had the pleasure of reading all of your fine letters and also how much snow and ice I have missed. I am in the northwest part of Florida on St. Andrews bay, about the same temperature as Jacksonville.

They raise very fine Satsuma oranges, also grape fruit. Peach trees and pear trees are all in bloom now. We have all kinds of wild flowers and lovely birds. I counted 15 one morning feeding like chickens. There are mocking birds, red tangers, brown thrushes and they are very tame. They are talking of having an Interdenominational school here in Lynn Haven. The Rev. Robert (Bob) Jones an evangelist is back of it. They have a large plot of land to sell in lots. They reserve 18 acres for the school grounds and the rest is sold to the public. They have sold about 300 lots for from $350 to $3,500 a lot. The Rev. Jones has insured himself for $500,000 for the college. That is the way they do business out this way. Am glad Aunty No. 1 is still on the writing list. Where is Biddy these days?

Will close with best wishes to all

Cream shortening, add molasses and beaten egg and mix. Sift flour, soda, salt, baking powder and spices four times; then alternate with milk to the first mixture, add orange rind, stir well, bake in greased shallow tin in medium oven.

GUESS WHO.

LUNCHES FOR A CHILD WITH A POOR APPETITE

Dear Social Corner Editor and Members: There are quite a few children who have poor appetites. I really think that they should drink milk and drink it often. Did you ever try having them suck it through a straw?

Milk and eggs are better than meat. Children like cookies and cake, and they do need them, but I think it a good idea to give them substantials before eating the sweets.

HIGHLY PLEASED WITH CORNER MEETING

Dear Social Corner Sisters: Joy of joys! At last I have attended a Social Corner club meeting, the anniversary meeting on March 3 and such a good time as I did have. As I had never been to any of the meetings (only the picnic at Ocean beach last summer) I was rather undecided which place to go to but finally decided on the Odd Fellows' hall. There was just one lady there I knew years ago, but it did not take long to get acquainted. Every one was so cordial. I think there must have been more than a hundred there. At noon a bountiful dinner was served of escalloped oysters, baked beans, salads, rolls, pickles, pies, cakes and coffee. The entertainment in the afternoon furnished by the "chorus" was fine. Readings by several sisters were much enjoyed. The music furnished by Black Eyed Susie at the piano and Country Sisters with her violin brought forth loud applause. Black Eyed Susie also sang Already Mr. Cady for us. I took a friend with me and she so enjoyed the day that she is joining the Corner this week. I met several who knew people whom I know. We hope sometime to meet with the sisters at the Buckingham Memorial and get acquainted with them. Now to all you sisters who have never attended a Corner meeting, do make an effort to as you don't know what you are missing.
